

Board Still Won't Pay County Bill

The Board of Selectmen Monday voted 3-2 to continue to withhold payment of the town's $40,000 Middlesex Hospital assessment until an explanation is received on a number of points the board feels remains unanswered on rising costs.

Last week, with four members present, the board unanimously voted to withhold payment. This week the board received an answer from hospital director Dr. John Noble which it feels didn't explain what is going to be done to hold down future costs.

Selectman John J. Sullivan, who initiated the non-payment move, feels Dr. Noble's answer didn't include any relief for Winchester taxpayers who "pay for patients in other communities."

Sullivan feels the only way to get relief is not to pay the bill. Selectman Lawrence T. Smith, attending his first board meeting, agreed. Selectman Lawrence T. Smith, attending his first board meeting, agreed. Selectman William G. Chapman Jr. and Vito Giarrizzo voted in favor of paying the bill.

Selectman Arthur E. Dunbar, elected chairman only a few moments earlier, broke the tie vote by siding with Sullivan and Smith. Chapman then moved the vote be made unanimous to withhold payment but Giarrizzo refused and there was no further vote.

The town's bill was due April 1. County treasurer Thomas B. Brennan has notified the town that unless the bill is paid by May 1, the matter will be turned over to the district attorney and interest of 12 percent will be charged.

"What's the worst thing that could happen to us?" Sullivan asked Town Counsel Leonard J. Mullen Jr. Mullen said the selectmen could personally be held accountable for the debt. He urged them to pay the bill.

"They could, as they did in another community, take the police chief's car," Sullivan said. "The only thing we lose is a little interest. The worst thing that could happen is they get a police officer to come in here and make (Town Treasurer) Marguerite (Troop) pay the bill."

Sullivan objects to the hospital's repeated failure to appear before the state Rate Setting Commission "as is required in order to minimize operating deficits"; the assessment to Middlesex towns and cities for the treatment of hospital patients from outside the county; and the lack of legislation authorizing Middlesex Hospital in Waltham to treat other than tubercular patients.

Dr. Noble's letter to the board said the hospital is attempting to reduce the 2.5 to 1 employee-patient ratio to 2 to 1.

He also said: "The demand for new services being offered by the Middlesex County Hospital is greatly exceeding the hospital's ability to provide service."

The selectmen Monday acted on a number of other items, including putting off a decision for 30 days on a request from Archie J. MacDonald of Winchester Cab Co. for a third license. The board wants more in-

Man Charged With Intent To Kill Wife

A 27-year-old Winchester man is under police guard at Winchester Hospital today following his arrest yesterday morning on a charge of assault with intent to kill his wife.

Police said Roger O'Sullivan hit his wife, Rosalind, 30, over the head with a vase then used a razor blade to cut his wrists and throat. A hospital official says he is in good condition. They had no report on the extent of his injuries.

Mrs. O'Sullivan was also reported in good condition, with a cerebral concussion. She is under observation.

Winchester police received a call at 6:15 a.m. yesterday from 433 Washington st., the O'Sullivan home. Police Chief Edward F. Bowler said Rosalind's sister, Florence Aldrich, telephoned for an ambulance.

Officers Francis R. Manzie Jr. and Theodore W. Veanacopolis responded and reported finding Mrs. O'Sullivan lying unconscious on the bedroom floor.

The police said O'Sullivan then struggled up from the cellar floor, bleeding. Officer Franklin Bartlett took both to the hospital in a police ambulance.

Chief Bowler said O'Sullivan's injuries were self-inflicted. Mrs. O'Sullivan had a cut on her head, he added.

The couple, believed not to have children, lived at the Washington street address since December. Mrs. O'Sullivan is the former daughter-in-law of former Governor John A. Volpe. She was married to Volpe's son, John. The case is being investigated by Insp. Sgt. Roland J. Roy and Officer Daniel C. Pearson Jr.

FBI Arrests Participant In Wounded Knee

The Federal Bureau of Investigation announced yesterday that Larry Lester Levin, 25, of 17 Lakeview rd., an employee of Medical Aid for Indochina of Cambridge, surrendered to the FBI in Boston yesterday.

A federal warrant was issued for Levin's arrest at Rapid City, South Dakota, on April 20 charging him with violation of the federal anti-riot law statute and conspiracy.

These charges stemmed from the air drop of supplies into Wounded Knee, S.D., on April 17.

Levin was to have been arraigned before a U.S. magistrate in Boston yesterday afternoon.

Enrichment Comes To Winchester Via Dance

Twenty students from the Boston Conservatory of Music Dance Department will have been in Winchester three days -- yesterday, today and tomorrow -- to perform for pupils in the town's nine elementary schools.

Sponsored by the Enrichment Committee of the Community Schools Association of Winchester, the conservatory students are performing in an original story, "The Troll Who Stole Spring," conceived by Nancy Crollus and set to music from the Beatles' film "Yellow Submarine."

Miss Crollus is aided in choreography by Norma Orr and Melanie McDaniel. Dancers are students from the freshman, sophomore and junior classes at the conservatory. Each is working toward a bachelor of fine arts degree in dancing.

Yesterday the dancers performed at the Washington, Parkhurst and Vinson-Owen Schools.

This morning they arrived at Noonan School at 8:30 a.m. with performance at 9:30 and classroom visits from 10 to 10:30. They will be at Lincoln School at 10:30 with performance at 10:45 and classroom visits from 11:15 - 11:45.

Following lunch from 12-1 p.m. at Winchester High School, the dancers, will arrive at Wyman School to perform from 1:45 to 2:15, with classroom visits from 2:15 to 2:45 p.m.

Tomorrow they will follow a similar schedule beginning at Mystic School, then moving on to Muraco and Ambrose Schools.

The Enrichment Committee is providing a chartered bus for the cast each day. The WHS Drama Club is acting as host.

According to Mrs. David Pressman of 33 Mayflower rd. who has provided leadership for the Enrichment Committee since its formulation a year ago, the visit of the conservatory dance group to elementary school pupils is another of the committee's efforts to expose children to creative arts and resource persons within the immediate and neighboring communities. Adventures in Music and South Symphony Concerts are two of the most notable series of programs sponsored by the Enrichment Committee.

The Enrichment Committee of the Community Schools Association of Winchester includes representatives from each of the school parents' associations. The group serves as a clearing house to provide information on programs and speakers to be used in conjunction with existing school curriculum.

Since September the Enrichment Committee has published and distributed a list of about 50 performing groups. Winchester's school's parents and teachers working together have used this list to bring music, drama and imaginative educational programs to local children.

They also published the Winchester Resource Panel giving names of local professionals willing to be called on as consultants and to present programs of interest to school children. Among their topics are art, photography, music, business, drama, English, health, home economics, personal

While Mrs. Nawrie Campbell offered refreshments to the workers, William Burrows supervised neighborhood boys in the planting of the cherry trees. Mrs. Lynne Kyed and Karen Sullivan showed girls how to plant violets, while Mrs. Ursula McMorro, a Jayceeette, and Mrs. Lucille Grassi, girl scout leader, directed girl scouts and neighborhood children.

They spread wood chips around the lot provided by the Winchester Highway Department under the supervision of Edward Murphy, assistant superintendent. Water was supplied by Mother Nature, so all work was done in raincoats.

Girl Scouts from Troop 468 were: Linda Houlihan, Jeannine, DeBenedictis, Gina Gargano, Julie Berberian, Maura Abate, Annette Perry and Jennifer Itapin.

Also, Mary Grassi, Deborah Grassi, Sara Reich, Debra Wein, Mary Ellen Cantella and Carolyn Averell.

Bonnell Wins Rezoning, McManus House Goes

Bonnell Motors won its rezoning request on Cambridge street during the final session of town meeting last Thursday, a bitter rift developed over the school budget and the McManus House was doomed to destruction.

The vote to change the zoning of 339-353 Cambridge street to allow Bonnell Motors of Winchester and Woburn to build a new agency on the six-acre site was 125-35.

Debate on the article was lengthy, with splits recorded by the Planning Board, Board of Selectmen and Finance Committee. Planning Chairman Otto E. Schaefer, citing the present residential zoning of the land declared: "The town has made a commitment to the residential character of the area."

He said homes have been built along

Cambridge street in that area "on this basis." Schaefer also said the Bonnell property should be treated as an area rather than a single parcel. The article successfully sought to place the parcel in a business zone.

The Planning Board chairman continued that a consultant "said garden apartments are more in keeping with the neighborhood and would provide a greater tax base." He said the meeting's zoning decision will affect property in a large area near the site.

Planning Board member William H. Holland, speaking for a majority of the board, said, "The property is conceptually committed to business use" because of the business nature of much of the surrounding area. "It is not suited for single residences because of the topography... It is not part of a neighborhood."

The two rented houses now on the land will be torn down to make way for the agency. The six acres contain two acres of ledge, Holland said, and 1.3 acres of wetland.

Selectmen Chairman Paul F. Amico said the implication of a negative vote by the meeting "might mean a continuation of the negative attitude (toward business) that has existed for many years in Winchester." Favorable action, he continued, "might be an indication to the Planning Board" of the town's desire for that area in the future.

The McManus House article -- to transfer control of the structure at 465 Main st. from the School Committee to the selectmen -- was never voted on. Town Counsel Leonard J. Mullen ruled that the committee must first vote to relinquish the property before a transfer could take place.

The committee voted to retain control. Chairman Mary A. Mears said the committee hopes to tear the structure down "as promptly as possible." Bids on demolition are being sought. The committee placed $4,500 in its budget for that purpose.

Peter Kennedy Tully of the Recreation Committee said the committee unanimously recommended that the meeting reject transfer. The town's elderly had hoped that the Recreation Committee would use the building for a center for elderly affairs.

TMM Vincent J. Carroll, sponsor of the transfer article, later said Recreation wants to put the elderly into the old Lincoln School when that is vacated. He called Lincoln unsuitable and said, in any case, the Housing Authority may have other plans for the school.

The meeting voted to indefinitely postpone action on 11 pieces of property Carroll had sought to put up for sale. Some had been acquired for expansion of schools. Carroll said some of the properties are houses, under the control of the Board of Selectmen, and "are a disgrace. They are not being maintained."

Finance Chairman Lawrence T. Smith said the properties should be retained. "But it is important to maintain them," he added.

Selectman Amico said Finance first cut the board's budget "in this area and after long deliberation saw the wisdom of restoring our funds." Amico added that the board doesn't yet know what it will do with the properties and thus doesn't want to spend "more money than needed."

The meeting voted to establish a sub-committee of the Permanent Building Committee to study the feasibility of building a swimming pool with state aid at the new high school and to establish a student government committee.

TMMs quickly dispatched the school lunch budget when it was taken from the table for the second time Thursday night. A cut in the appropriation of $20,000 was accepted.

The $130,464 budget item was able to be slashed by a reduction in contractual services. Finance Chairman Smith said he was "satisfied this is our best offer."

Members also accepted a $70,000 cut in the school budget composed of $63,750 from personnel services and $6,650 from other expenses. The original budget was approved on March 29, but a recent announcement that St. Mary's School would continue to operate convinced School Committee members that their budget should be amended.

The figure of $70,000 was suggested by Moderator Raymond J. Kenney Jr., who explained that he arrived at the sum after consulting with both the Finance and School Committees. "A parliamentary limit only." It lay between the Finance recommendation of an $87,500 cut and the $57,825 cut suggested by the School Committee.

By accepting this figure TMMs could amend only the personnel services and other expenses accounts by a majority vote. The total budget was not being reopened, Kenney continued, a particular procedure which would have required a two-thirds vote.

Referendum Beginning On School Budget

Town meeting member Arthur J. Hewis Jr. is circulating petitions for a referendum on the school budget, hoping the voters will reject the $10.4 million budget and town meeting will vote a lower one.

The Prec. 1 TMM said his intent is to have the town vote only one summer's pay for teachers rather than two as under the present budget.

Because communities in Massachusetts have been forced by the state to adopt an 18-month budget, the pay of teachers for the next two summers will be raised through taxes this year in Winchester.

Hewis maintains the town can split that payment over this year and next and says the result will be a $3 lower tax rate. School Committeeman Stephen R. Parkhurst agrees that some communities have been able to do this.

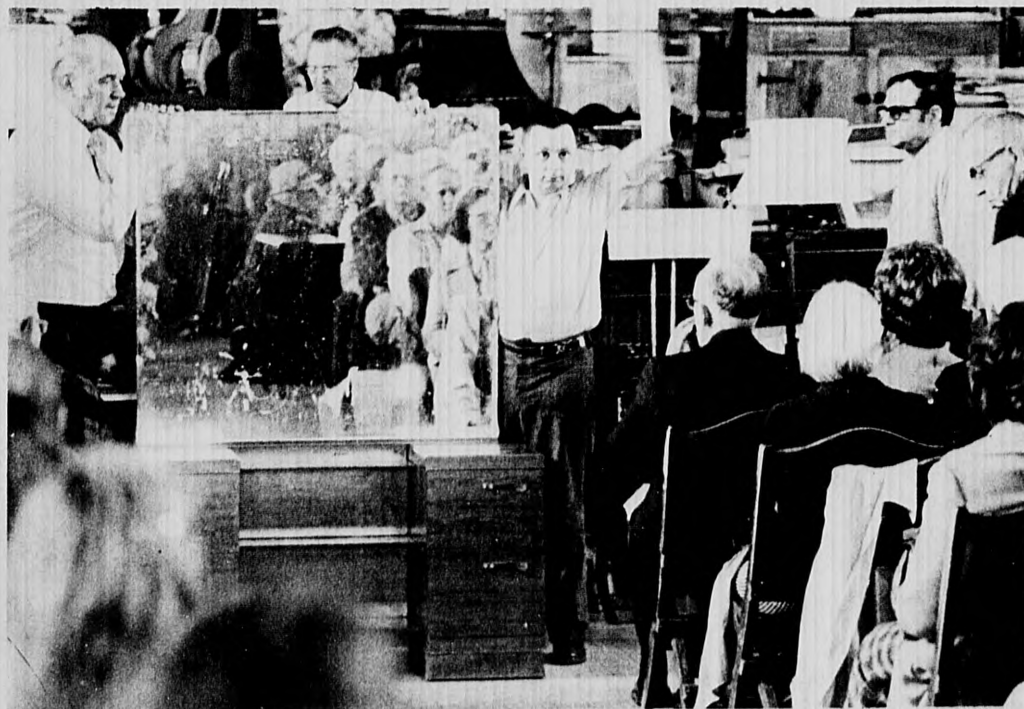

But he says that the contract Winchester has with its teachers prevents such a move here. Some communities are on a 26-payment plan, he said. "The great majority of our teachers have lower monthly payments and then get a lump sum in June."

Parkhurst, in addition, said the town comptroller has ruled that Winchester's teachers have earned their salaries "under this period."

Hewis needs three percent of the registered voters' signatures -- 370 valid names -- to place the issue on the ballot. He has 10 days to submit the signatures from the close of town meeting, last Thursday.

Parkhurst said: "It seems to me it was thoroughly debated in town meeting -- 3 1/2 hours the first session and 1 1/2 hours the last session." The original school budget of $10,467,368 was initially approved then reduced by $70,000 at a later session.

The reduction represented a saving by the continuation of St. Mary's School.

Safety Tips Given On Spring Chores

Paint brushes and power mowers usually go into action during Spring Clean-Up, and if either or both figure in your plans, Fire Chief I. Francis Amico suggests you keep these fire safety pointers in mind:

1. For paint removing and brush cleaning, solvents labelled "non-flammable" are safest. If you must work with flammable ones, better use them outdoors. Indoors, be sure windows are open, stoves, pilot lights and other ignition sources are off, and there is no smoking in the room.

2. In storing paint materials, keep them well away from furnaces and also away from exits or under stairways -- so you will not be blocked from escaping should these highly combustible materials catch fire.

3. Get rid of old paint and solvent containers and those with small leftover amounts. Store paints and solvents only in capped metal containers -- glass jars and bottles break easily, creating a definite fire hazard.

4. Safest practice with rags used to wipe up paint or solvents is to dispose of them immediately outside the house. If you must store them, use a metal container with a tight cover.

Another fire safety tip for homeowners concerns power mowers:

Power mowers have the power to be dangerous if not used with care and good sense. So says Chief Amico as the sound of gasoline-powered lawnmowers is heard with increasing frequency now that warmer weather and Spring Clean-Up time has arrived.

Every year the National Fire Protection Association records injuries resulting from unsafe practices in the use of power mowers.

To avoid becoming the victim of such an accident, he reminds everyone to be sure to treat gasoline with respect -- it gives off flammable vapors which need only a tiny flame or spark to turn them into searing fire or dangerous explosion.

Here are some specific rules for safe power mowing from Chief Amico:

1. Do all refueling outdoors where dangerous gasoline vapors can't accumulate.

2. When refueling, keep away from all ignition sources such as bonfires and motors in operation. Observe the "No Smoking!" rule without exception.

3. Wipe up any spilled fuel before starting the motor.

4. Store gasoline in a light-closing metal can -- never in an easily-broken glass jug or bottle.

Following the program the Madison students will leave for a walking tour of Boston including the Freedom Trail and other places of historic interest.

Friday evening the students will have another combined rehearsal. This will be followed by a party at the high school.

On Saturday the visiting students will sight-see at the north shore including Salem, Marblehead, Gloucester and the Hammond Museum.

The Concert on Saturday featuring the combined orchestras of 50 students will play "The Big Sky" by McKay; "Toccata" by Frescobaldi and selections from "The King & I" by Rodgers.

In the combined concert choir 175 voices will sing "Adoramus Te Christe" by Mozart; "All Things That Rise Will Fall" by Berger; "Bow Down Thine Ear O Lord" by Morgan; "nun Fangel An" by Hassler; "My Spirit Sang All Day" by Finzi; "Ain a That Good News" by Dawson; "Last Words of David" by Thompson; "Ye Sons and Daughters of the King" by Leising; "Harvesters Song" by Berger and "Sunrise, Sunset" by Bock.

Selections by the Madison and Winchester Concert Bands consisting of 150 students will be "Second Suite in F" by Holst; "Caribegaine" by Schaefer; "Arioso" by Williams and selections from "Oliver" by Bart.

Arrangements for the weekend and the concert program were made by Burton Cowgill, director of music, Frederick Murry, band director and John Woodworth, orchestra conductor. This seventh annual exchange concert marks the beginning of an expanded music program that includes all three music organizations for the first time - the orchestra and concert choir and the band.

Voke School Open House Saturday

Gerard P. Donahoe, Winchester's elected representative to the Northeast Metropolitan Regional Vocational School Committee, extends an invitation to Winchester residents to attend the school's third annual open house on Saturday from noon to 5 p.m.

Teachers and students are preparing a variety of exhibits and activities.

The weekend date was selected again this year to allow as many people as possible to visit the school and see first-hand the accomplishments of the students. Donahoe will be on hand to welcome visitors from Winchester and the other 11 communities comprising the school district.

All shops and classrooms will be open. The cafeteria will be used as a general exhibit hall where the finished work of students will be on display. Some unique exhibits are planned utilizing both the newly acquired skills of the students and the modern equipment available to them.

As students demonstrate shop activities, staff members will serve as hosts and guides through the six acre building.

Residents Report Vandalism, Thefts

Larcenies coupled with vandalism kept local police busy this week.

While an attempt to enter a car parked at the Winchester High School gymnasium and one stationed on Glenn road was made, more successful ventures occurred at Wedgemere Station, where a tape deck, tapes and a suede coat were taken and on Aberjona drive where a tool box containing various tools was discovered missing from a van.

A small jar holding approximately $30 in change was known to be absent from the apartment of Thomas J. Keating at the Parkview, 200 Swanton st. Dressers had been ransacked. Entry may have been made through porch or sliding doors.

An unlocked window at the Newcomb home, 387 Cambridge st. gave access to an intruder. Two stereos were taken.

Shortly before 3 a.m. Saturday morning an automobile belonging to a Woburn man was missing from its spot on Converse place. Woburn police located the vehicle about 45 minutes later on Wildwood street, Woburn, damaged and burned.

While one sixty eight model was stolen from Wedgemere Station parking lot, another vehicle left there by its owner while she went into Boston for the day was "used" during her absence.

Vandalism was reported at the rear of the Christian Science Church. Two 16" x 18" windows, a rear door and an outside lantern were broken, an overflow pipe was bent and mud was thrown against the building's side.

Miscellaneous damage included 11 broken windows at the Lincoln School, three windows at Noonan School, a front window at Winchester Hardware and Paint, Inc., Swanton street and two front windows, 5" x 8", on a Winslow road residence by beer bottles.

Persons practicing their golfing swing on the property of Noonan School did damage to two shingles on a nearby house, and a sign post at Meadowcroft and Rangeley roads was knocked over and the sign was taken.

May Fiesta Dance

The Muraco Parents' Association will hold a "May Fiesta Dance" Friday at the Columbus Club Hall, Raymond pl., from 8:30 p.m. to 1 a.m.

Music for dancing will be provided by Johnny Gambino and the Blue Chips. A buffet will be served. For tickets contact Mrs. John Severino, 64 Harvard st.

WHS Students Rehearse For 'Play It Again, Sam' May 11

For the past couple of weeks Winchester High School students have been rehearsing and setting up for Curtin and Cue's next production "Play It Again, Sam."

This three-act comedy, written by Woody Allen, will be performed May 11 and 12 at 8 p.m. at the Winchester High School Auditorium. Tickets will be available at the door.

The play concerns the attempts of a young man named Allan Felix to impress and conquer the women he invites to his apartment. Allan is unbelievably awkward with his girlfriends. He has a very hard time trying to act like the casanova he would like to be.

His friends, Dick and Linda Christie, tell Allan to be himself when he is with these girls. His friends tell him to use natural charm and persuasiveness to win the heart of any girl he chooses. But no matter how hard he tries, Allan Felix can't seem to harness his natural wits and enchantment.

Instead he consults his idol, the great charmer himself, Humphrey Bogart. When Allan has any questions about what to do next with a girl, he turns to his imaginary Bogart and seeks advice. Many embarrassing situations arise because of his insecurities and fantasies concerning the correct methods of handling women. But Bogey is always there to help.

Starring in the cast are Chase Rozelle as the nervous Allan Felix, Zip Farrell as Linda Christie, Scott Shawcross as Dick Christie, and Steve Kelly playing the part of Humphrey Bogart.

Allan's ex-wife Nancy Felix is played by Debbie Pont. Also appearing are Gwen Seferian, Laura Dooley, Clare Hurley, and Donna Davis.

Claire Simeone is director and assistant director is Nancy Pease.

Mini-College

This afternoon at the high school cafeteria beginning at 2:30 p.m. the Winchester High School Mini-College Afternoon program will have representatives from the Charles River Academy, Leslie College, Newbury College, St. Francis Xavier College of Nova Scotia and Harvard University School of Design summer program offering architectural arts and regional planning and landscaping architecture.

The Winchester Star

Serving The Community For 90 Years

Town Loses Again

The School Committee's refusal to release McManus House for use by the town's elderly as a meeting center is one more example of the committee's arrogance and abuse of power.

Very shortly the bulldozers will arrive and tear down another fine old structure under orders from the School Committee. The committee apparently does exactly what it wants to do irrespective of the thoughts of others.

That the committee is within its legal rights in tearing down McManus House is not in question. The issue is that the committee might have considered the town's elderly, a group of persons consistently neglected by society.

The house would have been an ideal meeting place for older Winchester residents. They have been searching for a place of their own without success. Now that the committee has blocked any move to turn McManus House over to the Board of Selectmen the elderly will probably have to settle for a room in the Lincoln School when that building is turned over to the Recreation Department for town activities.

There now appears some doubt whether the Recreation Department will be able to acquire Lincoln School as easily as it thinks. Housing Authority Chairman Mary E. Murphy told The Star the authority "is very much interested" in acquiring the site for elderly housing.

The Recreation Department, in fact, recommended that the town meeting reject the article which would have transferred control of McManus House from the School Committee to the Board of Selectmen.

What is disappointing in the issue is the refusal of the School Committee to allow the town meeting to even consider the transfer. Town Counsel Leonard J. Mullen Jr. ruled that the committee has to vote that a property "is no longer needed for that public purpose" for which it was acquired before control can be transferred.

The ruling came moments before the town meeting was scheduled to debate the issue, therefore killing any possibility of communication with the members of the School Committee. Needless to say, the committee didn't vote that McManus House isn't required for educational purposes.

The committee intends to use the land as a play area for kindergarten children when McCall Junior High School is converted into an elementary school.

The failure of the committee to allow the town meeting to decide the issue represents an arrogance all too common with the Winchester School Committee and with school committees throughout Massachusetts.

Every year in the legislature bills to strip school committees of some of their autonomous powers are defeated. But every year the bills are defeated by narrower margins. In most communities, as with Winchester, the School Committee controls more than 50 percent of the town budget. Yet the only check on its power is at the ballot box when the town elects committee members.

And this year there was no contest for either of the two seats to be filled. So the two men who had filed papers were elected without having to be accountable.

The town meeting, aptly demonstrated this year by the McManus House issue and by attempts to cut the school budget, has no control over what is the last town department. Winchester should applaud and support efforts to eliminate school committee autonomy considering the abuse of authority over McManus House.

Letters To The Editor

Parent Is Pleased With Voke School

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

I would like to publicly express my appreciation to the Northeast Regional Vocational School for the excellent program provided at the early childhood laboratory school.

This program is providing an opportunity for 48 young children living in the regional area districts with an enriching early preschool experience. The competent and devoted teachers and their student teacher-aides provide many interesting activities to help our youngsters grow socially, emotionally and intellectually. The superb facilities encourage our youngsters to use their muscles, imagination, curiosity and independence.

My daughter is currently enrolled in this program, and I am very pleased to have had the opportunity to have her participated in this worthwhile program.

Since Winchester is one of the 12 communities involved in the Northeast Regional School, I feel that we are most fortunate to be able to derive many of the beneficial opportunities that this school has to offer to our students, adults, and to our pre-schoolers.

Pool Specifications

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

The front page item in the March 29 issue of The Star reported the action of a special town meeting on March 27. It reported that the sum of $18,500 was appropriated for bid specifications for a replacement swimming facility at Leonard Pool.

According to the report in The Star, and I quote, "The present design calls for a 25 meter by 25 yard 'L' shaped pool to replace the existing 40-year old man-made hole. It should meet official requirements for sanctioned outdoor swimming and diving meets." I wonder who originated this statement as to meeting official requirements.

All outdoor swimming comes under the authority of the Amateur Athletic Union of the United States. I wrote to John Spanuth, aquatic administrator, A.A.U. House, 3400 West 86th St., Indianapolis, Ind. and requested "plans and specifications for an outdoor swimming facility which would meet the official requirements for sanctioned outdoor swimming."

I am enclosing a copy of the specifications I received, and I think you will do the town a great service if you published the essential parts that deal with outdoor pools. It was a tragic error when a committee of five made the decision it did and denied the citizens a modern indoor facility at the new high school.

I do not want to see a mistake made in the design of the facility.

I suggest the Leonard Pool Committee and the designer read the second edition of "Swimming Pools, A Guide to Their Planning, Design and Operation," published by Hoffman Publications, P. O. Box 7196, Fort Lauderdale, Fla. 33304.

Earle F. Littleton
14 Cranston Rd.

EDITOR'S NOTE: The specifications the writer refers to state that preferred size requirements for both indoor and outdoor pools are 50 meters by 75 feet. The specifications are available at The Star office for anyone who wishes to see them.

45-Minute Lunch

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

By the time you read this letter, lunch program questionnaires should be in your hands.

As we are all aware, the "in school" lunch program is here to stay. Although it was not created for towns such as Winchester, we must comply with the state law. I would, however, like to point out a few things.

1. We do have neighborhood schools and many children are able and anxious to walk to and from school for lunch.

2. The percentage of children staying for lunch for the April through June session has dropped by about 50 percent. This certainly indicates that many children enjoy the privilege of having their lunch at home.

In view of the above, I feel that it is important to have a lunch period of at least 45 minutes for those children who wish to come home.

If you are interested in supporting the above, please be sure to make your wishes known on your questionnaire.

Nancy Miles

VNA, EnKa Thanked

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

I'd like to avail myself of your newspaper to publicly thank the Winchester VNA (Visiting Nurses Assn.) and EnKa. At Easter they have a lovely practice of distributing beautiful azalea plants to VNA patients. As I receive therapy through the VNA I was a recipient. It's such a beautiful gesture and one I'm sure not too many people are aware of.

My thanks also to whoever was responsible for the sidewalk cut-out across from Cradock's Apothecary. I hope it's a sign of a new awareness of the difficulties encountered by persons with mobility problems.

Carroll Accuses School Committee For Secret Meet

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

The School Committee dealt a lethal blow to Article 33 sponsoring the use of the McManus House as a club house for the senior citizens of Winchester. The original article was filed on Nov. 6, 1972 and at no time before April 26 at town meeting (last Thursday) did they let anyone know of their plans to exercise their autonomy in the demolition of the McManus House. They have buried the hopes of many senior citizens of enjoying the use of a meeting place. Because of the autonomy this committee enjoys, they can do this sort of thing legally, but what about the moral aspect?

Their sudden cruel moves lead us to believe only one thing—they are covering up the disappearance of the items taken from the McManus House and feared further discussion. They don't give a damn for the taxpayers or the elderly. There is no loneliness sadder than that of lonely elderly people. They, the committee, will join such ranks some day. If they have any conscience at all, they might be reminded of their cruelty here.

The last paragraph of their "Fact Sheet re McManus House," which was given to town meeting members, led the members to believe that it would be voted on. It read as follows: "The practical solution to the problem would be to pay a reputable, qualified builder to go over the building carefully, to open the exterior to determine the condition of the sills and the studs resting upon them as well as other timbers of the building. He should then submit a firm proposal, not an estimate, for what he would charge to put the building back in proper condition."

At a meeting held at the Washington School, Mary Mears and Stephen Parkhurst agreed to an open-house inspection of the McManus property and they agreed not to take any action prior to town meeting action on the above premises with regard to the demolishing. Also, they implied that they would abide by the vote of the town meeting members, but on last Thursday afternoon they held a secret meeting to draw up a motion that would completely prevent any debate on article 33 by the town meeting. Democracy? No! Dirty politics? Yes—to the degree! All the more reason for the abolishment of the autonomy law which gives school committees demagogic powers.

It is apparent that the open house inspection embarrassed the school committee and the school administration. How in good conscience can any citizen of this town have any respect for the present school committee? Yet they are in charge of a $10,397,368 plus school budget. God forbid! There is plenty of heavy cream in this disgracefully well-padded budget.

It is understandable why some town meeting members have been resigning out of disgust and discouragement. We have lost excellent talent, long-time residents who had full knowledge of the town and its politics. Others will follow, leaving only new inexperienced members who will act as puppets on a string—puppets for an extravagant school committee that couldn't spare a dime's worth of space for the elderly citizens who built most of this town's present schools to begin with.

Vincent G. Carroll
207 Highland Ave.

Bonnells Grateful

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

I would like to use this media to express my sincere appreciation to those who supported Article 35 of the 1973 town meeting.

It was particularly gratifying to Bruce and me, but I assure you that the rest of the family and our employees were pleased as well.

Ralph H. Bonnell Jr.

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

I would like to publicly thank, through our town newspaper, all those involved in helping my husband and brother-in-law secure the land for their new Ford Agency. We are deeply grateful and touched at the confidence the town meeting vote gave us.

This was our town working together.
Mrs. Ralph Bonnell Jr.

Help Clean Wedge

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

As one of Winchester's newer residents, it is encouraging to know that a number of Wedge Pond people have organized in an attempt to reverse the obvious deterioration of this valuable town resource.

The cleanup day scheduled for Saturday, May 5, is certainly an important first step in the overall effort to not only eliminate the accumulated rubbish from the pond, but to restore its ecological balance.

With proper action on the part of townspeople and officials, Wedge Pond can become a much more useful asset for the entire community, making available a highly convenient and attractive facility for swimming, as well as for fishing and skating.

The Wedge Pond group spearheading the May 5 cleanup deserves not only the congratulations of the community, but its active encouragement and support as well. For the reason, all residents concerned with the pond's betterment are urged to support the cleanup effort by reporting on May 5 at the town beach—with rakes and rubbish bags.

Henry T. Wilson
5 Grassmere Ave.

Laurels To Amico

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

As a taxpayer and a TM member, may I express my appreciation to Paul Amico whose nine years of continuous participation in town government concluded with the current town meeting.

One may marvel at the stamina required to maintain such a prolonged government career; one may admire Paul's decision to consider continuity of government important enough to set a modern precedent of two continuous terms as selectman.

But it is the sum of achievement during those nine years that prompts my letter.

As a member of and ultimately chairman of the Finance Committee, Paul was instrumental in developing the concept of a stabilization fund and in encouraging the town meeting to create such a fund.

The fund, a "savings account" to which the town meeting has voted $100,000 yearly, has grown to $722,000. Originally intended to provide the large amounts anticipated for extensive elementary school expansion, the fund's use has been redirected to the alleviation of other town needs, this year for capital equipment expenditures to lessen the impact on the tax rate. It is anticipated the stabilization fund will provide the substantial amount of money needed to rehabilitate the incinerator.

During Paul's first term as selectman he revived the public works council. Because a town referendum refused the establishment of a department of public works, it is this Public Works Council that serves the Board of Selectmen in its efforts to consolidate town boards.

When the Marycliff School was purchased by the town Paul with his professional skill as a lawyer, represented Winchester successfully in its request for state building funds to rebuild the school into a modern educational plant, now the Ambrose school. This use of state funds for older buildings set a precedent that promises to help other communities in their efforts to secure less costly schools.

During the chairmanship of his first term as selectman, Paul was given the responsibility of helping Winchester retain its equilibrium during and after the emotional issue of Melco. And throughout both terms as selectman, he has witnessed the full-blown development of complex collective bargaining between the town and its employees. His support for the creation of the office of an executive secretary has enabled the selectmen to handle the heavy burden of negotiating and to improve their service as the town's executive board.

The nine years Paul served the town are not to be just statistics in dusty town reports. The town will benefit many more years from Paul Amico's creative, practical, and patient administration.

Sally W. Kincaid

Letter From The Editor

Paul Amico Honored; New Chairman Takes Over and Breaks A Tie Vote

The final session of town meeting Thursday roundly applauded Paul F. Amico, chairman of the Board of Selectmen, for his nine years of dedication to town government—three years on the Finance Committee and the remainder as a selectman.

The selectmen met Monday and also paid tribute to Amico, described by Selectman John J. Sullivan as "one of the finest selectmen I've known and one of my best friends." At 41, Atty. Amico is too young to retire from town government. He hopes to remain active but looks forward to spending more time with his family.

Monday's session of the Board of Selectmen elected Arthur E. Dunbar as the new chairman. Dunbar, 45, was elected to the board in 1971. It is generally accepted that "it's Arthur's turn" to be chairman. The board gives each selectman a chance to man the gavel as their year, based on seniority, comes up.

Monday's session saw the new chairman break a tie vote over the county assessment issue. The Winchester board is now known for divisiveness among its members. They generally try to compromise and reach unanimous decisions.

But Selectman Bill Chapman Jr. and Jerry Giarrizzo backed down from their earlier support on refusing to pay the assessment for the county hospital after it became clear they could be personally liable for the $40,000 bill.

The new selectman who took office Monday, Larry Smith, voted to go along with John Sullivan in "biting the bullet," as Sullivan too often puts it. They're trying to force the county to explain its cost increases.

So the vote was 2-2 until Dunbar voted against payment and went along with Sullivan and Smith.

As Sullivan aptly put it, the only way to force the county to be accountable is by withholding payment. If the board had voted the $40,000 it would have been a sign of acquiescence and nothing would have happened. Probably nothing will happen this year, either, but at least the board is putting the county on notice—and letting the other towns and cities in Middlesex County know—that Winchester is going to fight.

Perhaps next year some of the other communities will join with the town and the county will be made to explain its expenses.

LITTLE BOY BLUE

Have you ever seen a boy go to play ball
And never get up to bat at all?
Well - I have!

Have you ever seen a boy dejected and blue?
He sat on the bench the whole game through.
Well - I have!

The manager's son and the coach's too
Played the game right straight through.

Have you no heart man when you looked at his face
And know that he felt he was such a disgrace?

To practices he went - he was faithful and true.
And this my dear man was something you knew.

He loved the game and you broke his heart!
To say nothing of mine which was torn apart!

The game was won and the shouting did start
How could he yell when he had not a part!

That poem was written by a Winchester mother over the disappointment her son suffered from sitting on the bench last year during Little League. She wrote: "A boy will forget if they won or lost the game but they won't forget the coach or manager that did not let them get their ups."

"Little League, after all, is supposed to teach the boys good sportsmanship. How can they learn when the men coaching the games don't exhibit it? I've seen these supposed adults get into some great verbal battles."

Dog Law Broken

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

On Friday April 27 around 11 o'clock in the morning a pack of four dogs came bounding onto my freshly seeded back lawn. They proceeded to make mincemeat of what had been a nice looking job, one in which a great deal of back-breaking effort, a lot of time and not inconsiderable expense had just been invested.

Now what do you suppose the big attraction was for these unleashed animals? Why, of course, my own dog, who was tied to his run. Unfortunately, as scrappy as he is, my year-old puppy was not able to scare off the intruders before they had done their dirty work.

He's lucky he wasn't hurt, handicapped as he was by being tied to his run. Ironic, isn't it, that here I am, minding my own business, trying to grow some grass, keeping my own dog tied up, and what happens? Four of my fellow townspeople don't give a jot about Winchester's leash law, and let their animals roam at will.

I don't blame the dogs at all, but I am incensed at their masters. Catching any of the dogs last Friday was out of the question. However, we may be luckier next time. Then, for one thing, I intend to call the dog officer, and for another I will take whatever legal action is necessary to get restitution for damages.

Like most laws, Winchester's leash law must be supported by its citizens or else it will have to be enforced for them at greater and greater expense to us all.

I like dogs, obviously, and I know it's hard to keep them restrained. But, if I can do the Winchester Little League each year serves over 1,000 youngsters and it truly is unfortunate that some sit on the bench all season and some don't even make a team at all. And this year some Little League teams were short-handed for coaches.

The incident the writer refers to happened last year: Little League states that all managers and coaches have been instructed to play each team member at least two innings in the field and once at bat. If any boy doesn't get his turn he should complain to the officials.

Dr. Rudolph Oehm of 51 Fells rd. finished the Boston Marathon this year in three and three-quarter hours. The 39-year-old MD reports he has done "it faster before. But I did finish."

He doesn't know what place he finished in because the officials stop counting after 3 1/2 hours. He runs with the Cambridge Sports Union and says they will let him know his finishing place.

The first time he ran, in 1970, he finished in 3 hours and 24 minutes. A 3 1/4-hour finish makes runners eligible to race in subsequent marathons. He said he has recently run in other marathons, one 18 miles and another 19.

He ran in the Boston Marathon "just for the fun of it." He doesn't know if he will race next year. But he will continue his jogging. Edward F. O'Connell, 47, of 5 Oneida rd. didn't run this year. The former president of the Road Runners Association also is keeping up with his practice daily. He is a faculty member of the Fletcher School of Law and Diplomacy at Tufts.

Father James Garrity, pastor of St. Mary's Church, is reported doing well in St. Elizabeth's Hospital after surgery.

The concluding town meeting session overwhelmingly voted to keep Bonnell Motors in Winchester. The vote was not so much an indication of how the members feel about a zoning change on Cambridge street as it is how they feel about the Bonnell family and keeping them here.

The vote was decided in a democratic process after considerable debate and no one can argue that the meeting didn't know what it was doing. Many will be relieved to know Bonnell's is staying in Winchester.

Town meeting this year had 10 working sessions. (The first session, which would make it 11, was adjourned immediately after it began.) That's not a record, though. Last year had the greatest number of sessions - 12.

ERRATUM: A note in this column last week reporting the appointment of women tellers at town meeting for the first time in Winchester history was in error, according to Barbara Hankins of the Finance Committee. Hankins says former moderator Harrison Chadwick used to appoint women, as recently as three years ago. She was one of them. This year, she agrees, present Moderator Raymond J. Kenney appointed women for the first time.

The selectmen have still not filled two vacancies for associate members of the Board of Appeals. They have received only four letters from residents interested in these two back-up seats.

It's too bad there aren't more persons interested in town government these days. It's becoming increasingly difficult to find qualified persons to fill voluntary posts on Winchester boards and committees. The selectmen will fill the vacancies May 14. From a field of four, that's almost no choice at all.

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

We would like to thank through you the following students for a program well planned for the youngsters in grades K-2.

The Easter egg hunt on Saturday, April 21, was well received and we hope to make it an annual event. Again, special thanks to Linda Cowles and the working staff of Jane Williams, Dawn Heidson, John Bennick, Sue Priou, Denise Redmond, Levy Darwin, Judy Dayton, Lou Willard and Vicky Hanes.

It should also be noted that the Winchester Auxiliary Fire Department once again assisted the department as it has many times upon request.

Albino Robin

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

On Friday, April 27, I saw an albino robin - a white robin - on the ground, in flight, and perched in a tree on Glen Green. What a thrill it was, when, after I had reported this at home, and picked up a couple of skeptics. They too were privileged to see him! Please report this sighting to The Audubon Society. I am told others have seen the bird and I would count it an honor to assist anybody in viewing the same.

Letters To The Editor

One-Man Rule

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

Town meeting New England style is the purest form of democracy in free government.

Any encroachment upon this basic form of people participation must be staunchly defended.

Last Thursday's town meeting has threatened our rights of self government and self determination as outlined in our town meeting law.

Chapter 167 Acts of 1928 Section 5 says, "All other articles in the Warrant for any town meeting shall be acted upon and determined exclusively by town meeting members at a meeting to be held—subject to referendum provided for by Section."

The moderator without permission of the members (and over our objections) arbitrarily and without basis in law or common usage permitted the School Committee to present a motion to change an already voted budget for its department, without first using the required rules of procedure—a vote for reconsideration (Town By-Law Article 1 Section 5).

The moderator after putting the motion then proceeded to further illegally, improperly and arbitrarily set bounds to that motion—limiting an amendment to his own determined figure of $70,000.

Moderators in Massachusetts have not allowed an appeal from their rulings on points of order. In this instance the moderator again did not permit an appeal. The rights and duties of all town meeting members was thus summarily and arbitrarily denied.

Representative town meeting was struck a killing blow. This must not be allowed or permitted to continue.

One-man government prevented us from voting on motions to amend the school budget that could have substantially benefited the taxpayer without any loss or impairment of the educational process.

I for one will use my efforts and ask others to join me to turn back this invasion of our rights.

There is one way by which we can effectively do this now—and that is to appeal to all of the citizens of the town by way of referendum. The school budget Article 4 Item 6.100 should go to referendum. This will not close the schools or stop education.

It will nullify the arbitrary limitation on debate and voting that occurred.

The selectmen will then call a special town meeting "to act upon and determine exclusively" (without obstruction of the moderator) a school budget as required by law.

The representative town meeting members are fully capable of discussing this budget and voting upon it in the best interest of all. We must resist dictatorship wherever and whenever it raises its ugly head.

To paraphrase Voltaire—I may not agree with your motions on the floor but I will fight to the death for your right to have it voted upon.

Disgusted With Committee Tactics

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

The annual town meeting has just adjourned and I am thoroughly disgusted and angry with the tactics used by the School Committee to limit the amount to be cut from the school budget due to St. Mary's remaining open in September.

Perhaps we erred in not checking with town counsel to see if this maneuver was legal. But I suggest that the School Committee also erred in its assumption that St. Mary's School was closing and included the cost of educating those students in the 1973-74 budget.

If a town meeting member got this information simply by asking the pastor, then perhaps our School Committee was negligent in not going to that source before setting up its budget. Therefore, when the budget was brought back for review, the risk of further cuts has to be faced.

This was not to be, when parliamentary procedure was used as a tool to set a limit of $70,000 as a maximum cut. The School Committee proposed a $57,000 decrease; Finance Committee was looking for $87,000 but then could seek only the $70,000 allowable under the moderator's ruling.

The reeling of a $70,000 decrease was reluctantly voted, but the vote to reconsider lost because most felt it was a hopeless cause. Had town meeting adjourned before the public announcement that St. Mary's school would continue, I question whether the School Committee would return anywhere near the $57,000 it originally proposed.

When a former School Committee member is ridiculed because she said she was "frustrated" by the limitations set by the moderator, then perhaps we should take another look at the direction we are heading. The whole purpose of town meeting is democracy in action.

When we are patronized and made to feel irresponsible because we differ with a board and are restricted from voting our convictions, then our objections should be loud and clear.

The School Department is not a "sacred cow" and must be able to face close scrutiny and criticism as all other town departments. Just because the school budget is so awesome, all the more reason town meeting members should not feel intimidated to challenge certain items in the budget.

The attitude seems to be that if we are interested, we could attend School Committee meetings to get information instead of asking questions on the floor. Perhaps this is so, but physically most of us cannot attend all the board meetings to get needed facts, just as we do not expect the School Committee to be up on the Planning Board, Board of Selectmen and Finance Committee activities.

I feel strongly that it is the responsibility of that committee to make fact sheets available sooner than a few days prior to budget discussion if they wish to narrow the credibility gap.

Of course the School Committee position is to seek the ultimate in education for our students, but if they are directed towards a goal that this town simply cannot continue to afford, then I maintain that we must re-evaluate our objectives and accept our limitations to provide this absolute condition.

Sarah R. Cincotta
Town Meeting Member

Parent Training

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

On April 22 in The Sunday Globe there appeared an article on parent effectiveness training, a course helping parents to "build bridges to better relationships with their children."

A year and a half ago I took this course and considered it to be of great value to me. I thought of writing a letter to The Winchester Star then, but the idea went the way of many good intentions. Seeing the article in The Globe gave me new incentive and I wanted to write to encourage others to think about taking this course.

In our group we had two guidance counselors, a psychiatrist, four business executives with their wives, and several single mothers and fathers. We learned a lot together and we laughed a lot too. We were all there because we cared, and we felt proud of ourselves and each other as we progressed in learning the skills involved.

Communication and interchange of ideas are of prime importance no matter what kind of life you lead or who is involved in it, but the people you love are sometimes those with whom communication can become most difficult; the use of reason and logic is essentially discontinued and emotion takes over.

In some homes there is constant strife and in others there is too much silence. But whatever the atmosphere in your home, it could be a happier place, couldn't it? I believe wholeheartedly that you would be glad you took this course. Isn't it worth a try?

If you'd like more information, you could call or send a card requesting a brochure to ETA Effectiveness Training Associates, 45 Chilter Rd, Weston, 02153. Classes are held in the spring and fall in various surrounding communities.

★ Enrichment

finance, industrial arts, languages, mathematics, physical education, science and social studies.

For examples, recently Paul and Mona Johnian incorporated social studies, art and music in a program taking children at the Lincoln School on a "tour of the world."

Johnian, a concert violinist, teacher and director of the Winchester Chamber Music Society, played brief selections from different foreign nations, while his wife, an artist, poet and lecturer, talked about the social aspects of the countries. This 25-minute program is scheduled to be repeated at Ambrose School on May 21.

Thus far the committee has brought many diverse programs to Winchester schools during and after school hours. Mini-courses have been held in some of the elementary schools to give children an opportunity to "Meet and Greet People of Winchester."

Over a two-month period the Parkhurst Parents' Association and the committee arranged to set aside the last hour on Fridays for mini-courses for fourth graders. Instructors were local people. The courses they taught were dramatics, ceramics, cooking, photography, chess, woodworking and music.

Plans are now being made to provide transportation for Winchester school children to attend Youth Symphony concerts in Boston, and the current dance programs in Winchester's schools met the goal to give every elementary school child an opportunity to witness an original ballet by Boston Conservatory of Music dance students.

Mrs. Catherine Fallon of the Enrichment Committee reports teachers are grateful for the motivation the programs are providing and "the contact with the real world outside."

Teacher comments on evaluation sheets submitted to the Enrichment Committee have shown they consider pupils are drawn to the "low pressure presentation" of some of the resource persons as they "tell about their backgrounds and how they became interested" in their chosen career fields.

Other comments regarding resource persons have been "highly knowledgeable and enthusiastic...his (the instructor's) program provided invaluable firsthand information.

"He (the instructor) included the children in his demonstration and had complete control of the group for an hour. Their normal attention span is not over 20 minutes."

(Instructor) was "extremely cooperative and generous of his time. He deserves at least a letter of thanks; it's unfortunate people of such high caliber cannot be reimbursed. Any age group would have enjoyed his slides of superior quality and beauty."

Reimbursement in monetary terms to resource panelists, according to Mrs. Fallon, comes in capturing the imaginations of young people, stretching their minds and pushing back walls for rooms full of young people. "They feel this is reward enough," she notes.

Tom Tracy Asks Parents To Pressure School Committee

Tom Tracy of the Winchester public school's art department called on the Enrichment Committee of Community School Association of Winchester at a recent planning meeting for support in offering greater variety and opportunity in fine arts and humanities to local students.

Addressing a group of parents representing each of the town's schools and dedicated to bringing more awareness of fine arts to local children, Tracy sat with folded hands showing traces of clay around his fingernails, his face firm and serious. "I have the support of the Winchester Art Association and I need you to help apply pressure to the School Department next year," he said.

"We don't project a great image in arts" in comparison to art programs in neighboring and distant cities and towns, he told the parents.

In the high school art department we have equivalent to two fulltime teachers in one large studio. He compared this to the art department in another town which has seven art teachers and several studios.

Tracy said Winchester is one of the few schools in the area not offering art history and humanities, noting he had hoped to expand the art program after the new high school was built but this has not become a reality. Tracy said the lack was not in the staff or their talent but in limited space and "no increase in operational budget."

Tracy pointed out that at the junior high level in grades 7 and 8 there is 100 percent participation in art programs. But when students are caught up in the academic network and required subjects and art is an elective they choose not to take art or are unable to take such courses. He told of a student who planned to major in art at the college level but in her freshman year was unable to take an art course because of the academic pressure.

Comparing the 17 percent participation of Winchester with other schools, Tracy said Melrose has about a 40 percent participation level; Stoneham 35 percent.

Tracy envisions Winchester's future art program as having a fulltime fellow organizing the total art program; schools open on Saturdays; summer programs for sculpture, drawing classes; greater space; and social studies programs that work toward a plan to involve art and humanities. "Music, industrial arts, home economics are just not enough," he said.

During the brief discussion that followed Tracy's remarks, parents who vocalized agreed to offer support and that money appeared to be the big problem. Addressing Tracy, one of the parents said, "You need to get the Finance Committee's kids in the art classes."

In conclusion the group followed Tracy from the science department where the meeting was held to the art room on the first floor of the high school where they witnessed students at work on sculpture, weaving and other art forms.

Rotary Auction Reaps $88 More Than Last Year

Last Saturday's Rotary auction at Town Hall, attended by more than 500 people, brought forth about $88 more than last year's auction, according to Rotary treasurer Bill Sullivan, who explains that it is too early to tell about net profits until expenses are tallied and deducted.

Judging from Rotary gifts to the community over the past three years, the auction probably earned well over $10,000, Sullivan reports, adding that the Winchester Rotary Club gifts last year amounted to $10,398; 1971, $10,792; and 1970, $9,039.

Beneficiaries of these gifts were Little League, Red Cross, Boy Scouts, Winchester Youth Hockey, Friends of Winchester Band, Winchester Hospital, Winchester Scholarship Foundation, Boys' Club of Woburn and the Mystic Valley Mental Health Assn. Rotary also funds the annual glaucoma clinic which will be held this spring under the guidance of Leo Boodakian.

Saturday's auction featured antiques that the Rotary Club has been gathering from donors during the past year. Donations are accepted at the Rotary Barn on Elmwood ave. (behind Card Marine) throughout the year and are readied and put aside for the spring auction, or are sold from the premises when the barn is open on Mondays from 7:30-9 p.m. or Saturday mornings between 10-12.

Besides the bid sale, the auction featured a bean supper and special tables offering donated books and flowers. According to Rotary member Arnold Gibson, the sales of flowers alone amounted to $143.

Rotary auctions have been going for 18-20 years. They were begun by Alfred Elliott on a small scale and have grown with each passing year, says Sullivan, who has been treasurer of the local group since 1961.

The Winchester Rotary Club has about 92 members. Arthur E. Rand is current president. Craig Wark served as auction chairman.

League To Discuss Use Of Open Land

The disappearance of open land with an expanding population is considered a major issue of the 70's by the League of Women Voters which will discuss in their unit meetings, May 8-10, the use of land in Winchester and in Massachusetts. The goals, priorities and alternatives necessary for effective land management also will be examined.

The meetings are scheduled as follows: May 8, 7:45 p.m. Hostess, Mrs. Frederick

When you add up payroll ($153,000,000), purchases ($44,000,000) and taxes ($35,000,000) you get $232,000,000. That's how much The Home-based Life Companies spent in this state last year.

Planning

Karen Sullivan Is Chairperson, Young Democrats

The newly formed Winchester Young Democrats elected town meeting member Karen Sullivan as their chairperson at a recent meeting. Others elected include Harold Leach Jr., vice-chairperson; Norman Doucette Jr., treasurer and Mary Rose Wilson, secretary. Robert Joyce and Kenneth Trevett were appointed co-chairmen of publicity.

At a recent meeting the group began plans for its first fund-raising activity, a teen dance on May 12 at the Town Hall from 8-11 p.m. A local group of musicians known as "Reddy Teddy" will be featured. They recently contracted with Mercury Records.

Guest speaker at the recent meeting was Sen. John W. Bullock who represents Winchester and surrounding communities at the State House. Bullock spoke about the workings of the Senate and some of its problems. The young Democrats questioned his views of Gov. Francis Sargent's plan of reorganization at the state level.

The group spent several hours writing and adopting a constitution to serve as guideline for political action in the community.

Miss Sullivan affirmed the group's intention to stimulate political awareness on significant local and state issues.

"We are not merely an organization of young people getting together to discuss current events. We want to reach all segments of the town population by playing an active role in elections and issue-oriented discussions," said Miss Sullivan.

"Now that we have completed the preliminaries of electing officers and adopting a constitution, we want to begin immediately to formulate worthwhile goals," she commented. Among the group's interest areas are registering of new voters, financing of candidates, filing legislation at the State House, and providing candidates' forums for discussion on stands on issues.

"We think the two-party system is still viable, and we want to make our presence felt by drawing attention to problems we can solve by good political organization," Miss Sullivan concluded.

The group has petitioned to become a local chapter of the Massachusetts Young Democrats. The chairperson expects the group to be officially chartered by the statewide organization in about one month.

While voting membership is limited to persons between 16-36, the Young Democrats will hold open meetings for all interested persons.

25 WHS Seniors In Honor Society

Twenty-five Winchester High School seniors were elected and inducted into the National Honor Society at WHS, a group exemplifying four characteristics established by the National Association of Secondary School Principals: scholarship, leadership, character and service. According to principal Vincent E. Larocco, election to this society is one of the highest awards a student can receive.

Those who were elected include: Laurel Abbott, Pamela Beck, Cathy Cook, Linda Cowles, David Demsey, Kathy Durant, Ellen Fairbanks, Lisa Fitzgerald, Mark Forte, Edward Fulton.

Diane Gustin, Vicki Hanes, Nancy Hilliard, Valerie Hobbs, Alison Holt, Wendy Irving, Susan Knight, Kathy Levinson, Paul Palmer.

And Edward Pierce, Elizabeth Roche, Claire Simeone, Robert Terzian, Phillip Toonajian, Peter Wakefield.

14 End Red Cross First Aid Course

Fourteen Winchester residents successfully completed the Red Cross Standard First Aid Course given by John O'Neill and James Boone, authorized first aid instructors, at the Winchester Red Cross Chapter House.

Those receiving certificates were: Robert Bird, Thomas Bird, Jane Browning, Ken Browning, Carol Friborg, Cynthia Kazanjian, Cara Lele, Rob Leppzer, Arlene Moreau, Myles Quail, Andre Saucier, Eleanor Saucier, James Spencer, and John J. Walsh.

Regional School Cited For Model

Northeast Metropolitan Regional Vocational School has been credited as having the model occupational safety and health program in the nation by the Massachusetts Department of Education and the U.S. Department of Labor. During the week of March 19, the first pilot program in occupational safety and health was conducted at Northeast in Wakefield. Gerard P. Donahoe is the local representative to the school.

The program was the third phase of an on-going dissemination process that is being coordinated with the U.S. Department of Labor by Robert DiCarlo, Office of Cooperative Education, Massachusetts

Department of Education, Division of Occupational Education.

Utilizing the data from the Occupational Safety and Health Program, conducted by Manuel Rainha, plumbing department head and occupational safety and health coordinator at Northeast, an innovative learning and certification process was provided to a select group of Massachusetts career educators, composed of administrators, department heads, department of education specialists, state college professors, and teachers.

Northeast's program, directed by Rainha under a federal grant, proved to be a unique concept to provide learners with O.S.H.A. certification and appropriate safety skills, attitudes, and knowledge.

The program was provided under a U.S. Department of Labor grant, and conducted by Systems Development Corp., Cheverly, Md., and according to DiCarlo saved the Commonwealth of Massachusetts approximately $30,000, since the only other way to get the program is to have every person fly out to Chicago with expenses for travel, lodging, and miscellaneous costs.

An important message to dog owners of Winchester from Dog Officer Dominic Molea: YOU MUST LICENSE YOUR DOG.

Licensing is for your own protection and for the protection of your dog. If he is lost he can be returned to you. Also you are protected since the owner of an unlicensed dog is liable for a $10 fine. So ... get down to the town hall and license your pet at once! The police chief concurs.

Most thinking people are aware of the burgeoning problem of the pet population explosion. Through Friends of Animals, Dominic Molea has applications for financial assistance in the spaying of your mixed-breed dog or cat, should the ordinary spaying fee present an insurmountable financial burden. Don't delay, the litter you prevent may be your own.

Hint for parents who are afraid of dogs: try hard not to communicate your fear to your children. Youngsters usually have an instinctive rapport with animals unless they have acquired a built-in fear from their parents. A child who isn't afraid of dogs is safer than one who is. Animals sense fear. The child who runs is the child who is chased.

Announcement was made after the society's spring meeting at the home of Mrs. Philip Woodward.

Mrs. Russell Strout, Finance Chairman, announces EnKa is also buying a saxophone for the Winchester high school band. Other appropriations are as follows: Boy Scout Troop 507, $250 to aid in the Aberjona River Clean Up; WHS music department, $600 to help defray the expenses of the spring exchange trip to New Jersey; Winchester Youth Soccer, $150; Winchester Cap League, $300. Mrs. Winthrop Knox, EnKa Exchange co-chairman, reports a successful year at the Exchange with business expected to become brisk during the spring.

Mrs. Charles Stebbins, Sunshine Street Fair chairman, reports plans for the fair, to be held May 18-19 in the parking lot across from the town hall, are well underway.

Homer Exhibit At Whitney

Eric Rudd of 29 Nelson St. is a free lance writer and devotee of the 19th century lithographer and painter Winslow Homer. As reported in a feature story recently in The Star, Rudd is following through on clues he thinks could link Winslow Homer to Dr. Charles Ellery Steadman, physician-artist. In a collaborated effort in producing a volume of lithographs titled "Mr. Hardy Lee; His Yacht, Being 24 Sketches on Stone by Chinks." The book depicts Boston manners of the mid-1850's and boating experiences. Rudd is presently working on a historical novel set in a New Hampshire city.

By Eric Rudd

If you don't choose to go into the bowels of New York City to enjoy what the Big Apple has to offer, and if you have an inclination to enjoy Winslow Homer now is the time. Most of the great Homer paintings you would have seen in local museums are in New York. At 75th St. and Madison Ave., the Whitney Museum is showing the first comprehensive exhibition of works by Winslow Homer to be held in 13 years.

Lloyd Goodrich, former director of the Whitney Museum and world's leading authority on Homer, has mounted a very impressive show. There are a few of the famous wood engravings from Harper's Weekly and Every Saturday. There are etchings and drawings; the famous oils (and some lesser known but equally brilliant ones) are all there: The Gulf Stream, Snap the Whip, On a Lee Shore, Eight Bells, Cannon Rock, the Artist's Studio at Prout's Neck, etc. From a highly personal point of view, the watercolors are the show's most important pieces. While John Canaday of The New York Times has dismissed the whole show in a colicky review as "pedestrian" and having "no surprises," it would be hard to ignore these impressionistic and absolutely breathtaking watercolors. Mostly done toward the end of his life, when his artistic powers were at their height, Homer's watercolors of the Bahamas and the Adirondacks, seem to breathe the air of those lost paradises. The colors are subtle, where subtlety is required, bright where only the brightest hues could reflect the artist's memory of a sunset or a tropical plant, or the impossible blue of a Caribbean sea. Impossible, that is except for Homer. For when you see these watercolors, if you have ever seen the real thing, you will think you are at the scene; and the little watercolors will surround you with the air and color of the real places.

Homer achieved a freedom of rendering and technique in his watercolors which will keep these gems alive and loved for centuries. After all, isn't that the test of great art? To speak to those who will come after us and say: here is what we were, where we were; how the most talented among us saw our planet and our lives.

Homer has certainly done it all. The exhibition will be at the Whitney until June 3. Then it moves on, minus some of the paintings, to the Los Angeles County Museum of Art. Then to the Art Institute of Chicago. Unless you plan to be in those areas later in the year, the Whitney would seem to be the best place for another look at Winslow Homer's work. For a dollar, you can't do better in New York this spring.

There is also a well-written catalogue by Lloyd Goodrich on sale at the museum. It will bring you up-to-date on Goodrich's scholarship as well as make a valuable addition to your library.

The one sour review of the show, by John Canaday, was tolerantly received by Goodrich, who told me, "John must have gotten up on the wrong side of bed" on the morning he wrote the review. The burden of the review was that, no matter how much of a reputation Homer has as America's greatest artist, there was nothing he had done that someone else had not done better! He (Canaday) mentioned Eakins and Eastman Johnson as contemporaries who were superior to Homer.

Well, Mr. Canaday, when we're all gone to dust, Homer's lyrical and great art will still be around to speak for itself. Of sing for itself.

WEPA Rep, Scouts Attend State House Arbor Day Program

Winchester Relay Team Fastest In State Meet

By John F. Parrell

Winchester's track team turned in the fastest time in the 440-yard relay of all the competing teams in the state relays held last Saturday.

They turned in a 44.4 second performance, just .1 second better than the top rated Brockton quartet headed by their super-star, DeLancey. Such a performance calls for each runner to cover the 100-yard dash distance in about 10 seconds flat. It is unusual to find so many speedsters on any one school team. Tony Guarente ran the leadoff leg and was followed in order by Bob Tonello, Steve Meahl and Dorion Wilson. Wakefield took second place. St. John's Prep was third and Winthrop finished fourth.

Winchester was tied for fifth in Division II, north, with Winthrop, as each chalked up 15 points. Besides taking top honors in the 440-yard relay, the Sachems were second in the shotput and 880-yard events and fifth in the high jump and shuttle hurdles. They might have won the 880-yard relay but for the fact that Dorion Wilson developed a temporary kink in his leg and he strode out his anchor spot rather than being able to go all out at top speed.

Such well spread scoring is possible this year because there is greater depth to the team due to increased numbers of candidates. In order to score in the running events, four better than average performers are necessary, while in the field events three good or better than average competitors are necessary.

The 880-yard relay was made up of the same runners as the 440-yard team, with the exception of third spot, where John Friborg replaced Meahl. The shuttle hurdles team was Friborg, Meahl, Labedz and Tilden; Tip Macdonald, Glenn Wright and Pat Lee took part in the shot put; and Rick Mullaney, Pete Tilden and Nate Biting were the high jumpers.

The dual meet with Melrose saw the Sachems turn in some very fine efforts, topped by Dorion Wilson's blazing sprinting. He turned in 9.8 for the 100-yard dash and 22.1 in the 220. Melrose had more balance, and came away with an 81-59 victory.

The summary:

Linksmen Lose

The Winchester High School golf team has played two matches and in both cases they came out on the short end. Coach Joe Averza's boys have been short on practice time because they have been waiting for the local course to be in tip-top shape. They were short handed for the Tanner match awaiting physical checks of two top ranked players.

Many of the other Middlesex League teams have courses available on which they can play almost at will. Melrose has the Mount Hood course, a municipal one, and has weekly challenge rounds to keep them sharp for the league contests.

Woburn defeated the Sachems by 6-3. Wayne Johnson won his match and Chuck Birchall also came out on top. He paired with Louis Franklin to take the team best ball match. This accounted for the Winchester scoring.

At Melrose, the Sachem team was right in contention entering the second nine holes, but a shot here and there along the way cost them the match by 6 1/2-2 1/2. Chuck Birchall was again a winner by 4 and 3. Jake Casey was edged at the end and lost 2 and 1. However, they took their team match. Kit Adams halved his individual match to account for the balance of the scoring.

Beacons Lose 6-0

The Winchester Beacons of the Boston Area Youth Soccer League competition suffered their first home game defeat of the season against two wins. A strong Needham team decisively defeated the Beacons, 6-0, in recent play.

From the first minute of the game the younger and less experienced Beacons were on the defensive against the precision passing and shooting of the Needham team.

This excellent Needham team has been playing together in various age-group competitions for the past five years. Last year they played in England against schoolboy teams and spent the winter in indoor practice.

Despite the one-sided loss the Winchester players did their best and never gave up.

Chris Morgan was one of the outstanding players on the field with his solid and decisive defensive play.

Forwards Dennis Collins, Errol Burke and Todd Cronin showed fine skills. As always George Casey and Tom Waite were the spirit of the team. The performance of the referee was less than marginal.

This coming Saturday the Beacons will travel to Wellesley for another very difficult game. Arpad von Lazar, Sean O'Reardon and Brian Flanagan are the coaches of the Beacons.

Twins Beat Braves In League Opener

Last Wednesday, under clear skies and ideal playing conditions Winchester Little League officially opened its 21st season. Little League president Jim Stewart handled the inaugural ceremonies at Ginn Field while state Little League director George Berardi and league vice-president Ed Sandford performed the same duties at West Side Field.

Throwing out the first ball at Ginn Field was Al LaPointe, sponsor of the Athletics Team in the Major American League while Ralph Bonnell Jr., sponsor of the Braves in the Major National League, and former vice-president of Little League Jim Beck handled the honors at West Side Field.

Stewart expressed his thanks to all participating in opening game festivities, saying that it takes many people volunteering their time to make the Little League baseball program viable.

In one of the season's openers over in the National Major League the Twins, managed by Peter Franchi, got off to a flying start by beating the Braves 10-3.

The Twins put it all together with good pitching, strong hitting and a solid defense. Standouts were Mark Aylward with two hits, one a booming triple in addition to nailing a runner at third base with a great throw from centerfield; Pat Fortin, with two fine defensive plays at the plate; Peter Franchi reaching base four times; plus the steady pitching of John Parsons and Bob Cook. Michael Musto stood out for the Braves in a losing cause.

In the American Minor League the Foxes, sponsored by D'Agostino's Delicatessen, got off on the right foot beating the Wolves by a score of 10-2. Going the route to pick up his first win of the year was Mark DeVellis, who gave up five hits while fanning 11. Offensive power was supplied by catcher Gary Stewart with two hits, including a home run. Playing a fine game for the Wolves, managed by Dick Parker, was Jeff Stackpole, who pitched well and chipped in offensively with two hits.

Astros Upset Woburn 4-1

Winchester's Astros had a decisive 4-1 win in soccer over Woburn on Sunday at MacDonald Field. Woburn scored the first goal at the two-minute mark, their only goal in the game.

Winchester tallied three times in the first half with goals by Jim Palermo at the 25 minute mark. At 31 minutes Fred Nelson, in his first game this season, scored from a corner kick when the ball was deflected into the net by a Woburn player. Two minutes later Paul Austin scored from a corner kick when the ball was deflected into the net by a Woburn player. Two minutes later Paul Austin scored. It was 3-1 at the end of the first 40 minutes. Wayne McNeill was Winchester's goalkeeper during the first half.

In the second half Woburn began to find the range on their opponents' goal. Rick Champa taking his turn in the Winchester net made several great saves. Both teams were pressing for a score, and at the 20 minute mark Winchester's center halfback Joe Amuzzini scored from 25 yards.

Winchester's forward Bernie Belcastro, Jim Palermo, Frank Gerardi, Fred Nelson and Brad Marks showed improved ball control although they were unable to capitalize on several breakaways. Halfbacks Amuzzini and Austin turned in another good performance.

Winchester now has two wins, one tie. Next Sunday they will travel to Topsfield.

Stickmen Trounce Ipswich 13 To 2

Coach Gene Bouley's Sachem lacrosse team got off to a slow start in its game with Ipswich, as the visitors netted a pair of first period goals. However, the early lead was quickly dissipated and Winchester coasted to an easy 13-2 victory.

Crease man Mike Sandford and Vin Palumbo led the Winchester attack with each tallying three goals. Midfielder Bill Doe and Rich Lougee had two goals apiece, while Pete Sandford, John Carzo and David Saliba added single markers.

Al Sampson was credited with three assists and John Carzo had two to set up the scoring situations. Chip Roche came off the bench in the first period to completely check Odell of Ipswich, a dangerous attack man, and kept the North Shore star scoreless for the balance of the game.

Umpire Clinics

The first of three planned umpire clinics was held recently with president James R. Stewart Jr. welcoming the 15 volunteers in attendance.

Frank Langone, chief umpire, Winchester senior league, who directed the clinic, covered basic fundamentals of umpiring. He said some are proper position on field, knowing ground rules at all fields, forcefulness in calling balls and strikes and keeping the game under control.

Langone stated that he hopes to conduct at least two more clinics before the season opens which will be held under game conditions.

Stewart concluded the meeting with the announcement that umpires this season will wear official shirts with emblems and caps. He thanked volunteers for their services in this "critical area" of satisfactory Little League baseball play—umpiring. It is not an easy job, but requires responsibility not only in the calling of games, but also in ones attitude and reliability in being at the games at the right time.

Capt. Liddell Officer Of Year

Capt. Robert J. Liddell, USA, deputy chief of the contract administration division at the Camden DCAS District, Defense Contract Administration Services Region, Philadelphia, received a certificate of achievement and plaque recently in recognition of being selected DCASR, Philadelphia's Junior Officer of the Year for 1972.

Sachems Drop Two One-Run Decisions

By John F. Parrell

It seems to be either a feast or a famine as far as Coach Bill Colella's baseball team is concerned. They belted out 13 hits for a total of 15 runs as they downed the Red Devils of Burlington, and then came up with an anemic two-hit attack against Reading as they lost 2-1 in recent action.

Wakefield came to Manchester Field and took a 3-2 game in which the home team mustered five hits while the visitors were limited to only three.

But in spite of the lack of consistent batting, the real reason for their 2-3 record entering this week lies in errors which came at inopportune moments and cost them the opener at Watertown, as well as the more recent clash with the Wakefield warriors. Their winning effort against Belmont and the seat squirmers against Reading were well played games.

Cocaptain Steve Johnson hurled the lopsided win over Burlington. He had a comparatively easy job as Winchester tallied four runs in each of the first three frames. His defense was porous at times, accounting for most of the Burlington scoring.

Five Sachems banged out two hits apiece as Mike Heffernan, co-captain Ned Keating, Gary Beard, Mike Siegfried and Wayne Dennis paced the attack. One of the latter's safeties was a home run to open the fourth inning and made the Winchester lead 13-2. Neither team set the world afire in the field. The Sachems were guilty of six miscues and the Devils had only one less.

After the Burlington victory, the Winchester record was 2-1. But the two one-run setbacks at the hands of the Rockets and Warriors made it read 2-3 as the weather man washed out the Friday game with the Lexington Minutemen. It was rescheduled for Tuesday afternoon.

Chuck Ross, ace of the Reading mound staff, held the Sachems to only two hits, with Mike Heffernan and co-captain Ned Keating getting them. Rudy Fiore was nearly as effective. He limited Reading to five hits. Twirler Ross proved to be a hitting pitcher as he collected three safe hits.

The winners picked up single runs in the second and third, and Mike Heffernan doubled and scored on a perfect squeeze bunt by Wayne Dennis in the fourth. Winchester threatened in the seventh and last inning, but Ross proved to be too much.

Then came the visit by Wakefield, which ended up 3-2 in favor of the Warriors. Co-captain Steve Johnson pitched another fine game for Winchester, but his three-hit performance was wasted. Two of the Warrior blows came in the sixth inning, and combined with a base on balls and a costly error they gave Wakefield three big runs. This was enough to wipe out the early Winchester margin of 2-0 and Wakefield moved into a first place tie with Melrose.

Both Johnson and Paul Canty, who started for the Warriors, had no-hit games going into the fourth inning. Tom Brennan got the first Sachem hit, a triple, on a long wallop to deep center field. He scored the first run on a sacrifice fly by Gary Beard.

Co-captain Ned Keating smashed a sharp single, and when the Warrior fielder misplayed it Keating went to second base. After a fly by Mike Heffernan, Keating went to third. He scored on a single by Albie Cordice.

This ended the Winchester scoring as Jim Furness came on in relief and survived a bases loaded-no out situation in the sixth. An attempted squeeze bunt failed and the rally died.

The seventh saw another Winchester threat fizzle as a runner went to second on a fly ball, and could not get back to first base before the throw. It was a disappointing end to a game that the Winchester team felt they should have won.

favored by some members.

Stephen R. Parkhurst, representing the School Committee, informed the group that as of 7 p.m. that evening an enrollment of 192 students were expected this fall at St. Mary's according to registrations conducted on Tuesday and Wednesday of last week. The School Committee had compiled its budget based upon the receipt of about 240 pupils from St. Mary's.

Parkhurst maintained that his committee "had taken out everything put in the budget for St. Mary's students, even a little bit more." He estimated that $350-400 per pupil had been subtracted.

When each committee was asked to describe how it had arrived at the two recommended reductions, Smith said the conflict rested in how many teachers to eliminate. The $12,175 difference between the $70,000 and the $57,825 is approximately one and one-half teachers.

Parkhurst stated that the school system could cut three elementary teachers and two junior high instructors, though this might be one too many. The Finance Committee recommended the elimination of six and one-half teachers. It also disputed the statement that all the money put into the budget for St. Mary's pupils had been subtracted.

If the School Committee felt the $70,000 cut was "too severe," Smith said, it had recourse to a special town meeting in June before the tax rate is set.

The suggestion was made that the reduction in the budget could be calculated by multiplying the number of students which the public system would lose to St. Mary's by the per pupil cost. Parkhurst countered that this was not valid because the students reporting to the parochial school in the fall were spread over the different grades and schools in the Winchester system.

TMMs granted the $70,000 cut shortly after Richard L. Sampson of Prec. 5 noted that the assembly was debating 1-10th of one percent of a $10 million budget.

Prec. 1's TMM Arthur J. Hewis Jr., who had earlier termed the School Committee's motion to amend rather than reconsider its budget "a pretty tricky move," proposed reconsideration at that time. The motion, which would have required a 2-3rds vote for passage of any sum, failed on a count of 45 to 107.

In final action, the meeting voted to take $350,000 from the reserve fund and tentatively set this year's tax increase at $3.41, making the tax rate $84.41. The assessors will set the final figure. The $3.41 increase includes 88 cents per thousand for a new Leonard Pool, subject of a special town meeting within the next month or two.

formation on the operation out of Mac-Donald's business location of another cab called Winchester Taxi Service.

Executive secretary Edward F. Donnelly said the two taxi businesses should either combine or form a partnership if they are going to have such similar names.

Boston Edison Co. plans to install high voltage lines on Cambridge and Pond streets and the Woburn parkway to improve electrical service in Winchester and surrounding towns. They would begin work on the two-mile Winchester section, which begins in Cambridge, in August.

Work would continue at the rate of 2,200 feet a day. The new lines would increase the Edison's assessed property valuation in Winchester by $120,000. Donnelly said the company would resurface Cambridge street at the conclusion of the work.

The town still has received no gas supplier. Highway Supt. Robert G. O'Brien said. He added that Brookline is now negotiating for a supply rather than going for bids. Donnelly said he thinks it's premature to begin negotiation. The town, which is not taxed on gasoline, pays about 14 cents a gallon.

The board directed O'Brien to continue seeking bids.

Celtics Win Third In Soccer Series

The Winchester Celtics soccer team (12-year-olds) notched its third consecutive win of the season with a 3-2 victory over a strong Needham team recently.

Playing on a windblown field, Winchester easily controlled the first half with goals coming from strong boots by John Barcus, Pat Fortin and Jim Oliver. Needham scored in the first period with a penalty kick.

The second half was quite a different story. Needham opened the scoring immediately with its second penalty goal. With the score now 3-2 and the wind at their back, Needham proceeded to play the entire second half in front of the Winchester goal area. It was only through the staunch defensive play led by halfbacks John Barcus, Jim Oliver and George Casey and fullbacks Jim Kehr, Jim Graffie and Jim Campbell and the superb goalkeeping by Pat Fortin, that Needham was denied another goal and victory was secured by the Winchester 11.

This win over Needham will set up the most important match of the season next week when Winchester meets undefeated Wellesley. The winner of this match will probably become the league champion, a position Wellesley has commanded for the past two years.

Girls Bury Watertown

The Sachemettes invaded Watertown for tennis and softball matches with the Ralderettes, and returned with easy victories. Although no official figures are available, it is reported that the home team won a very few tennis games as Winchester swept to an easy victory.

The softball result was even more lopsides, and mercy dictates that the exact score remain secret.

THE BEST ADVERTISING

Selling your house? Then your first thought will, no doubt, be advertising it. You may start by planting a "For Sale By Owner" sign in your front lawn. But will this be seen by enough or any prospective buyers?

Then newspaper advertising. This can become a more costly and less effective than you think it done improperly. It could even lead to over-exposure of the house to the point where, if you should decide later, to consult a Broker, good prospects already will have seen the property and, having failed to buy, will be harder to interest a second time.

The basic reason for advertising is to attract interested prospects who are ready, willing and financially able to buy. There's a more effective and faster way. The Broker has prospects already in the market for houses realistically priced. One of them may be looking for just such a house as yours.

If you have any questions on this subject or on any other aspect of Real Estate, please feel free to call or drop in at JAMES T. TREFREY, INC., REALTORS, 27 Waterfield Road, Winchester - Tel. 729-6100.

Jubilee Day is when all children who have received their first communion in the parish during the past year are formally presented by their parents as new and active parish members.

Rehearsal for the jubilee will be held May 10 at 3:30 p.m. Participating children should be accompanied by a parent or other adult to meet with Mrs. Scannell, religious education coordinator, in the upper church.

Duffy Is Named To Committee

Edward J. Duffy Jr., chairman of the board of the Suburban National Bank, has been named to the Bank Study Committee the Independent Bankers Assn. of America.

Duffy has been active in independent banking on a state and national level for the last several years.

He recently testified in Washington, D. C. before the Senate Subcommittee on Financial Institutions on behalf of the IBAA concerning the extension of interest control laws and N. O. W. accounts.

The IBAA has over 7,000 members throughout the nation and is comprised of independent, locally owned and operated banks.

Duffy filed a bill in this session of the Massachusetts legislature that requested a moratorium on acquisitions by bank holding companies in the Commonwealth because of their "threat to the continued existence of free enterprise, healthy competition, and independent banking" in Massachusetts. According to Duffy, IBAA is making an effort to prevent the banking industry "from falling into the hands of a few in this country."

Duffy is also president and founder of the Massachusetts Independent Bankers Association, Inc., an organization of Massachusetts independent banks. He is a resident of 21 Mayflower rd.

MV Assn. Meeting Is Set May 14

On May 14th officers, directors and members and friends of the Mystic Valley Mental Health Association and the Mystic Valley Area Board, staff and trustees, and members of the medical staff of Choate Memorial Hospital in Woburn will gather for the joint annual meeting of the Mystic Valley Mental Health Association and the Area Board at the Holiday Inn in Burlington. Mrs. Francis Sargent will speak.

At this meeting will be announced plans worked out jointly by board and staff members at both Choate and Mystic Valley for the start of in-patient psychiatric services at Choate Memorial Hospital, the opening date to be announced in the near future. The start of this in-patient service will increase the scope and range of psychiatric coverage for citizens in the five Mystic Valley Area Communities, and should decrease the communities' dependence on Metropolitan State Hospital.

Those attending the meeting will hear Mrs. Francis Sargent, who is not only the wife of the governor, but for a long time has been a strong advocate of more and better services to the emotionally ill and mentally retarded. She is a director of the Center Club in Boston, a social club for former hospital patients, and is now working closely with the Lindeman Center in an effort to match available jobs with people who have completed psychiatric treatment. ## Wedge Pond Cleanup Has Tune: 'Please Don't Filthify'

A day-long cleanup of the shoreline of Wedge Pond is scheduled for Saturday as a result of a well-attended meeting of abutters of the pond last week.

The cleanup, first in a series of activities by the newly formed group, is an effort to rid the shore of the increasing debris which is becoming a growing concern for not only those with homes abutting the pond, but for Winchester residents who use it for swimming, fishing and skating.

According to Richard Cooper of Wedge Pond road, chairman of the group, the activity of the Wedge Pond abutters has the enthusiastic support of the Winchester Environmental Protection Association.

"We are off to a great start in this effort and look forward to a large turnout of volunteers on May 5," said Cooper. He reported that the Winchester Highway Department will make dump trucks available for the cleanup and that the Water-Sewer and Recreation Departments will provide boats to facilitate the collection of the tons of bottles, cans and other rubbish that has accumulated on the shoreline of the pond.

Wedge Pond abutters and other volunteer help are being asked to assemble at the town beach at 9 a.m. on May 5, where they will be organized into groups to tackle the project.

All those participating in the project are asked to bring rakes, shovels, trash bags, gloves and other equipment.

Following the cleanup, the group will have a family picnic at 4:30 at the American Legion Hall on Vine street.

Cooper said a number of the Wedge Pond abutters met last week at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Guild to share their concern about the "steady deterioration of the pond" and to map plans for a sustained effort to rehabilitate it.

A feature of the meeting was a talk by William Wing of Winchester, who described the achievements of one local group in improving the conditions of Winter Pond.

Another highlight of the organizational meeting was a group sing of a tune composed especially for the occasion by Henry Flits, of Grassmere avenue, entitled, "Please Don't Filthify!" Drawings depicting the condition and future of Wedge Pond were displayed at the meeting by Vernon Amos.

We are extremely pleased at the initial response of townspeople to our request for help," said Chairman Cooper. "A number of abutters, including the owners of the Professional Building, have already made financial contributions to help defray the cost of the picnic for the workers."

"If we can sustain this interest, I am sure that with proper planning and hard work our group can help significantly in restoring Wedge Pond to its former state of attractiveness and usefulness for the entire town."

He pointed out that many volunteers are needed for the May 5 cleanup and invited all those interested to report at 9 a.m. at the town beach. In the event of rain, the cleanup will be held on May 12.

Legislators Differ On Reorg

Chadwick Says Dems Obstruct

The Winchester representative district continues to remain intact as the Massachusetts House advances legislation redistricting the state.

On Monday the House initially approved a plan on a 196-30 vote realigning 187 representative districts. Winchester is not touched under the proposal. The Senate has approved the bill.

Winchester's sole representative, Harrison Chadwick (R), has said that the town's population of 23,000 is close to the new representative district population norm of 22,800.

Reorganization

Rep. Chadwick, in an interview with The Star, accused the Democrats in the legislature of "playing a lot of politics with reorganization." He called reorganization "an absolute necessity because the executive branch is completely unmanageable the way it is organized now. It's a patchwork quilt."

"This is the tragedy of a one-party system in the legislature. They (Democrats) know they can do anything to reorganization they want to. I'm glad to say the House leadership wants some constructive reorganization before the session is finished."

"But many of the majority party members have yet to fall in line. There is always resistance when you try to do something new and in a situation as big as this one there is a hesitancy about tackling it because it's almost too encompassing for any one person to understand thoroughly."

Asked about charges made in Winchester recently by Rep. George Sacco (D-Medford) that the reorganization bill is replete with errors, Chadwick called Sacco's figure of 1,000 errors "excessive" and said:

"There might be a lot of things Rep. Sacco disagrees with. But that doesn't necessarily make them wrong. I don't think for a moment the governor has submitted a perfect piece of legislation. The governor doesn't either."

Chadwick expects reorganization "in some form" will get through the legislature this year. "I'm sure Gov. Sargent won't get everything he wants this year," Chadwick said the Democrats are sure to make enough changes so Sargent won't be able to claim reorganization as his own.

"The Democrats should remember they have given their tacit approval to reorganization. They voted to set up the 10 departments in a cabinet-type government and appropriated the money to implement that legislation."

Chadwick thinks passage of basic changes will result in "an infinitely more workable" form of government and improvements can be made in subsequent years. Chadwick doesn't expect floor debate on the bill to begin until late summer.

On another issue, Chadwick defended his vote in favor of repealing the state's racial imbalance law because the present law is "unworkable. We need to take another look at it. The time has come to separate the practical from the theoretical."

He said the present law is opposed by blacks as well as whites who oppose sending their children out of neighborhood schools. He said it's illogical to bus children many miles away when they live close to a school.

"We're not involved in a question of segregated schools as in the south. No one is trying to keep black children out of white schools. I have been a strong advocate of civil

Sargent Target Of Sacco Blast

Rep. George L. Sacco Jr. (D-Medford) blasted Gov. Francis W. Sargent's reorganization plan and some of the governor's cabinet appointments in a speech here recently before the League of Women Voters.

Sacco, who expects to be a candidate for attorney general, said Massachusetts is "financially bankrupt," with waste, duplication and poor leadership rampant.

He cited the appointment of a man in the Youth Services Department who was paid $28,000 a year "and never showed up for six months." "How do you get one of those jobs?" he was asked.

"I guess you buy tickets to the governor's testimonial," the 10-year member of the House replied.

Saying he agrees with reorganization in concept, Sacco was critical of the governor's attempts to "rush it through. It is of such import that it will be the destiny of the state for the next 50 years."

Yet, he said, the bill creating reorganization was not available until 10 days ago and "no one in the state — not one person — can tell you what's in that bill." Already the legislative leadership has found 1,000 technical errors in the bill, he said.

Sacco favors combining such agencies as the MBTA, Turnpike Authority and Massport "so there is one sensible agency." Of the MDC, he said there are 160 officers out of the Medford station "and all they do is patrol the Fellowship and the Mystic Valley parkway."

He accused Sargent of attempting to create reorganization by press release and said what's really needed is "technological and scientific input" to streamline government.

He was highly critical of a number of Sargent's cabinet appointments. On John Boone, head of the Corrections Department: "He will have bloodshed in the halls of Walpole with his permissiveness."

Of Peter Goldmark of Human Services: "His previous experience was as an aide to Mayor Lindsey." Sacco said Goldmark's father "owns CBS. That might help." There are 40 deputies under Goldmark, Sacco said, "all earning over $20,000."

He said so many of the halfway houses for youthful offenders have been closed for lack of money that the youths are being sent "back to the streets with no rehabilitation. Who cares?"

The former Medford school committee member (elected when he was 21) touched on a number of subjects during his nighttime talk at Crawford Memorial Methodist Church.

"I never thought I'd see the day when I support the House cut. But I do. Things have gone so radically wrong," He called the state Senate a "graveyard of legislation" and said it should be abolished.

"The legislature passes a lot of bills — like the school lunch program — 'but doesn't say how much it will cost.'"

"The welfare budget of $1 billion represented half of the state's entire budget last year."

"Massachusetts' commissioners 'could care less what's in their budgets.' They ignore budgets and say the legislature will appropriate the money they spend. 'And we will. We pay our debts.'"

Sacco said he feels he should now "either move on or out" and won't run for reelection to the House.

He had high praise for Winchester's Rep. Harrison Chadwick attending the luncheon. Sacco's wife is from Winchester.

First Charter Public Hearing June 13; Special Town Meeting Same Month

June 13 is the date set for the first public meeting on whether Winchester should create a charter commission to recommend possible changes in the structure of the town government and a possible date of June 21 set for the start of a special town meeting on the new Leonard Pool.

The Town Government Study Committee — a town meeting-appointed group — hopes that all town persons interested in a charter commission pro or con will attend. Chairman Robert J. Grenzeback told the Board of Selectmen at its weekly meeting Monday that 39 communities in Massachusetts "have gone the charter route" and 50 percent of those towns have accepted commission-recommended changes.

He said TGSC is looking toward a balanced program of speakers June 13, including persons from communities which have accepted charter changes and from those which have rejected them. "We're not trying to sell anyone a bill of goods."

TGSC will meet with the Board of Selectmen May 24 to clue the selectmen in on some of the committee's interests. TGSC hopes for selectmen support at least for a public forum for the June 13 meeting. The selectmen generally have been antagonistic toward a charter commission's revamping the structure of Winchester government.

The selectmen Monday heard from Sherman W. Saltmarsh Jr., chairman of the Leonard Pool Study Committee, that an ideal date for a special town meeting on the Leonard Pool appropriation request would be June 28.

"We'd like to see the bulk of the pool done in the summer," Saltmarsh stated. He sees the cost in "the vicinity of $200,000."

Selectman Lawrence T. Smith: "I would hope the cost would be well under the $200,000" and said if the special town meeting doesn't approve the appropriation the money should be used to reduce the tax rate.

Saltmarsh said the pool is intended to meet the recreational needs of the north part of town, rather than olympic requirements, but "we won't rule out all types of meets."

Selectman Vito Giarrizzo emphasized that Leonard Pool is intended to replace an existing, though dried up, natural bathing area and "too many people have missed the point that it's not an olympic pool."

The board interviewed five candidates for appointment to the Recreation Committee: John W. Noble Jr., Nicholas F. Troiano, Howard R. Goodrow, Robert P. Joyce and James S. Beck. A sixth, Dr. Philip Richardson, withdrew his name and appealed for consolidation of the Park and Recreation departments.

"We're the only town in the immediate area that has a separate recreation department," he said.

In a letter to the board, the Recreation Committee said it was endorsing no candidate.

The board approved awarding Mack Truck Co. the bid for a new ladder truck of $84,000 and Bonnell Motors and Providence Body a combination for a rescue truck of $18,000.

The Planning Board informed the selectmen it intends to have its zoning recommendations available before the end of the month and will hold informal meetings with town meeting members in June. Sept. 17 is the date for a public hearing on the proposal.

Selectman Smith expressed a desire to exclude any "map changes" from the special town meeting.

A lengthy closed session was held with town treasurer Marguerite Troop. Selectman chairman Arthur E. Dunbar didn't announce any specific reason for the closed session. It is believed the session dealt with procedures in Troop's office.

The rink did get one offer, six months ago, "but it was not good enough to accept."

Emergency Called Over Gas Shortage

A state of emergency has existed in Winchester since last Thursday when the Board of Selectmen took action to allow it to negotiate for purchase of gasoline.

The town's supply runs out at the end of the month and with no supplier willing to provide the town with gasoline Winchester is faced with the possibility of curtailing use of town vehicles.

Of particular concern to the board is the mobility of fire and police vehicles. Police Chief Edward F. Bowler is considering removing officers from cruisers and placing them on foot patrol.

The emergency is the result of a nationwide gasoline shortage, which is either real or an artificial one created by the major gasoline suppliers.

Why the shortage has hit Winchester before other Metropolitan Boston communities is because this town's contract runs out May 17. Town officials had believed the contract extended through July 17.

But town supplier Gulf Oil Co. told town officials this week that because it agreed last year to deliver gasoline at a lower price two months earlier than the contract stipulated the company could end its contract two months earlier this year.

Selectmen chairman Arthur E. Dunbar said Gulf's last delivery will be May 17 and "providing we have a full tank at that time it would last us another two to three weeks."

Dunbar said he wasn't really fearful the town was endangered since it can always buy gasoline at commercial prices — three times higher in price than the tax-free town-bid gasoline — and because the town may find another supplier shortly.

Dunbar said a special four-man gasoline emergency committee of himself, Bowler, Fire Chief L. Francis Amico and Highway Superintendent Robert G. O'Brien is now negotiating with a supplier.

"At a good price increase," Dunbar added. "This shakes me a bit." But the newly elected chairman of the board said the town's reserve fund is sufficient to cover the $10,000 to $15,000 price increase. "These are the things the reserve fund is for."

A state of emergency allows the emergency committee to negotiate purchase of gasoline rather than purchasing it through the normal legally required channels of bidding.

O'Brien has contacted 14 major gasoline suppliers. Not only won't they negotiate with Winchester; they won't even offer to submit bids on supplying the town.

Dunbar said every town department has been asked to conserve gasoline by cutting down the use of road time on their vehicles.

The board, meanwhile, has petitioned President Nixon, Gov. Sargent and the Massachusetts Congressional delegation to correct the situation.

The board is asking that these political leaders investigate the cause of the shortage and establish a program to meet the "real needs of the public."

Brookline, which purchases gasoline with several communities in its area, also declared a state of emergency to allow it to negotiate for supplies.

"The shortage is not affecting all communities at the same time," said selectmen executive secretary Edward F. Donnelly. "Ours just happened to be expiring at this particular time. 'We've called other communities. Some have contracted to the end of August.' They're not as concerned as much as we are."

Donnelly said Brookline was successful in its negotiation but has to pay 1 cents more a gallon.

Man Is Committed For Observation Prior To Trial

A 27-year-old local man will undergo 35 days observation at Bridgewater State Hospital to determine if he is capable of standing trial on a charge of assault and battery with a dangerous weapon.

He was released Saturday morning from Winchester Hospital after completing treatment for self-inflicted wounds to his wrists and throat with a razor blade.

According to Lt. William T. Haggerty of the Winchester Police Department, Roger O'Sullivan of 433 Washington st. appeared in Woburn District Court on a charge stemming from a May 2 incident in which he is alleged to have hit his wife, Maureen O'Sullivan, over the head with a vase.

The couple was taken to the hospital by police answering a call at 6:15 that morning. Mrs. O'Sullivan was released from medical care the following day. Her husband was under police guard during his stay.

Police note that the incident is a criminal matter and complaint is not being pressed by his wife.

Wounded Knee 'Conspirator': 'Is It A Crime To Give Food To Starving?'

A 25-year-old Winchester man arrested last week in connection with the air drop of supplies in Wounded Knee, S.D., opened an interview with The Star Tuesday with two comments:

He has never been to Wounded Knee (in fact, he has never been to the mid-west); and he feels that giving food to starving persons is not a crime.

Larry L. Levin of 17 Lakeview rd. was arrested by the FBI last week after he surrendered in Boston. What he did do — and he was hesitant to be specific because the FBI could use material from the interview against him — was to ask friends to help out the barricaded Indians by sending money for food.

The interview was conducted from the Cambridge office of Medical Aid to Indochina, a voluntary effort to send medical supplies to bombed areas of Indochina. Levin has worked there since he came to Boston at the beginning of the year. Since his arrest he has been on leave from Medical Aid.

One of his co-workers, William B. Zimmerman, is among the seven "co-conspirators" named in the FBI complaint charging violation of the federal anti-riot law and conspiracy.

The volunteer lawyers who will be defending the seven estimate cost of the case at $100,000. The unpaid lawyers will be challenging the constitutionality of the federal anti-riot act, as yet untested in the federal Supreme Court, Levin said.

Levin appears May 18 at a probable cause hearing before a U.S. magistrate in Boston when the federal government presents evidence intended to prove he should be extradited to South Dakota for further hearings and trial.

If a grand jury sitting in South Dakota, meanwhile, issues an indictment against him, the probable cause hearing would not take place and he would immediately face the grand jury.

Levin, however, feels that because the government has such "fragile evidence" the FBI "will probably try for the grand jury so they don't have to face (the arguments) of an open court."

Several times during the brief interview Levin said he feels his arrest is not the central issue. The conditions of Indians in this country is what really disturbs him and, in particular, what is happening at Pine Ridge

Reservation, the location of Wounded Knee.

He compared the issues with the American Revolution, when one side was attempting to maintain the status quo and the other to correct injustices. There is 50 percent unemployment at Pine Ridge, only nine percent of the homes have electricity, less than half indoor plumbing or running water, "which is typical of reservations around the country," he said.

"The government makes it sound like Indians are fighting Indians at Wounded Knee," he said. There are a couple of dozen Indian vigilantes who stopped the food from going in, Levin said. And these Indians were in the employ of the government.

What is needed there is a new election of tribal leaders to oust corrupt leaders, a federal assessment of Bureau of Indian Affairs policies, an audit of the books of the tribal council and most of all:

"Everyone has a personal responsibility to assist these people. Whether they are in Vietnam, Mississippi or Wounded Knee."

Levin has been attempting to assist such persons since the 1960s, when he got involved in the civil rights movement in the south. He worked in the campaign of Robert Kennedy and California Senator John V. Tunney, free lanced for the Village Voice, "spent a lot of time in Ireland for Pacifica Radio during the last three years" and during the last national election was director of the Indochina Peace Campaign, which he described as a national educational effort to infuse the campaign with an awareness of the Indochina war by arranging for anti-war speakers such as Jane Fonda and Howard Zinn to speak to community groups.

J. Gibson Addresses Educators

John S. Gibson of 20 Cabot st., director of the Lincoln Filene Center, Tufts University, addressed the state department of education annual administrator's conference in Hyannis recently.

Talking on the Flexible Campus Program, affecting over 7,000 students in Boston Public Schools, Gibson said the program, which offers on-and-off-campus alternatives to students has "proven that the community as a classroom concept is a viable, effective and low-cost way of meeting educational needs of all students."

Satan, the canine member of the Winchester Police Department, used primarily in connection with the burglary project, was admired at a recent K-9 demonstration by students at the Ambrose School, and particularly by

Fire Prevented By Clean House

The watchword for Spring Clean-Up time in Winchester is "A clean house seldom burns."

It's just as true that a clean stove or furnace seldom burns up the house.

Fire Chief I. Francis Amico reports that "dirty and defective heating and cooking equipment" is among the top causes of all fires, according to National Fire Protection Association records.

"So while we are cleaning up our homes to help make them fire safe, let's be sure to include a thorough cleaning and check-up of stoves, furnaces, portable heaters and chimneys," Chief Amico urges.

Now is an ideal time to have heating equipment serviced and repaired, he points out, before the first cold snap of next fall puts it back to work. It could be time to check that chimney, too - a clean, tight one means fuel savings, as well as fire safety. If one has an exhaust fan and duct over his stove in the kitchen, how long since it has had the greasy residue cleaned from it?

Above all, make sure that any portable heaters one has are cleaned, in sound working condition and comply with all safety standards before putting them away for the season or getting them ready for summer camp use. A dirty defective one is as dangerous a thing as one could bring into the home.

Referendum Effort Fails

The referendum move to place the school budget on the ballot has failed for a lack of persons interested in circulating petitions to obtain the necessary names, according to one of the men who originated the effort.

Arthur J. Hewis Jr. said: "Three of us with the help of two personal friends did obtain over 300 names and could easily have obtained a safe margin of 500 by the deadline of 5 p.m. Friday. But as co-ordinator I would not have these sincere people continue to bear the brunt of the work load."

"It was a decision made reluctantly. But the nine political leaders were the same T.M.M.'s who were rebuffed illegally and improperly by the moderator and the legal counselors, Judge Mullen and Attorney and School Committee Member Lane McGovern."

Town meeting member Hewis' reference is to Moderator Raymond J. Kenney's ruling at town meeting that the school budget could not be cut more than $70,000. This came after the School Committee moved for a budget cut of $57,000 to reflect the continuation of St. Mary's School.

In a statement, Hewis continued: "We wish to thank those sincere people who did work and the signers who did want relief from an arbitrary School Committee and archaic laws that chain the taxpayer to increasing burdens without due process."

"When these nine 'chickened out' it was evident that serious legal complications would be used that would further tax the public. The School Committee and its supporters could seek a taxpayers suit on the basis this town was not providing funds for education and the court would order the town to appropriate the $10 million plus and assess a substantial fine (well over $1 million) that could be spent by the School Committee for any purpose or whim."

"My personal objective to reduce the budget had been presented to the chairman, Mrs. Mary Mears and to town counsel. It was reported to me by these two officials that it was illegal and could not be acted upon."

"Even when I repeatedly requested a meeting to overcome the so-called illegal aspects, I was rebuffed, denied an opportunity that would have definitely reduced this year's appropriation by $700,000."

"It is reported, and rightly so, now by School Committeeman Stephen Parkhurst that my suggestion was adopted by other towns."

"The taxpayer could and should have had this $3 plus relief."

"It is no wonder to me why citizens do not want to serve in town meeting. Most of those now serving (?) do not have the courage of their convictions or the strength and determination to fulfill the requirements of such a simple oath of office called for in the town meeting law - 'To act and determine exclusively all matters contained in the warrant.' These small people are leading us all into commiserable-type of government."

'To Succeed Or Fail'—But How?

A committee of Winchester High School teachers is being asked to rewrite two sentences in its document on philosophies and objectives of the school in preparation for a fall evaluation of WHS.

What those two sentences are the superintendent's office won't reveal.

But they apparently revolve around students' "freedom to succeed or fail." The School Committee at a recent meeting professed agreement with the intent of the two sentences but they don't like the wording, whatever it is.

WHS Principal Vincent E. Larocco explained that each institution undergoing periodic evaluation for accreditation prepared its own statement of objectives and philosophies against which the evaluating committee will judge the school's actual success. The document is to be compiled from thoughts of the teaching staff.

Fellow School Committee members echoed Stephen R. Parkhurst's concern that the present wording of the two sentences, which ended a lengthy statement on all efforts made to promote a student's success, might suggest that school officials are giving pupils "carte blanche to succeed or fail, while everything just keeps going merrily on."

Mrs. Mary A. Mears, committee chairman, summed up their feelings by saying that both teachers and committeemen understood and agreed with the philosophy, but that the present wording might be misconstrued by residents and parents.

Jonathan A. Stableford, an English teacher at the high school and member of the philosophies committee, stated that the thought recognized a student's own "right" or "opportunity" to succeed or fail after all precautions had been taken by the faculty to prevent this. The built-in practices (warning, etc.) against this were noted. Larocco also denied that students were "being thrown to the wolves."

Election of Curriculum Council members for 1973-1974 was approved. The following will serve: English - Theodore A. Benton, McCall Junior High, Mrs. Margaret M. Matson, Ambrose and Phyllis Roberts, Washington; and

Foreign Languages - Francesco Castellano, Lynch Junior High and Elaine L. Roy, McCall; Mathematics - Mrs. Janet M. Greeno, Wyman, George C. Greer, Vinson-Owen and Donald J. Stangel, Lynch; Science - Mrs. Ruth L. Graham, Parkhurst, John A. Limongiello, McCall and James J. Perry, Washington; and Social Studies - Mrs. Marjorie J. Berger, Washington, Anne A. Marshall, Muraco and Robert N. von Klock, Lynch.

A course on values to be offered under the auspices of the Winchester Ecumenical Association in the adult education program was approved. The School Committee agreed that listing in the brochure and classroom space was the extent to which it should become involved in a question of violation of the First Amendment among residents.

The course, as described in March by the Rev. Msgr. Joseph W. Lyons of St. Eulalia's Parish, representing the WEA, would be divided into three parts, family life, values clarifications and discussion of the Bible. Emphasis would be on family life.

Walter P. Gleason, assistant superintendent of curriculum and instruction, said that he had received verbal assurance from Town Counsel that legal suit could not be brought against the committee. However, the WEA will be patron of the course and handle its own treasury.

Entries Studied At Two Locations

Careful removal of panes of glass at a Thompson street business and at the Unitarian Church was the method of entry in breaking and enterings at these locations recently.

It was unknown last Thursday if anything was missing from Winchester Jewelers, 35 Thompson St. Access was gained to the front window display only.

At the Unitarian Church the intruder (s) broke into one office and took the keys to a second office from which about $31 in petty cash was stolen.

Report of larcenies to local police included the loss of bicycles from a Central street garage, municipal parking lot and Alden lane. Gas caps from an automobile stationed on Lewis road and those on five Post Office trucks and two "Keep Off Grass" signs at the Post Office were also taken. Three lengths of garden hose were missing from a Sheffield road property.

Aging Group Will Consider Future

The Committee for a Winchester Council on Aging will meet at 9:30 a.m. on May 16 in the Alliance Room of the Unitarian Church to consider the future of the Committee and its projects, and the election of an interim steering committee.

With the passage at the 1973 Town Meeting of its bid for a permanently appointed Town Council on Aging, along with the allocation of funds for a part-time director, the committee must now consider its future activities.

One of its immediate concerns is the passage of House Bill No. 6070 which is designed to enlarge the scope of the State Department of Elder Affairs, and give it permanence. Interested townspeople joined a delegation to Gardiner Auditorium recently to attend the State House hearing on Reorganization of the Office of Elder Affairs.

Building Permits

Four building permits were issued during the week ending April 27 by the town of Winchester as follows:

Two permits were for new dwellings: 8 Russell lane and 80 Arlington st. Two permits were for alterations: 57 Swan rd. and 15 Wickham rd.

Birds In Town

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

I was so pleased to read that Arthur Johns had the exquisite pleasure of observing an albino robin (Star, May 3). And I feel I must report sighting several yellow bellied sapsuckers in the vicinity of the high school auditorium on Thursday, April 26.

I did not consider this sighting an "exquisite pleasure" but rather commonplace, since "it happens every spring."

Clara M. Hewis

EDITOR'S NOTE: Town meeting meets in the high school auditorium.

Star Editorial Unjustified; Stop Policy Of Attack

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

Your editorial attack on the School Committee in its decision to tear down the McManus House was unjustified. The site is not only badly needed for a playground for the McCall School, but the building is inadequate in every way for assembly and recreation for the elderly or anyone else.

The Winchester Art Association held meetings in the McManus House two years ago to discuss and appraise its use as a temporary art center. As an architect, I was particularly interested in this possibility.

However, we noted that the small rooms, central stairway and chimneys, and residential construction made conversion to an art center impracticable. The elderly, as well as the Art Association, deserve a better building.

Now, the elderly have the same available assembly, hobby, and recreation space as everyone else; that is to say, not much.

It is time for interested citizens to further consider the Lincoln School as a recreation center, which could include use by the elderly, art and craft classes and exhibits, and functions for which others may feel there is insufficient space. It is also time for The Winchester Star to stop its policy of attack by innuendo and name-calling of various town committees, and to work for more positive community goals.

Hard Work, Pride

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

WOW! What a job was done by the Wedge Pond volunteers last Saturday, May 5, a cold, raw day. You all are to be congratulated on both your hard work and pride. Thank you.

Susan Guild

Support Appreciated

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

I want to thank all the people who supported me in my efforts to obtain the McManus House for a senior citizen clubhouse.

Also, sincere thanks go to the 80 people who signed the petition so willingly, and so hopefully, when only 10 certified names were required.

Then too, I am grateful for the numerous phone calls I received from people of all walks of life who severely criticized the deplorable action taken by the School Committee.

Easter Egg Hunt Coverage Deficient

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

The religious education committee of the First Congregational Church has asked me to write to convey their reactions to the deficient Star coverage of the volunteer effort behind the recent Easter egg hunt.

The committee responsibility includes Forum as one of many groups within the church. Forum is a youth-operated program with many facets—including service. Forum was in fact the organization which initiated and carried out the egg hunt.

They saw this as one way to serve the young set in Winchester in the same way cleaning up and painting the Wedgemere Station was an effort of Forum to serve the elders. These are but two of the group's service efforts this year.

The committee was dismayed that your reporter failed to acknowledge at all that any of the town's voluntary organizations had carried the ball.

The Recreation Department was supportive of the Forum effort and provided money for the eggs and prizes. They also coordinated with the other town departments as was necessary. It was the volunteer effort that got the program rolling and carried it off.

The committee wants it clear that we are not overly concerned about the ego satisfaction of a good press. We are concerned that The Star fails to serve the town well when volunteer activities are ignored. One way to encourage volunteers is to acknowledge their involvement. We also feel that this is also good reporting.

Incidentally, Forum reports 20 dozen eggs weren't half enough and the cooking coloring process can be easily expanded to handle more eggs next year.

Charles D. Friou, Chairman
Religious Education Committee
First Congregational Church

Wildwood Cemetery

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

I would like to take this opportunity to thank the Cemetery Commission for the splendid work they have done to beautify the entrance of Wildwood Cemetery. The plantings on both sides of the stone wall at the entrance certainly are a great improvement and a thing of lasting beauty.

The lawn around the lovely new memorial monument has been protected by a new underground sprinkler system as well as the area at the entrance. Special praise should be given to Maurice Freeman, a member of the commission, for his vision and foresight and particularly in seeing that this work was done.

The Cemetery Commission plans to continue to beautify the entire cemetery in the future when funds are made available to them.

We owe these dedicated and loyal men over the many years our sincere appreciation.

More Trees, Please

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

I would like to call attention to the Woburn Annex — that section of Main street in Winchester from Cross street to the Winchester Station which is virtually indistinguishable from Main street, Woburn.

If trees were planted along the sidewalks, as is now done in Lexington, Arlington Center and Massachusetts avenue, Cambridge, the general tone of the area would be lifted considerably.

I believe merchants deserve trees and all of Winchester would enjoy them.

Town Spared Second Railroad

By Clarence Borggaard

I suppose everybody in Winchester knows that the Boston and Maine railroad still runs through the center of town; but this is not nearly as evident today as it was a few years ago when all pedestrian and vehicular traffic stopped dead in the center of town every few minutes to let trains go by. And they went by much more frequently than now.

But I wonder how many people in town know that we almost had a second railroad. Who needs a second viaduct to cut the town in quarters?

I read about this railroad years ago. I cannot remember in which library or the title or author. However, in my rambles around town since then I have spotted several vestiges of its presence. They are indeed meager and fragmentary but there can be no doubt what they indicate—an intended second railroad through the town.

From what I recall of the story no rails were ever put down. I believe the plans were aborted under litigation. The Boston and Maine (then the Boston and Lowell) got its rails down first and then sued to prevent infringement on its right-of-way. It prevailed in court and the second road was prevented.

I suspect the only ones hurt by this fiasco were the investors. A lot of suckers got trimmed by railroad promotions in those days. Then, as now, the promoters probably made out all right. They got theirs. In this respect, there is nothing new under the sun. Ponzi, Billie Sol Estey, Cornfield, Vesco, et al.

I am sure there must be many people here in town who know more about this aborted railroad than I do—and I would treasure any information they could give me.

In the meantime, for anyone interested, I suggest he take a good look at Winter Pond—first at the map and then at the pond itself. The map will show that Winter Pond is almost "pinched off" in two places, that it is, in reality, not one pond but three (originally four) ponds, with two esker-like causeways reaching out into the water from both the north and the south sides.

They almost but not quite touch each other to keep each pond separate from its neighbor. The causeway separating the most easterly pond has been bridged at the center and Woodside road laid across that bridge.

It is the other causeway, west of Woodside road, that interests us. This is where the projected railroad was to cross Winter Pond. It was never finished, from what I understand; but the roadbed leading to it was well on its way to completion and can still be seen.

Look for it on the left hand side of the Woburn parkway running along the western side of Horn Pond. It can be recognized today as a narrow, rather straight, rutted pathway sometimes used today by cars and motorcycles. It runs between the parkway and the base of the ski lift area and converges with the parkway going south. In fact it runs under it at a point about opposite the electric company's transformer plant. From here to Pond street, it follows the parkway about 50 to 100 feet off to the left hand side, slightly below the level of the parkway.

At Pond street, it crossed under and went south down Chesterford road. But instead of curving around to the left as Chesterford does, along the north side of the pond, it went straight ahead down between the private houses now located on the bank of the pond, at the junction of Chesterford and Inverness roads.

I suggest you walk down toward the pond a short distance to see it clearly, running out into the pond between two rows of trees along the water's edge.

So much of it is evident—north of the pond, that is. But on the south side it is so heavily built up that its probable course is conjectural. From a look at the map, however, I would venture the opinion that it was planned to go very nearly where Cabot street is now.

The route was Cabot street to Bacon, then down Bacon to Symmes Corner, along Everett road to Sargent road, then to Priscilla road, and so toward Medford, parallel to Main st. in Winchester and Winthrop street in Medford. The reason I say this (and it is only a guess on my part) is that there used to be a fairly large and conspicuous section of the road bed behind the stone wall that used to stand at the corner of the road leading to the old Medford Poor Farm, where the new Medford High School now stands.

Much of it was lost forever when the temple was built, and more was lost when the driveway to the high school was put down. The only vestige that remains (and not for long, I suspect) is a short stretch remaining between the driveway of the temple and the driveway of the high school.

Look for it about 20 feet in from the sidewalk along Winthrop street among the trees that still remain in the area south of the high school driveway. Believe me, it is not much to look at, but there is still enough to suggest that a contractor from Worcester once undertook to build a railroad there. I hope he got paid!

If anyone knows just how the promoters planned to get the railroad up and over the barrier of the northern edge of the Boston Basin just north of Horn Pond and up onto the relatively flat tableland there from Woburn North, I would like him to explain it to me. Unless they had a cog railway in mind.

That grade is altogether too steep for an ordinary railroad. The Middlesex Canal, to be sure, did undertake and succeed in tackling it, but only by means of six locks, one after the other. It was a gigantic undertaking in those days, even for a canal, and who ever heard of locks being used on a railroad?

Thistle Seeds In Bird Feeder Draw Few Gold Finches

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

Can anyone tell me how gold finches manage to find thistle seeds in a bird feeder? We now have three of four of these beautiful forsythia-colored birds at the feeder during most of each day, with an occasional purple finch to give a raspberry colored contrast to the opposite side of the perch.

I suspect that right now is an off season for their natural feeds until the dandelion seeds have ripened under their small white parachutes. I have seen the gold finches "walking" the stems down to reach the ripened seed heads. Whatever the reason, the finches are there every day.

Yet before I learned to put out these little black thistle seeds I seldom saw a gold finch, or a purple finch either. Dozens of other varieties, for many years, but few finches. Yet almost the first day that I put out the special plastic small-bird feeder filled with little black thistle seeds, there they were, like magic!

My brother-in-law in Worcester reports the same experience. He added thistle seed and the gold finches came, almost at once!

Now what puzzles me is, how do they locate their food? If they locate it by sight, who can explain why we seldom saw them checking the feeders to learn what food was available there. We should have spotted them coming or going, but we almost never did.

On the other hand, if they locate their food by smell, then just what is it about these small dry seeds that they can detect? As far as I can tell they have no odor, no smell, no fragrance, nothing. I guess their "smellers" must be much more sensitive than mine! It puzzles me.

Soccer Popularity

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

Winchester began its youth soccer program in the fall of 1968 with 70 boys ages 7 to 14 participating. In 1969 the number of boys increased to 150.

Every boy was placed on a team and every boy played.

In 1970 the program had 220 boys, which included ninth graders. In the fourth year, 1971, there were 325 boys and it was necessary to expand to two fields—Leonard Field and Ambrose School Field. In its fifth year, 1972, 380 boys were registered. That is the fall program.

In the spring of 1969, the Boston Area Youth Soccer League (BAYS) began with nine teams representing nine towns. Winchester was one of those towns. In each succeeding spring season the league grew.

In 1970, there were 24 teams from 15 towns entered in three age groups. The year 1971 showed 48 teams from 23 towns with further expansion to four age groups. In 1972 and still growing, there were 69 teams from 30 towns.

This spring of 1973, eleven new towns have entered for the first time. Also, a new division for ages 11 years and under was added, which swelled the total number of teams to 94, representing about 2068 boys playing soccer under international rules with referees from the Bay State Soccer Referees Association.

Winchester has three teams in this spring's BAYS League, which encompasses an area from Boston to Topsfield, Concord, Marboro, Franklin, Foxboro, Brockton and Scituate.

In Dec. 1970, The New York Times in sport page headlines reported "Soccer is the Fastest Growing Sport in the U.S.A."

Let's hope that the Winchester junior high schools will give Winchester boys a soccer program.

'Public' TV Salaries Strictly Private; Satan Is Not The Father Of These Pups

With the Channel 2 auction approaching and Winchester residents among the list of contributors, The Star thought it might be interesting to find out what the salaries of Channel 2's executive officers are. Since the station does advertise itself as public television, and is supported by public money in the form of contributions and federal grants, we didn't think they'd mind giving us the figures. (Well, we did think they'd mind but we thought they'd give them out anyway.)

Nothing doing. "That information is strictly confidential," the personnel director said. "There is no way we can give it to you."

The Star contacted half a dozen other people over there in Allston and got bounced back and forth from office to office and the answer in midwestern accents was always the same: "That's information we don't give out."

From other sources, The Star learns that the salaries range between $40,000 for top dog David Ives and $20,000 for the public relations director. That might seem like a big salary to most of us. But our informant tells us those salaries are much less than for comparable positions in commercial television. But they are nonetheless higher than the salaries of persons Channel 2 is asking contributions from. The reporters of The Reporters are supposed to make $10,000 a year. That's about twice as much as they're worth. (All figures unofficial.)

The following classified advertisement appeared in last week's Star:

Two female German Shepherd pups, sired by Satan, Winchester Canine dog.

The woman who placed that ad does have two female German shepherd pups for sale. Only trouble is Satan is not their father. Duke, I. William T. Haggerty's dog, is the proud parent. "Duke has nothing to do with the Police Department," the department reports.

Last Saturday's Wedge Pond cleanup celebrated the day-long effort with a picnic and a song composed especially for the occasion by Henry Filts of Grassmere avenue. A couple of the stanzas from "Please Don't Filthify," to the tune of "Sue City Sue":

"Rust and decay
Hall Cleanup Day!
The slimy slob don't give a hoot
Whose aqua pura they pollute. But
Our gang's okay!
Litterbugs obey!
The pickeral all sashay on our Wedge Pond Cleanup Day!

Hail, Cleanup Day!
Beer cans away!
The fertile turtle, bless her soul,
Has never heard of birth control. So
Join us, we pray.
Pride will repay!
Just join the matinee on our Wedge Pond Cleanup Day!

The School Committee is certainly wasting no time on getting rid of McManus House. An advertisement appears in today's Star asking for bids on razing the structure.

Maybe the committee figures if it doesn't tear the house down right away another move might be made to save it. I guess we'll never know what ever happened to those missing mantelpieces.

Letters To The Editor

Thank You! Mr. Amico

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

Thank you!—to Sally Kincaid, a service-minded citizen, for her letter of gratitude in The Winchester Star graciously expressing her own appreciation—and hopefully that of the Winchester townspeople—for the years of public service of Paul Amico, our recently retired chairman of Selectmen, and reminding—or informing—us of the great variety of innovations and improvements in town government for which Paul has been responsible.

Thank you!—to Paul himself and to all those he represents who through their generous sharing of their time, expertise and devotion have helped to make and maintain Winchester a home community with many attractive assets including that of citizen concern which can be expressed by constructive criticism leading to civic improvement.

Thank you!—to The Winchester Star as representative of the public media through which encouragement may be expressed and underscored for constructive and desirable activities and actions on the part of groups and individuals.

Too often we are liable to express criticism or pass along destructive statements or ill-founded gossip and too infrequently do we point out or share congratulatory appreciation for a "good job well done."

Thank you!—to a community which makes available to all of us such a wealth of services and assets—our churches, our volunteer town officials, our protective services, our hospital, our library, our schools—to name a few, that we are perhaps prone to take for granted rather than appreciate, even though not perfect, the multiplicity of blessings that are ours.

Thank you!—to any and all—The Winchester Star included—who may make a greater effort in daily contacts to encourage constructive procedures rather than to seek out and emphasize undesirable facets of life and living. If, by learning and remembering to "accentuate the positive" we can bring about some favorable results, can we not then with deep sincerity say, "Thank God!"?

Vicki Gilson Remembered

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

The news of the recent death of "Vicki" Gilson (Mrs. Harry V. Gilson) was indeed a shock to many Winchester persons who knew and loved her when she resided in this town during the many years that Dr. Gilson served as superintendent of schools.

One of the charms of Vicki Gilson was her sincere concern for people and her interest in the children and families of her acquaintances. As a last gesture of my fondness for Vicki Gilson I would like to share with her Winchester friends, excerpts from an obituary which appeared in a Logan, Utah, newspaper.

"Verna Spencer Carlisle Gilson, 67, of Deerfield Beach, Florida, died on April 17 in the Salt Lake City Hospital. She was born July 17, 1905, in Logan, a daughter of Charles Robert and Isabelle Spencer.

"Mrs. Gilson was a graduate of Logan High School and Utah State University, where she was a member of Phi Kappa Phi honor society.

"She received her doctorate in child development from the Merrill Palmer Institute in Detroit, Michigan; organized and developed the nursery school program of Works Progress Administration for the state of Utah; was consultant in early childhood and parent education for the National Society for Crippled Children and Adults, and was a collector of early American antiques.

"She married Harry V. Gilson on March 29, 1952, and resided for some time in Winchester, Massachusetts. Surviving are her husband; a son, Dr. Joseph Robert Carlisle by a former marriage; one sister and five brothers.

"Funeral and burial services took place in Logan, Utah."

Gratitude Note

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

In behalf of my late husband Paul T. Brown, who died April 23, I wish to thank Rev. William Cummings of the Immaculate Conception Church and police officers Thomas Parsons, Kevin Mawn and William O'Neil for the courtesy, kindness and compassion shown by these wonderful men in responding to an emergency call to my home for assistance, the call being answered in a matter of a very few minutes.

Later during the early hours of morning an emergency call for an ambulance was placed the same treatment was given by police officers Fred Marasca and Charles Cudane. I am forever grateful.

Mrs. Paul T. Brown

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

My grandson asked me once why I did not smoke. I showed him why when I took out the dollar bill and tore off a corner of the bill and burned it. His eyes were bulging when he asked me why I did that. I told him that smoking is just burning up money. Instead of burning the rest of the bill I gave it to him and he said "Gaga, I will never smoke as long as I live."

The visual demonstration impressed him greatly. Figures show that if a youngster starts to smoke when he is 16 years old, he will burn up about $40,000 by the time he is 65, that is if he is still alive and burns up a pack of cigarettes a day. Try this on your kids.

RELO Is New Name For Real Estate Referral

Chicago-headquartered Inter-City Relocation Service, the nation's leading real estate referral organization known as ICRS, has adopted a new symbol or trade name - RELO.

RELO, adapted from the word relocation, describes the organization's primary function in assisting transferred business executives and others moving from one city to another by selling former residences and finding new homes as quickly as possible, says Edward M. Burns of Bixby & Northrup, which represents the organization in Winchester.

The new symbol, developed by the marketing committee after a year of study and consideration of several hundred combinations of names and designs, used RELO in large block letters, with a stylized house silhouette in the center of the O. The full name Inter-City Relocation Service in smaller type is an underline.

RELO members' sales staffs blanket more than 6,000 key residential real estate markets in cities and towns throughout the U. S. and several nations overseas.

RELO more than 600 members help people on the move by referring immediately their specific housing needs and questions about their new communities to RELO members in destination cities so the preliminaries of house-hunting can be completed as soon as possible.

"Frequently, such details are taken care of before a transferred family makes its first visit to a new community," Burns points out. "Through RELO a family on the move has an established contact-and instant friend-upon whom it can count for help in relocating in its strange new city," he concludes.

Town's Elementary Schools Conduct Active Arbor Days

Culminating a week of activities dealing with care of the environment, seven elementary schools and the senior high school held Arbor Day tree planting ceremonies on April 27 or 30th.

Mahoney's Rocky Ledge Farm donated a Norway Maple or Kwanzan cherry tree to all schools requesting them, and some schools did additional planting of shrubs and trees donated by their own classes or parents' associations.

At Ambrose School with all grades participating, a play was written by the children called "Charley Cherryseed." A cherry tree was planted.

The Muraco School program, planned by the enrichment committee and faculty, included presentation of Arbor-Vitae seedlings to each fourth grader for home planting, and a cherry tree planting ceremony with each class contributing shovels of soil at the planting site.

Noonan's program was concentrated in the fourth grade with a weeklong educational program about Arbor Day, and the care of the environment and planting of trees. A cherry tree was planted at a short ceremony, followed by schoolyard litter pick up by the children.

Parkhurst's ceremony included all classes and consisted of the kindergarten, first and second grades planting forsythia bushes; the third grade planting a privet bush; and the fourth and fifth grades, red sunset maples. The sixth grade planted the Mahoney's donated cherry tree. With the exception of the cherry tree, all plants were purchased with funds raised by the sixth grade class of 1972 and donated to Parkhurst for the beautification of the school yard.

Vinson-Owen devoted the entire week to studies of the environment, conservation and trees, at both primary and intermediate level. Their Arbor Day ceremony included the planting of a Norway Maple donated by Mahoney's. Later the children planted five other trees.

A week of pre-Arbor Day activities also took place at the Washington School, including films and slide talks on trees and plants, and the presentation of Austrian Pine seedlings to fourth graders. The activities were capped with the planting of the cherry tree by the third grade.

At Wyman school Arbor Day ceremonies took place with a program by the fourth grade including songs, poems, and talks about trees and environment. A Norway Maple tree was planted.

Planting Cherry Trees Part Of Arbor Day Rites

Students at the Washington School celebrated Arbor Day in a variety of ways. The children in the primary grades saw a puppet show focusing on litter, recycling and Arbor Day presented by Mrs. James Grassi, a girl scout troop leader.

The students in the intermediate grades had a talk and slide show, "Color It Green with Trees," presented by J. Williams of the Middlesex County Extension, University of Massachusetts.

Individual Austrian pine seedlings were distributed to kindergarten through grade 4 children, who took them home to plant. Other seedlings were planted on school property by fifth and sixth graders.

Highlight of Arbor Day was the planting of two Kwanzan Cherry trees at the school by students in the third and fourth grades. Ceremonies were planned by the children to accompany the planting. One of the trees was donated by Mahoney's Rocky Ledge and the other was purchased by the Mothers' Association.

George Flynn, principal of the Washington School, coordinated the Arbor Day activities with Mrs. Rosemarie Torione and Mrs. Nancy Weller of the Mothers' Association.

Background

En Ka Fair Set May 18-19

The EnKa Sunshine Fair will be held May 18-19 in the parking lot opposite the town hall from 6-11 p.m. Friday and 10 a.m. to 10 p.m. Saturday. The usual parade of contesting floats will precede the opening festivities.

Last year EnKa allocated over $20,000 to organizations, welfare and services in Winchester.

EnKa was organized in 1902 by six Winchester High School girls, taking the German letters from the words meaning "To imitate the boys."

As it became more serious, the motto was changed to "To live up to the sisterhood."

When secret societies were banned in high school, the EnKa sorority disbanded in 1928. In May of 1932 85 members held a "reunion" and unanimously voted to reorganize EnKa as a senior group to aid in all Winchester charities. It has added members and continued to serve the town ever since.

EnKa's two money raising projects and the EnKa Exchange, a shop selling used clothing on consignment, and its annual street fair, held in May. Profits from these activities made it possible to contribute over $20,000 in services in 1972 by providing monthly suppers at Mt. Vernon House, campships for needy children, Christmas welfare baskets, Easter plants for shutins, Thanksgiving welfare baskets, Police crime booklet. Welfare aid to individuals.

Other groups receiving help from EnKa include Winchester High School, Winchester Public Library, Winchester Homefronters, Winchester Hospital, Red Cross Swim banquet, Winchester Chapter ABC.

MBCA, Winchester Visiting Nurses, Winchester Scholarship Foundation, Winchester Community Theater, ABC House, Winchester auxiliary police, Girl Scouts, Council on Aging, Boy Scouts, Community School Association, Little League, Youth Football, Youth Hockey, Youth Soccer, and CAP League.

A question and answer period will follow. All interested parties may attend.

Quota Club Begins Volunteer Program At Rehab Center

Business and professional women, members of Winchester Quota Club, have inaugurated an evening volunteer program at the New England Rehabilitation Center, Woburn.

Mrs. Anne Feuss of Winchester, chairman of the club's community service committee, was inspired to begin the program after hearing children talk about the center's program for disabled and paralyzed patients.

Nine Quota Club members have been working at special assignments over the past two months. Mrs. Leila Jane Roberts, chief librarian for Winchester, and Mrs. Anna Lee Bundy, assistant librarian in Medford, are planning to expand and catalog the center's library for patients.

Mrs. Alfreda Moses, Mrs. Hope Oliver and Mrs. Elaine Nelson are bringing new life to the arts and crafts evening program for patients.

Other members who are busy in other important tasks are Mrs. Helen Dame, Della Alonzo and Mrs. Shirley Henderson. Their activities include distribution of refreshments on all floors, writing letters for patients, distributing books from the library wagon, and helping patients in many personal ways.

Mrs. Feuss points out Quota Club members are all business and professional women with full-time jobs, many with families and homes to maintain. Yet they are dedicated to the club motto—"Women who will shape tomorrow by sharing today," she says.

Go-Getters Get Going For Auction

Local merchants, industries and individuals are rallying around the 1973 Channel 2 auction with a generous amount of donations, reports area chairman Mrs. David Holt and Community Relations captain, Mrs. Paul Galvani. But it is not enough, according to Channel 2 auction officials.

The 1973 Channel 2 auction, scheduled for June 1-8, hopes to top last year's record by breaking half a million dollars.

"This is a most crucial year for public broadcasting and for Channel 2 in particular," Mrs. Holt explains. "We are asking our regular donors to increase the value of their donations, and that those who never participated in the auction in the past will become a part of this unique community effort."

Many Winchester residents are volunteering as go-getters and calling on merchants and others for new products, services and donations. The team captains for the auction are: Cathy Alexander, Cecily Bradshaw, Karen Detore and Mary Williamson.

Go-getters are: Audrey Deschler, Kathy

STOLEN SPRING - Swamp Creature and Spring, rear, dance majors at the Boston Conservatory of Music and cast members of "The Troll Who Stole Spring," an original ballet presented to elementary school children in Winchester last week, envelop pupils in an Ambrose School classroom. The ballet was brought to town through the Enrichment Committee of Community School Association of Winchester.

Original Ballet Enriches Pupils

Winchester elementary school students were treated to an original and fanciful springtime ballet written and choreographed by Nancy Crollus, dance major at the Boston Conservatory of Music and presented through the auspices of the Enrichment Committee of Community School Association of Winchester.

Narrated by Georgia Catchpole, the story began with a pageant of townspeople greeting spring. Everyone was happy, save the Troll, who hated spring and vowed to steal her. He is successful in his plan and freezes the townspeople in their places with his magic wand. Two girls who had been away gathering flowers returned to the village and are informed of their neighbor's plight and the theft of spring by the fancifully costumed Squirrel, played by Janet Zabresky.

Together the three conquer a caveful of spiders, struggle past swamp creatures and at last overcome the guards at the Troll's Castle to free springtime.

They return to the village, accompanied by the aerobically Shooting Stars, and with the captured magic wand awaken the townspeople once again. Everyone rejoices in the return of Spring, who in her goodness forgives the Troll, and they all live happily ever after.

Reddy Teddy Signs With Mercury; Music 'A Living, Hours Different'

Reddy Teddy, a Winchester rock group, will release an album this fall for Mercury records. The band members, all from Winchester, are John Morse, lead singer - percussion; Matthew MacKenzie, lead guitar - vocal; Joe Marino, drums - vocal; and Scott Baerenwald, bass guitar - vocal.

In addition to the Mercury company, the group discussed possible recording contracts with A & M, Inter-Media Studio of Boston, Bearsview and Island Records of London.

Reddy Teddy has been performing in Winchester since the beginning of last summer, when they played for the Recreation Department's dances.

Since then they have played at nearly every hall in town and have drawn crowds up to 750 youths. They have also performed in Rurlington, Millis, Woburn, Dedham, Westwood, Reading, and at Brandy's, the Kenmore Club and the Groggery in Boston.

Reddy Teddy has done several parties at colleges throughout New England climaxed by a top billing engagement at the Mercer Arts Center in New York City.

The group formed a little over a year ago with Ted VonRosenberg, Joe, John and Matthew. Matthew became part of the foursome after the other three picked him up hitchhiking on their way to perform. Ted remembered Matthew from high school and asked him to join them that evening. From that performance on, Matthew became Reddy Teddy's lead guitarist.

A week and a half ago Ted decided to leave the band. Scott Baerenwald replaced him. Ted said he quit because: "I was bored, I didn't like the routine or schedule. It was a matter of personal freedom, being attached to three people all the time. I wanted to do something different, so I got a job. The band and I are still friends. It has made no difference in our friendships. I will still continue to help them if I can, but as a friend." Currently working on construction projects, he plans to continue song writing in his spare time.

"In live performances we do our own brand of rock and roll. Anybody who hears it will classify it for the kind of rock and roll it is," says songwriter Matthew, who writes most of the music for the group. The band does the arranging collectively.

Although they have a great deal of their own material they are not using much of it now. John believes they "have to do a certain extent of other groups' material to be accepted."

At a dance at Reading High in November, "afterwards one of the band members had a fist-fight with someone because he pushed one of the help around and insulted the musician's mother," stated Joe Marino.

They like any type of exaggerated reaction to their music. An antagonistic mood was created by a 15-minute equipment failure and the Reading football team's loss that day. It doesn't seem likely that this type of incident would occur in Winchester.

Two weekends ago, John was approached by a group of girls at a McCall dance for his autograph. Whatever, the only comment John made was, "It's tough but fun!" Matthew's interpretation of society's impression of music are, "Everybody looks at it as though the times, the 60's, the Vietnam War, etc., are what made rock and roll. It's the other way around. Rock and roll made the Vietnam War," Scott commented on this statement: "Maybe people want to see a war on stage, or someone who's exerting high energy."

To the band "it's a living, like going to the office from nine to five, except the hours are different. It's not just a social thing," stated Scott, who has been playing across the country with blues bands since he graduated from high school four years ago.

They practice four hours a day in Marino's basement. A break-up or change isn't anticipated, not at least until their five-year contract with Mercury is up.

They have assistance from such people as managers, road managers and maintainers and repairers of equipment. They are David Sproge, Bill Hall, Peter Shean, Bob Ross, Ted Sullivan, Bob Thomas and Billy Horsley.

On stage they wear high heeled shoes, patched hipflapper pants, hats and body shirts. Matthew has been known for his Russian splits in between dancing about the stage, John for bouncing his hips around while he dances around the mike at center stage.

They sometimes wear sparkle make-up to liven up the show and their image, depending on their moods.

It is questionable whether or not they will achieve the fame they desire, which is to become popular enough to fill Dean Martin's television slot.

As group spokesman Joe Marino puts it, "They realize that success isn't inevitable. In the music business as a whole you don't just sign a contract and you're an automatic success. We have faith in our material to think we can do it. We're young enough, non-drug oriented enough, have a lot of drive and initiative."

The group has more than amply satisfied the young audiences of Winchester with good music and entertainment. Their first performance in Winchester since their involvement with Mercury will be Saturday at Town Hall, starting at 8 o'clock.

Ten Truck Loads Of Trash Removed From Wedge Area

Team effort made Wedge Pond cleanup day last Saturday a great success, reports coordinator Susan Gullid.

Ten dump truck loads of litter and debris gathered from the shore were hauled to the dump by Ronald Floyd and Philip Coss of the Park Department.

Team captains Dean Benedict, William Burrows, Henry Pitts, John Scanlon, Ken Trevett, Paul Witort, Hank Wilson and Eric Williams were responsible for sections of the shoreline. Several workers helped carry the trash over the beach to be loaded on the dump truck.

Seen in the hard working crew were Joseph P. Hallisey, first aid attendant, the Flavin sisters from the Wedge Pond Town House Apartments, Karen and Kathy Sullivan, the Walker children, Mrs. Jack Bishop and his son, Mark, Peter Frazier, the scout troop from Noonan School headed by Mrs. Ann Russell and many other willing volunteers.

Chairman Richard Cooper of Wedge Pond road expressed the hope that all parents will stress to their children "their responsibility to keep this lovely natural resource rubbish free. The only way to keep this lovely lake from constant deterioration is a steady practice of both good education and good habits."

Cooper was "delighted with the excellent cooperation" he received from the Park Department, the Highway Department and the Water and Sewer Board for the boats.

Following the cleanup, a picnic planned by co-chairmen Edith Vokes, Jessie Salter and their daughters and Jane Chisholm was held at the American Legion clubhouse facing the pond.

This picnic and the continuous refreshments served during the day were made possible by contributions from many abutters. Workers Mark Wilson and Stewart McCord won baseballs autographed by Red Sox players.

Pianist and composer Henry Pitts of Grassmere avenue lead an enthusiastic group in the singing of "Please Don't Filthy."

A round of applause was given co-chairmen Mrs. Gullid and Richard Cooper for getting the Wedge Pond Concerned Citizens movement underway.

Mrs. Gullid reminded the group: "Our work has just begun. We must all strive for the continual improvement of the pond."

The next project will be a summer picnic of all concerned W.P. lovers.

Players' 'Cactus Flower' Wins Bouquets For Cast

Albert Leach of 210 Pond st. plays the lead in "Cactus Flower" as the bachelor dentist. The production continues this Friday and Saturday at 8:15 p.m.

By Carol Mahoney
"Cactus Flower," a romantic French-inspired soufflé spiced with American seasoning, was dished up last weekend at the First Congregational Church of Winchester.

Final performances are scheduled at 8:15 p.m. this Friday and Saturday in Chidley Hall with tickets available at the door.

The Parish Players, working with members of the Combined Theatre Groups of Winchester, served up a fresh and fast-paced concoction which swept away the stereotype that "little theatre" is limited to dated comedy and vintage revivals.

Directed by former Winchesterite Renee Miller, "Cactus Flower" is a martini-dry farce full of prickly fun which involves intricate romantic mixups and misunderstandings.

Director Miller and co-producers Anne and Jack Guilderson have pulled together a light, sophisticated comedy. The cast and crew aim high toward achieving the goal of perfect timing in both behind-the-scenes coordination and on-stage delivery.

The laugh-provoking plot revolves around the complications in the life of a playboy dentist who boasts both a loyal and efficient "office wife" nurse and a swinging mini-skirted girlfriend.

To avoid the trip to the altar, the bachelor dentist convinces his playmate that he is married. When he changes his mind and proposes, his girlfriend demands to meet the fictitious wife. He prevails upon his loyal office assistant to masquerade and the merry-go-round begins.

Karen Detore plays the title role of the prickly "cactus flower" Stephanie Dickinson, a spinsterish and prim nurse devoted to duty and to her dentist, who turns into a late-blooming temptress. Known previously for her dramatic roles, Ms. Detore handles the dry comedy role of the strait-laced secretary with great aplomb and a voice and manner surprisingly reminiscent of Lauren Bacall who created the role on stage.

Albert Leach combines the right amount of sophistication and befuddlement as he creates the role of the dashing dentist who weaves the prickly web of romantic deceit.

His bachelor drinking buddy, Harvey, who helps in the subterfuges, is beautifully played by Gordon Sherburne Jr. Easily the most skilled comic in the play, Sherburne is in his element as he makes the most of fast-talking Harvey and virtually steals the scenes when he is on stage.

Young Suzanne Cotton is long-legged and delectable as the beguiling girlfriend, Toni, who much prefers black leather slacks to a mink coat, and complicates the plot with every well-intentioned but backfiring move.

Well-known character actor Jack Guilderson turns in another fine performance as an international Mexican rouse, Senor Sanchez, who is more interested in dental nurses than the dental chair. Connie Dingwell is properly arrogant as a wealthy but neglected patient. John Hosmer demonstrates a certain panache in the role of a struggling long-haired writer whose usual attire seems to be a towel. Jeanne Ives, Pam Boerner, Paul Barbarian and Art Stralls, excel in cameo supporting character roles. Laurels are due to Roger Fosket, Carl Boerner, Jean Fitzgerald and Fred Bush, key people responsible for respectively designing, building, decorating and lighting a very effective and intimate set.

The same set becomes a dental office, night club and Greenwich Village pad by the use of effective color and decorative devices. Light and sound crews headed by Carl Galante and Caryll and Dick Boyden give excellent technical assistance. Frank Nagle and Allan Hyden share responsibilities as stage managers for cast and crew.

Transcendental Meditation Talk At Public Library

An introductory lecture on transcendental meditation will be given on Tuesday at the Winchester Public Library in Winchester. The lecture will start at 7:30 p.m. and is open to the community at no cost.

Giving the lecture will be Joanna Plafsky, who has taught meditation in Winchester, and who has spent over seven months studying with the founder of the movement, Maharishi Mahesh Yogi.

She says transcendental meditation is not a religion nor does it involve any of the associations people usually have with the word "meditation." Rather, it is an effortless mental technique for the expansion of conscious awareness while providing deep and profound rest to the body.

Results of regular meditation, for a few minutes twice a day, profoundly affect all areas of life in a positive way she says. Some of these effects are the dissolution of accumulated tension and fatigue, more energetic, dynamic and efficient activity during the day, greater clarity of mind, increasing learning capacity and abilities of comprehension, and greater inner stability, she includes.

LWV To Choose Next Year's Topic

Mrs. Raymond Champoux, retiring president, will conduct the meeting in which officers and directors will be elected and the budget adopted for 1973-74. Proposals for the local program are to be presented by their sponsors.

An informal lunch will be served at noon to members under the direction of the hospitality chairman, Mrs. George W. Fenbach. It is planned to have all business completed by two o'clock.

Arrangements for baby sitting should be made in advance with Mrs. David Mortensen, 142 Highland ave.

Dogs Speak Out On Leash Law

By Ann Landau

A roving Star poll of Winchester dogs indicates that the 12 hour dog leash law is not cramping the style of all of our canine friends. Lady Bountiful of Malibu, a golden retriever, was interviewed near the Wyman School yard.

Star: how do you feel about the law?

She: I've been aware of it for some time although my owners haven't tied me up. Some of my friends have disappeared for a few days but they always come back to our favorite places.

Of course I've been hit by three trucks and had firecrackers thrown at me by kids so I really wouldn't mind being tied up.

Star: where are your favorite haunts during the day?

She: Actually the school yard is my favorite place because I like the kids. They play ball and I get right in the center of them. Unfortunately some of the smaller children get scared when I jump on them. But then sometimes the kids scare me.

We found Ferd in Winchester Center. He was a little vague about his origins but was a handsome dog nevertheless. In response to our question he said, "What dog control law?"

Shuffling our feet, we asked if he runs around leashless between 7 a.m. and 7 p.m. "Oh, I make the rounds everywhere, depends on the season," he answered with a wink.

After we explained the law to him, Ferd said he had heard on the grapevine about some man named Molea and to watch out for him.

"But I don't worry. I'm a Winchester native and no one is going to tell me what to do. No frustration without representation, I say," Ferd asserted.

Ferd told us that although he does not sport a fancy pedigree he has been president of Dog Pack No. 35, Council A, for three years. Pointing to a few nasty scars, he said he expected to run with his friends in the future as in the past until someone younger and stronger came along.

"After all we are a community institution. We do a great service to haters of flowers and children. Of course in the spring we have our annual membership drive and this year we are attracting some of the very best dogs in the community," he said proudly.

Down on Swanton street we met Miss Doleful. Hushpuppy, a Basset hound, who objected to the leash law as "very confining." Asked if her owners tied her up she said, "No, they gave me a wrist watch. This is Winchester, after all."

Ferd speaks his mind

who need

The American Red Cross.

She philosophized that the law represented the eternal conflict between pet owners and lawn and garden devotees.

"Some people think that just because they own land and pay taxes and keep their lawns and gardens green that they can prevent us free spirits from wandering where we like. Besides, who will fertilize their yards if we don't?"

Referring to leash law proponents as "Narrow minded bigots" she trotted off to a nearby yard.

Our next interview was conducted from inside our car with the window up.

Eric von Stroheim Malocclusion IV neatly pinned a 40-year-old man to the sidewalk as he talked to The Star on Highland avenue.

A handsome Doberman Pinscher, Eric told us he had his owners thoroughly intimidated and that they would never dream of tying him. "They would sooner tie up their children than me," he chuckled.

Asked how he fills his daytime roaming hours he said with smiling bared teeth, "I like to terrorize people, especially children."

"My neighborhood is the best place for this because everyone is afraid to complain to my owners about me. After all, the last thing anyone wants to do is to complain about their neighbor. Why no one around here has used his yard since I came to live here. The children all play inside," he explained.

Rippling his muscles and turning his attention to the man he had pinned, Eric growled.

We inquired cautiously as to the purpose of confining the man to a horizontal position.

"Well, I'm just guarding my property here, which happens to include the sidewalk. Never mind all that public right of way stuff. When it comes right down to it, I don't want any joggers, walkers, or bicyclists going through," Eric stated.

"I'm especially annoyed by these men, surely potential prowlers, who are told by their doctors to exercise and then think that gives them the right to use my sidewalk," Eric continued.

"Of course, I have my owners trained. If anyone should work up the courage to complain, they are to say either 'He won't hurt you' or 'I know you, all the dogs bark at you' or 'that's funny, my dog never bothered anyone else.' Even better, is to look witheringly at the complainant and say 'Dogs can tell,' Eric laughed.

Feeling that the subject was well taken care of, Eric turned to us and said, "Let's talk about something really important. Have you seen the price of bones lately? Something's got to be done."

The man on the sidewalk shuddered.

Little League

Battle Predicted In Majors

A real Little League battle down to the wire is predicted in the American Major League by veteran manager Frank Cavarretta of the Athletics with his ball club right in the thick of it.

The A's have started fast, winning two out of three. The injury jinx hit Cavarretta early when in spring training he lost the services of his number one pitcher, Donny Layton.

However, he may have come up with a real sleeper in Brian McNamara, who has already notched two victories, his latest a four hitter over the Astros. The A's call upon an infield that's both strong defensively and potent with the bat featuring a veteran double play combination of John Barcus at short and Paul Mafra at second with Thomas Doocey ready when called upon.

Steady at first are John McNamara and Gary Floyd. David O'Neil holds down the hot corner. The mainstay of the catching staff and field is Bobby Rigney.

Both Cavarretta and coach Tom Doocey feel the American Major League will be a well balanced division this season and their philosophy will be to play them one at a time.

While still in the American Major League, the Pirates under the able leadership of Gerry Ferro have started the season off with a bang. In their first outing against defending champion Expos, the Pirates romped by a score of 16 to 2 with all boys getting into the scoring.

In the second game they faced the Mets. Once again the Pirates were just too overpowering and beat the Mets 12 to 4. Their third game found the Bucs facing the Mets again, this time beating them by a score of 8 to 4. In three games the Pirates have scored 36 runs and have rapped out 41 hits.

The pitching chores are handled by aces (had) Doe, Bubba Sandford and Kurt Ellis. All three boys have a win under their belt in this young season. When not pitching, Sandford and Doe hold down third base and shortstop in fine fashion.

Sharing the job at second base are Jeff Curtis and Kurt Ellis with help from Mario Covino. At first base is rookie Ken Goodrow, who is doing an excellent job as a starter. Handling the catching plus swinging a big bat at the moment is Robert Dellagrolle.

In the outfield the Bucs have two veterans in Guy Cafarella and Jeff Goodman. Cafarella is rated as one of the premier outfielders in the major league. Other outfielders for the Pirates are Mike Twamley, Chris Zappala, John Del Sollo, Tom Galante and Jon Kalman, all doing a fine job.

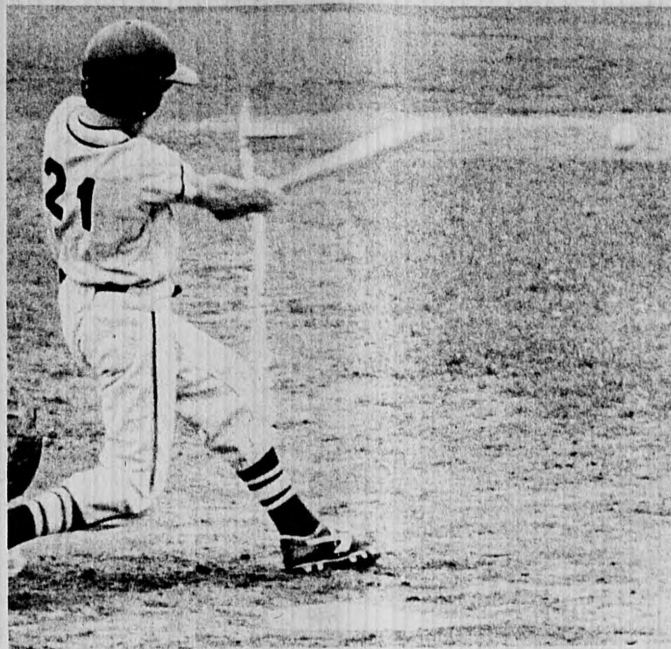

Ferro believes his club will be a very solid contender for the flag this year.

Girls' Softball League To Begin

After a successful premiere season, the Winchester Recreation Department is again sponsoring a Girls' Softball League. The tentative starting date is June 18.

Girls now in grades 6 - 9 are eligible to participate. Each team will play two games a week at Ginn Field from 3 - 5 p.m.

Girls who are interested should send their name, address, telephone number, age, school and grade to Winchester Recreation Department, Town Hall, Winchester, 01890. Application forms may be picked up at Winchester Sport Shop.

Opening game of Little League White Sox and Giants Saturday at Manchester Field saw this batter connect in the first

Astros Take Topsfield 4-2

Winchester's ASTROS soccer team beat Topsfield 4-2 Sunday. A quick goal in the first two minutes put Topsfield ahead until the 34 minute mark, when Bernie Belcastro tied the game 1-1.

In the second half Topsfield again scored first at the five minute mark and went ahead 2-1. Eight minutes later, Winchester was awarded a penalty kick which Paul Sullivan successfully converted into a tying goal for Winchester. That goal put Winchester back in the game.

At 19 minutes Winchester's Paul Austin, a halfback, scored from 30 yards on a shot which sailed high into the net over the goalkeeper's head. At 29 minutes another Winchester goal came by Jimmy Palermo, which gave Winchester an undefeated record of 3 wins and 1 tie.

The ASTROS have been improving with each game. The hard working forwards digging, dribbling and passing, led by Bernie Belcastro and Jimmy Palermo, were backed up by the continuing great play of the halfbacks Paul Sullivan, Joe Amuzzini and Paul Austin, and the defensive work of fullbacks Don Richmond, Jim Short who refused to be sidelined by an ankle injury. Marty Lusk, in the sweeper position, played his first game of this season. All contributed to teamwork which brought about the win. In goal for the 80 minutes was Rick Champa who played a fine game. The goal is normally shared each half with Wayne McNeill who was absent with illness.

The Winchester ASTROS were short of candidates when their tryouts were held in March. This was due partly to operations suffered by two talented players, John Henriques and Peter Mitchell, and to many spring activities offered in the high school. Perhaps, because Winchester does not have soccer in its junior high schools, there was a reluctance, lack of exposure and experience in the game among the junior high students.

There were five boys from West Medford who applied and were accepted onto the Winchester roster. This action is permitted by league rules, since there was no team entered from Medford.

The Medford boys include forwards Bernie Belcastro and Jimmy Palermo, fullbacks Marty Lusk and Donald Richmond and Rick Champa sharing the goalkeeping duties.

The Astros' next game will be against Weston, which also has 3 2ins and that game will determine the first place position in the standings.

Sachem Record Now 5-5

By John F. Parrell

The Winchester High School baseball team lambasted the Woburn Tanners 15-1 to close out the first round of Middlesex League action with a 5-5 record recently.

Due to a postponement they had to play four games last week, with Melrose, Lexington and Stoneham being met on consecutive days. The first two games were close and well played.

Although the Sachem attack was not too strong the Colellamen posted victories by 2-1 and 2-0. Steve Johnson choked off the Raiders and Rudy Fiore was in great form at Lexington.

League-leading Stoneham came here Wednesday and Elliott Miller went to the mound for the home team. He worked hard and pitched himself out of several tight spots. Winchester pulled up to within one run at 4-3, but when he tired in the sixth Rudy Fiore, who had pitched a two-hit shutout the day before, came on and a Spartan double nailed down the verdict for the front runners.

Friday saw the rout of the Tanners, who could do nothing right while playing on their home field. Winchester scored in six of the seven innings, and only a last inning tally by Woburn prevented the ignominy of a shutout.

Every Winchester player had at least one safe hit, and Albie Cordice with four and Gary Beard with three led the Sachem slugging attack. The Tanner chuckers granted eight bases on balls, and the Orange and Black fielders contributed five errors to keep the base paths a constant merry-go-round of Winchester base runners.

The Winchester nine could have used some of those extra base hits on Monday afternoon when Watertown came here to open the second half. They went down 7-0 although Rudy Fiore pitched a pretty good game. The Raiders led by only 3-0 as the seventh inning opened. Their runs were scored in rather weird fashion.

The Sachems had actually out hit them, but the ball takes many strange bounces in schoolboy baseball, and all of them had gone against Winchester.

The seventh opened with the first two Raiders going out on ground balls to Wayne Dennis. But then Rudy began to tire and lost some of his control. The bases were loaded. Then came a high fly to the outfield. The Winchester fielder lost it in the sun, but it popped out of his glove and the Watertown runners raced around to score.

When Elliott Miller finally got the third out it was Watertown leading 7-0. The last half failed to produce any Sachem attack and so the season's record is now even with five wins showing against five losses.

Burlington plays at Manchester Field tomorrow afternoon. Next week finds high flying Reading here on Monday and the Lexington Minutemen furnishing the opposition on Friday.

The team has played some interesting games. But except in the Burlington and Woburn games, it has not shown an overpowering attack. Extra base hits have been few and far between, and all too often the game winning run has died on the bases.

Co-captain Steve Johnson has done well in the box, showing several low hit efforts, and the fielding has been good. However, the record is not better because the bases on balls and errors have come at crucial points. At least three of the defeats have been due to just such lapses, and the batters have not been able to neutralize them.

Sachem Speedsters Having Good Year

Coach Manny Marshall's Winchester High School track team is having a good season with a record of three victories showing against two defeats. In the meets they have lost, the competition has been close.

The Winchesterites have won their share of first places. Their showing in the state relays, covered at length in last week's Star, was the best Sachem effort in several years. With continued improvement the Sachems could be a strong factor in the Middlesex League meet.

They dropped a 78-82 verdict to the powerful Wakefield Warriors, and have since beaten both Watertown (98-42) and the Burlington Red Devils (104 1/2-35 1/4). The last named team is a newcomer this year and is not overstocked with runners. The local coach ran some boys in different events than those in which they regularly compete.

In the Watertown meet Tony Guarente lowered the school record in the quarter mile event to 51.3 seconds. Tippy Macdonald hurled the shotput 50 ft. 4 in. to just miss breaking the old mark by a few inches.

Cap League Has Good Start

Despite cold miserable weather, the Winchester Cap League opened its season on April 29. Opening day ceremonies began at 1:15 p.m., when James R. Stewart, president of Winchester Little League, announced the team roster. By 1:45 all pre-registered boys were at their fields.

Late registrants were processed thereafter by league director, E. T. Blanch and chief umpires Robert Baron, visor division, and Gerald Ferro, crown division along with Stewart.

By 2:15 p.m. all players had reached their playing fields. Most of the teams got in several innings of practice play as managers evaluated their talent and began organizing their teams.

The first league games of the season were played on May 5 with surprisingly low and close scoring games for this early in the year in Cap League baseball. The second round of games were completed on May 6 though threatened throughout by drizzly damp weather. The highlight of the day's activities was an extra inning 2 to 1 win by the Giants over the Astros in the Visor Division at Ginn Field.

Sachem Golfers Upset Raiders

Little League fund drive chairman Dick Ockerbloom has announced that this year's fund drive, which runs for two weeks ending May 13, got off to a great start but slowed in recent days.

Although sales have not been up to the league's hopes thus far, Ockerbloom hopes this final week will bring a surge of enthusiasm by the players and managers and that the drive will come up to the league's goal. Prizes will be awarded May 27.

They include a color television set, a portable television and a personal size set. Ockerbloom and his committee would like to thank all those who have contributed thus far and also those who plan on buying chances when a little leaguer comes to their home.

Funds obtained from this drive will be used chiefly to purchase new equipment and uniforms for the players of Winchester.

Men's Softball

A men's slow pitch softball league is forming in Winchester. Interested men should meet at the Elk's Home on Cambridge st. on May 23 at 8 p.m.

Donald L. Spinney says anyone wishing to enter the new league may contact him at the Recreation Department for more information.

The town meeting voted funds to install lights on Ginn Field, which for many years was the home field for the Winchester softball league, he says.

Pitcher Strikes Out 8; Phillies Win 12-1

It was cloudy and chilly at MacDonald Field and not a very good day for baseball, especially an opening day.

However John Sardella thought it was a beautiful day and proved it by tossing the first no-hitter of the senior league season, striking out eight as the Phillies romped by a score of 12-1.

The Browns scored their only run by virtue of a throwing error. Leading the hitting attack for the Phillies were John Sardella, Tony Saracco, and James Markham with two hits apiece.

In another opening game at MacDonald Field the White Sox beat the Giants easily by a score of 11-5. Handling opening game ceremonies at MacDonald and Manchester Fields were Little League vice-presidents Dick Kramer and Jim Pettee with Arthur Red Band, President of Winchester Rotary Club, throwing out the first ball at MacDonald Field.

Sen. Mackenzie Leads Legislators 11-5 Over Police

The Massachusetts legislators maintained their superiority over the state police in ice hockey recently at the Joyce Arena in Woburn by an 11-5 score.

The game was a benefit performance, with proceeds going to the Handicapped Young Adult Club of Massachusetts.

Sen. Ronald C. Mackenzie, formerly of Winchester, proved himself a capable captain of the legislators by scoring four of his team's goals, one more than three to give him hockey's hat trick for the evening.

The lawmakers opened up a 4-to-0 lead in the first period. The second period was about even, each team scoring twice.

The state police put on a rally at the beginning of the third period, pulling up fairly close to their rivals. But the legislators countered with an even greater rally and won going away.

The game was free from penalties, and was a good example of how good clean ice hockey should be played.

Duplicate Bridge

By Bridgette

The Women's Pairs Championship and the Challenge Bowl of Andrews Jewelers were won by Pat Wassmuth and Bunny Frey, two young members playing together for the first time at the Duplicate Bridge Club. Congratulations!

Pat Wassmuth and Bunny Frey, 144½; Ida Finlay and Ellen Schofield, 139; Adaline Duryea and Waveney Smith, 133; Marge Jones and Wilma Baglione, 122; Evelyn Blackler and Adele Knox, 120; Mary Shannon and Catherine Havican, 117; Donna Redpath and Barbara Shea, 114; Peggy Cade and Mary Lynch, 112; Nancy Atkinson and Peggy Sanderson, 112; Lee Salani and Gay Schreiber, 110; Eileen Brennan and Leonora Carty, 110; Natalie Koujournian and Ruth Flanagan, 110.

On the other side of the hall Chitell's Challenge Bowl was captured by club members Irving Brown and Wally Smith with a big score. Posting an even higher one were Harold Enge and Eric Kula, guests who will receive the top American Contract Bridge League points.

Over average men were:

Harold Enge and Eric Kula, 168; Irving Brown and Waldron Smith, 166; David Littleton and Stephen Root, 155½; Guy Mingolelli and Robert Haskell, 153½; Leo and Frank Gonsalves, 147.82; George Viens and Larry Devlin, 147.5; Alexander Oszy and H. Rosenkrantz, 146; Mike Scherrer and Kris Krishnan, 144; Bill Cunningham and Stephen Linehan, 143½; Charles Dyjak and Anthony Ferdinand, 140½; Everett Knox and Robert Blackler, 139½; Jack Olmsted and Clarence Woodward, 138½; Paul Cowles and Hy Siegel, 133½.

The normal complement of 23 tables filled the Knights of Columbus Hall on April 25 for Duplicate Bridge Club play.

The East-West players were on their toes when this board came along. North-South has a cold game in 5C, but just two of the eleven North-Souths reached it, thanks to the East-West pre-emptive bidding.

D - A K Q
C - J 8 6 3

WEST
H - A J 7 5 2
D - 9 5 2
C - Q 10

EAST
S - 10 7 5 2
H - K 10 9 8 3
D - 7 6
C - 9 2

SOUTH
H -
D - J 10 8 4 3
C - A K 7 5 4

After all, put yourself in South's shoes after West opens 1H, North doubles, and East bids 4H. That was the sequence at one table where South did bid the 5C, but East-West made it difficult. At most tables, East-West was allowed to play in 4H, some doubled, being set but giving away less points than the game score.

Building Permits

Five building permits were issued by the Building Department of the Town of Winchester for the week ending April 20.

Two permits were for reshingling: 51 Samoset rd. and 35 Forest cir.

Lacrosse Team Loses 2 Games

Winchester High School's lacrosse team dropped two games last week. The first setback by a 6-3 score was a league game. On Friday they played at Governor Dummer Academy, and the preppers handed the local stickmen a 9-2 defeat.

A rash of penalties kept the Sachems constantly short-handed against Brookline. They had no less than 15 sent to the penalty box while the visitors incurred only one. This badly hampered the Bouleymen's attack and they managed only 18 shots on the Brookline net during the entire game. Mike Sanford, Dave Bower and Vin Palumbo each tallied single goals.

The Governor Dummer game was also a case of very anemic Sachem offense as Vin Palumbo and Bill Doe scored for the local team. Co-captain Paul Adams, Bill Dexter and Chip Hoche did yeoman work at their defense posts. Bob McGoldrick did a superb job on the faceoffs, losing only one. But the attackers had difficulty penetrating the home team's defense, and when they did they found Bochar in the nets almost unbeatable.

The Sachems hope to resume their winning ways when they play tomorrow afternoon at Newton. Beverly will come to Leonard Field for a game on Monday afternoon at 3:30 p.m., and it is hoped that a large crowd of rooters will be on hand to encourage the local team.

Beacons Lose To Wellesley 4-2

In a hard-fought exciting game the Winchester Beacons of the Boston Area Youth Soccer League (BAYS) were defeated by a strong Wellesley team in recent action. The score was 4-2 in favor of Wellesley, with a 2-2 tie at half-time.

The Winchester boys played an excellent game in the first half. By the 20th minute they led 2-1 through goals by the masterful playmaker Dennis Collins - his fifth in four games -- and the swift winger Mark Nelson. As in the past three games the Winchester defense played with hesitation and uncertainty and both first half Wellesley goals were scored because of defensive mistakes.

Unfortunately for the Beacons during the first half starting goalie Carlos Lopez was injured and had to leave the field.

The second half brought equally exciting and swift play on both sides. Wellesley scored on a questionable penalty shot and in the last minutes of the game through an unfortunate defensive mistake. Dennis Collins missed a penalty shot for the Beacons.

Despite this loss -- which evens the Beacons record at two wins and two losses -- the Winchester boys played an excellent game. Chris Morgan, Jackie Driscoll, Tommy Waite and Todd Cronin were the spirit of the team. Errol Burke, Dennis Collins, Norm Alpert and Tom Mitchell gave their usual best.

This coming Saturday at 3:30 p.m. the Beacons host Franklin at Loring Field. Arpad von Lazar, Sean O'Riordan and Brian Flanagan are the Beacons' coaches.

rights and supported legislation beneficial to black people over the years, even before the present civil rights legislation.

Chadwick supports legislation filed by Sargent and House Speaker David Bartley to create different transit districts throughout the state. Such legislation will relieve the property tax burden by having the state assume 50 percent of the costs of these districts, he said.

If the legislation fails, Chadwick will propose that the state pay 100 percent of the costs of rapid transit and rail commuter service and the cities and towns 100 percent of the costs of bus transportation.

Under the Chadwick proposal, cities and towns could set up inter-community bus districts and contract with private bus companies, a far more efficient operation than MBTA, Chadwick said.

Golfers Stage Upset

Coach Joe Aversa's Winchester High School golf team staged a major upset by defeating previously undefeated Watertown 5½ - 3½. The match was held at the Raiders' home course, the Oakley Country Club. This major victory came on the heels of their deadlock with Stoneham the previous day. This match was held at the Spartans home layout at Bear Hill Country Club.

The Winchester team opened the season without too much practice and dropped the match to Woburn. In their second outing they gave the highly rated Melrose team a hard battle over the major portion of the match, but succumbed at the very end.

However, they continued to improve against Stoneham, and were really at their best for the encounter with Watertown. The home team had been sailing along without too much trouble and had expected to romp past the Sachems. So it was a bitter pill for them to swallow.

The summary of the Stoneham match: Playing in the No. 1 spot, Jake Casey defeated Solterio of Stoneham by 5 and 3. Wayne Johnson was defeated by Boretti of Stoneham by the same score. However, they halved the best ball for a standoff.

Bob McElhinney edged R. Sullivan of Stoneham by 1 up, and J. Kelley of Stoneham trounced Kil Adams by 8 and 5. The Spartans also took the best ball to build a Stoneham lead by 3½ - 2½.

Chuck Birchall downed S. Kelley of the home team by 4 and 3. R. Powers of Stoneham bested Kevin O'Neil by one up, but the Winchester boys took the best ball to square the match at 4½ - 4½.

The summary of the Watertown match: Jack Casey defeated D. Collieran by one up and D. Valshtis of Watertown by the same score. The best ball ended with all even so it was 1½ - 1½.

Bob McElhinney bested J. Rontodosi by 3 and 1, and G. Urinron of the Raiders edged Kil Adams by 2 and 1. However, the best ball point gave the Sachems the lead by 3½ - 2½.

Chuck Birchall was a 3 and 2 winner over J. Sutherland and Kevin O'Neil halved his match with P. P. Moran. The best ball was also halved, and the final score was Winchester 5½, Watertown 3½.

Abandoned

Law Is Cited On Abandoned Autos

Complaint from a resident of an abandoned automobile on Pepperhill drive has pointed up a section of the Chapter 90 laws which makes such abandonment punishable by fine.

The section reads that whoever leaves any vehicle on any public or private way or property other than his own without the permission of the owner will be punished by a "fine of not less than $100 nor more than $500." A person convicted of this may also lose his license for a period up to three months.

Another resident reported to police recently that boys were breaking into a tonic machine at Reardon's Service Station, 641 Main st. An unknown amount of money was taken and bottles were smashed in the area.

★ Levin

Again, Levin returned the conversation to the Americans' neglect of their Indians. "There has never been any kind of program for the Indians. No Peace Corps, no march on Washington, no liberal programs" such as other minority groups have had. He said most Americans feel compassion for the Indians but there has been "no active support."

He wonders if the government action in his case is the result of a fear that an Indian movement might arise like the black movement in the 1960s and points out that more than 300 persons have been arrested "around the country for simply trying to bring food to Wounded Knee ... on these broad conspiracy charges."

"Even people on death row have a right to have food. It is a basic right. And all this at a time when there was a court order to allow food to be brought in. I don't see how the airlift was an illegal act."

Though Levin has only lived in Winchester a short time, he has come to like it and feels the town is relaxing. He lives with friends on Lakeview avenue. Before The Star left he put in a pitch for donations for the Wounded Knee Defense Committee, 595 Massachusetts Avenue, Cambridge, which will defend all 300 persons arrested in the circumstances at Wounded Knee, a 70-day protest that ended Tuesday. Levin expects the legal ramifications to continue another 12 months.

In man, the brain comprises a larger part of the body weight than any other animal with the exception of certain small birds, such as canaries and humming birds. In the average man, the brain weighs about three pounds. In the average woman, about three ounces less than three pounds is the weight of the brain. Unfortunately, however, the weight of the brain has very little to do with how effective it is as a thinking instrument. In this, as in everything else, it's not what you've got, but how you use it that counts. Family getting together for Mother's Day? What a perfect time to take perfect pictures. VISIT WINCHESTER CAMERA SHOP, 36 Waterfield Rd. (near P.O.), 729-3636 for all your picture taking equipment. Our color processing includes prints from slides and enlarging. Remember, you can take indoor movies without lights with our new KODAK cameras and film. HELPFUL HINT: Serve appetizer or dessert wines in a cocktail glass and red wines in a goblet.

Our Rates Are Low!

While the prices of cars, gasoline and maintenance have risen dramatically, with almost everything else, during the past 16 months, our car rental rates are unchanged. We will still rent you a new Ford for as little as $8.00 a day and 8 cents a mile (including gas!).

We're proud to be doing our part to hold the line against inflation by improving our efficiency instead of raising prices. We hope the next time you need temporary transportation, you'll think of us first.

Town Prevails In Tennis Tournament

Winchester resident prevailed as winners in four events and figured as finalists in three other events as the Winchester Indoor Lawn Tennis Center closed its winter indoor tennis season with a seven-event tournament recently.

According to Jack Corfi of Winchester, who functioned as tournament director, William MacNeill won the men's singles event, Wil Aldrich teamed with George Goodwin of Haverhill to win the men's doubles, Bobbie McNamara won the women's singles (novice) while Maureen Noble and Peg McCarthy topped the field in the women's doubles (novice).

Also, stated Corfi, Winchester players contested several events right up to the finals. Youthful Jimmy Wynn teamed with Sue Whittaker of Arlington to reach the finals of the mixed doubles. Bob Horne was a finalist in the men's singles, Sue Cowan was a finalist in the women's singles. Jane Hersee was a finalist in the women's single (novice) event while Marie Furr, Peggy Wiseman, Cynthia Daley and Nancy Mills were contenders in the women's doubles competition to the end.

In reviewing the successful tournament Corfi, lauded the efforts of Bill Bird, Bob Pritchard and Winchester Indoor Lawn Tennis Center professional Don Usher for outstanding work as judges.

One disconcerting note of the tournament, added Corfi, was the report of a badly sprained ankle sustained by Sue Cowan as she played in the finals of the women's singles competition.

Girls Undefeated In 4 Tennis Games

The Winchester High School Girls' Tennis Team is undefeated after playing four matches, including two shutouts.

Coached by Mrs. Jan Dolan and led by co-captains Tricia Johns and Janet Lisberger, they won their initial contest 5-0 against Watertown. Traveling to Newton and Belmont, they won 3-1 and 5-0. Burlington came to Winchester and was defeated 4-1.

Other members of the varsity are Tona Buros, Chris O'Connor, Kathy Levinson, Nancy Raleigh, and Dawn Hudson.

Collerans Visit
With Macdonald

Mr. and Mrs. John Collerans and their son of 44 North Border rd. were among the guests at a reception given by Congressman Torbert H. Macdonald for visitors to Washington from the 7th Congressional District recently. In between votes on the floor of the House during the busy afternoon in the Congress, Macdonald entertained the visitors with coffee, punch, and sandwiches.

On Dean's List

Diane Della Svetura, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Della Svetura, of 20 Allen rd., and Maryanne Vaughan, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Vaughan of 4 Pierrepont rd., were named to the dean's list for the winter semester of the current academic year at Northeastern University.

Hospital Friends Present Reports, Hear M. Saraco

The spring meeting of the Friends of Winchester Hospital, held recently at the home of Mrs. Gustav Kaufman, 8 Wedgemere ave., heard about home protection.

During a brief business meeting, presided over by the Friends' president, Mrs. Roman DeSanctis, it was reported that last year a total of 20,273 hours of time were volunteered by the Friends. A note from Reese E. James, hospital administrator, was read concerning the gifts recently presented to the hospital by the Friends.

A fibre-optic microscope, ear-nose-throat head lamp, eye instruments, and X-ray printer were accepted and appreciated by the hospital, he said.

Police Officer Robert G. Baird presented a film strip on the do's and don't's of making a home safe. He stated that in 1966 Monterey, Calif., started a project of home protection by means of an engraving system. This procedure has now been proved a nationwide success, and its use by residents is encouraged by the Winchester Police Department, he said.

Mrs. Frank Gunby introduced guest speaker Michael D. Saraco, director of the Winchester Board of Health. A graduate of Winchester High School, Saraco has been Winchester's health director for 15 years.

He is the immediate past president of the Massachusetts Health Officers Association, a member of the executive board of the Massachusetts Environmental Health Organization, and serves on the state Advisory Council for Health Sciences in the Community Colleges.

Saraco stated that health is not a privilege, but the right of each person. The Winchester Board of Health is responsible for enforcing the regulations concerning everything from vaccination certificates to death certificates, general town environmental sanitation to food distribution and consumption.

An organizational chart of the Massachusetts Department of Public Health was distributed and its functions explained. The local Board of Health works in cooperation with the state Board of Health and the Federal Department of Health, Education and Welfare in coordinating current programs in patient care, environmental health, health research and education, food quality, and public sanitation.

Saraco discussed the coding of food products and the legal action that may be practiced by local boards of health in enforcement of food laws.

Judy McDonough In Career Day Program

Judy McDonough of Winchester, a junior at the Northeast Metropolitan Regional Vocational School, participated in a career day for nursery-kindergarten teacher aide students recently.

Representatives from two-year and four-year colleges were on hand to discuss the Northeast program and opportunities available to students who want to continue their studies in the field of early childhood education.

Mouth-to-mouth resuscitation is taught by Mrs. Richard (Cynthia) Kazanjian by Jack O'Neill at the Winchester Red Cross first aid course given in the chapter house. "Tammi," a plastic dummy specially constructed for such first aid teaching, was the gift of the Winchester Rotary. James Boone is co-instructor. (Star staff photo)

Real Estate Today

DANGER OF WRONG PRICING

Since human nature is predictable, there is a better than even chance that you'll put the wrong selling price on your home if you arrive at it yourself.

You may price it far above its fair market value because of sentimental attachment; expenditures you have made, or by heeding a well-meaning friend's advice. A house remaining on the market for months due to overpricing, frequently becomes a "White Elephant." It eventually sells for a much lower figure than it would have brought originally - had it been priced realistically.

On the other hand, you might under-price it because of unfamiliarity with the local market. This would be financial folly. Your safest bet is to list your house with a reliable Realtor who will help you price it correctly from the start and sell it for the best profit.

If you have any questions on this subject or on any other aspect of Real Estate, please feel free to call or drop in at JAMES T. TREFREY, INC., REALTORS, 27 Waterfield Road, Winchester - Tel. 729-6100.

Six Weeks' Adventure To Begin Fifth Year; Crawford Will Host

For the fifth year Six Weeks Adventure will come to Winchester. Crawford Memorial United Methodist Church will act as host this year.

Six Weeks Adventure is a program for children ages 6-11 designed to provide an opportunity for urban and suburban children to work and play together for six weeks during the summer. It is sponsored by the Ecumenical Association and the Six Weeks Adventure Committee which, this year includes Mr. Carol Fieleske Mrs. Beverly Jones, Mrs. Donna Kennedy, and Mrs. Martha Redding.

Simultaneously, the Lesley College-Winchester Summer School runs from July 2 to Aug. 11. Urban children in the Six Weeks Adventure program are given scholarships to attend the Lesley-Winchester summer school.

The Committee recommends that Winchester children attending Six Weeks Adventure also register for the summer school program in order that urban and suburban children have an opportunity to be together for the entire time. Though the programs run simultaneously, they have separate enrollment policies. Children are brought from Vinson-Owen School to the church at noontime and spend the afternoon in a creative recreational atmosphere. The program includes swimming, arts and crafts, sports, sewing, cooking, field trips and other activities which will be adapted to the schedule.

This year, the Committee is working with the Bridge Development Program of Roxbury which has a year round program similar to Six Weeks Adventure. Exchange visits are planned to enable Winchester children to learn more about the inner city.

Mrs. Constance Brown of Belmont will be director of the Six Weeks Adventure program for the second year. The program depends entirely on voluntary contributions of time and money. For more information contact Mrs. Betsy Pickup, 14 Bridge st.

Miss Johnson Acts As Tutor

Virginia Johnson of 47 Richardson st. is one of 95 Westfield State College students participating in a tutoring service sponsored by the Westfield Area Child Guidance Association.

Known as "Friends in Learning," the service provides a one-to-one relationship between child and tutor. Some of the children from non-English speaking homes, need language practice. Some need extra help because they are falling behind in their academic work. Tutors meet with the youngsters to whom they are assigned for approximately one hour a week - or, on special occasions more frequently for a brief period of time. Mrs. Fischer emphasized that the tutors are not teacher aides in the classroom but meet separately with youngsters apart from the classroom. Materials needed for the tutoring experience are provided by the school to which the tutor is assigned and there is frequent consultation with the youngster's regular teacher.

Lesson-Sermon

A happy awakening is in store for those who attend First Church of Christ, Scientist, Winchester this Sunday.

An excerpt from the lesson-sermon taken from Luke reads: "Look up, and lift up your heads; for your redemption draweth nigh." And from "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy: "Jehovah declared the ground was accursed; and from this ground, or matter, sprang Adam, notwithstanding God had blessed the earth 'for man's sake.' From this it follows that Adam was not the ideal man for whom the earth was blessed. The ideal man was revealed in due time, and was known as Christ Jesus."

Bahama Bank. The very sound of the words impresses us with how exotic and wonderful such a vacation could be. But even scientists are interested in the Bahama Bank and not just for relaxation! Near Southern Andros, the ocean seems to have a tongue! Yes, and its tip is nearly 40 miles across. How was this turbulence formed? By an ocean which washed the limestone particles to the surrounding banks. Openings along this bank cause the ocean's tongue to seem almost alive.

There are many sights worth seeing all over the world. Make your plans through McGRATH TRAVEL SERVICE, 14 Eaton Avenue, Woburn. The Bahamas is comprised of over 700 islands. ### Luther W. Puffer Offers Life, Casualty Insurance

The Luther W. Puffer Insurance Company of Winchester specializes in personal service to meet the insurance needs of area businesses and residents.

The firm, always located at 557 Main st., was incorporated in February of 1930. James E. Haley is president of the corporation. His wife, Dorothy M. Haley, is treasurer.

The business holds membership in the Massachusetts Association of Independent Insurance Agents and Brokers.

According to Haley, the company offers two kinds of insurance: life and casualty. Falling under the casualty category would be homeowners' policies, automobile and other personal property coverage. A policy can insure against fire, water damage, vandalism and malicious mischief, glass breakage, theft, comprehensive personal liability, medical costs, and physical damage to property of others.

Puffer Insurance serves as broker for six insurance companies: Aetna Casualty Life Insurance Company, Kemper Insurance, Shelby Mutual Insurance Company, Norfolk and Dedham Insurance Company, Royal Globe Insurance Company and Maryland Casualty Company.

Haley says 50 percent of the business is from commercial firms; 50 percent from area residents. Of this, 75 percent comes from Winchester.

For the commercial customer Puffer specializes in making surveys of insurance coverage and needs. This means a Puffer representative will examine current insurance coverage and determine if needs are met yet not overlapping. Afterwards he will make recommendations to the requesting firm for a package policy. This service is free, says Haley.

An insurance policy can be issued the day it is requested at Puffer Insurance. After hearing a customer's needs we are able to select the best policy to meet those needs, Haley says.

'Sun-Where' Productions Energize In Winchester

"Sun-Where," a stage production on energy created from improvisations by Winchester youth of the OM Theater Workshop Boston, under the direction of Paulett Taggart of 17 Ridgefield rd., will be presented at the Ambrose School next Wednesday with Mrs. P. T. Philliou coordinating for the Enrichment Committee of the Community Schools Association of Winchester.

In the production youth take on roles of human kitchen appliances. Actors combine the elements of yoga, movement, sensory awareness exercises, theater games, rhythms and improvisations on the energy theme.

There is a blackout when suddenly everything stops following a crescendo of sound and movement by the human kitchen appliances. Mother, Grandfather and Child are stunned. What to do? They walk to the electric power plant to meet the energy crisis head on. The three explore fossil fuels, hydropower and nuclear fission for solutions as the group enacts a roaring fire, a flowing waterfall and splitting atoms! Then on a journey into Nature they realize that man may have to re-shape his culture and economy to fit the Energy supply. The quest ends "Sun-Where" with a salute to this source of all Energy.

At the beginning of a current series of 12 weekly workshops offered by Ms. Taggart, in association with the OM Theater, the group decided to work toward an audience participation presentation. Using the usual elements of yoga and movement, they took their theme to the Museum of Science where they were guided through the energy exhibits by assistant director John S. Drabik. Belinda Rickles added her skills as a teacher of movement as did Revelle Kimball, a teacher in training.

The resulting theater piece, "Sun-Where," opened on May 6 at Metcalf Hall of the Unitarian Church for the families of participants, community players, school and church school teachers and others. A lively exchange between actors and audience followed. Students in the audience found evidence of creative drama as a successful teaching tool in a classroom and saw handbooks on the subject. They were advised of teacher training workshops.

Last Wednesday the show was taken to the Lincoln School. Mrs. I. E. Perry of the Enrichment Committee coordinated.

Paulett Taggart, who conducts creative drama workshops in the area, has directed international high school productions in Holland.

National Hospital Week May 6-12

Your Health Our Common Concern

Winchester Hospital

This week we join in acknowledging the people who work in the Winchester Hospital.

As a community based savings institution we express a common concern for your financial health and stability. We show it through our warm staff, highest rates and convenient hours.

They constitute a community of caring individuals that express a common concern for your health 24 hours a day, 365 days a year, both inside and outside the hospital walls.

One of the newest diagnostic methods is demonstrated by Winchester Hospital staff members.

The Xeroradiograph, recently installed, provides greatly improved detail, and is particularly helpful in detecting cancer in its early stages.

Full details are available from the Hospital.

Parade Hope: Biggest Ever

The organizers of this year's Winchester Memorial Day parade are hoping for the greatest participation ever in view of the end of the Vietnam War and return of prisoners of war.

The parade will take place on Monday, May 28, and begins at 9 a.m. at Leonard Field on Washington street. It ends at 11:45 a.m. at Town Hall, where the selectmen will review the marchers.

Leading the parade in the music department will be the Disabled American Veterans band, the Boston firemen's band, Winchester High School band, the elementary school band and the Dukes of Marlborough Drum and Bugle Corps. Also appearing will be St. Patrick's girls' drill team from Stoneham.

Members of the Winchester Police and Fire Departments will participate, as will veterans from the Veterans of Foreign Wars and American Legion, Boy Scouts and Cub Scouts from the Winchester Minute Man Council, Boy Scouts of America.

Military units marching will be from the 101st Engineer Battalion, National Guard Armory of Woburn and the Third Judge Advocate General Detachment, U.S. Army Headquarters, Boston Army Base. Also, the Woburn High School Naval Junior ROTC will participate.

Wedge Pond Group Unites Against Debris

More than 100 residents have signed a petition protesting the "alarming" problem of debris, litter and dirt drifting into Wedge Pond from the site of the housing for the elderly project being constructed on Lake street.

The petition will be presented to the Board of Selectmen Monday by Mrs. Susan Guild of 5 Gungarry rd. and Richard Cooper of 4 Wedge Pond rd.

Mrs. Richard Alt of the Wedge Pond Town House Apartments circulated the petition among the apartment dwellers abutting the pond. "The citizens are not only concerned about what a mess this project is making of the pond but also feel that their own developers, Wedge Pond Realty Co. of Melrose, is creating a grave problem by extending its parking lot facilities," the group said in a statement.

"The fill of both projects is continually sliding into the water." They contend "enormous piles of dirt, as well as the debris and litter, are drifting into the pond from the elderly housing site. They ask for immediate action.

Many of those signers were among residents participating in the day-long Wedge Pond cleanup of two weeks ago, when 10 truck loads of trash were collected and carted off.

Richard Cooper told The Star: "I think this petition exemplifies a growing awareness among town residents that we must protect the few natural water areas we have left in the town."

"It is also our hope that the landscaping which will eventually be done along the banking and shoreline near the new housing development will preserve as much of the natural and wild beauty as possible."

Supplier Ends Gas Shortage

Winchester's gasoline emergency ended this week with the announcement that a supplier has been found to keep town vehicles fueled for the next 12 months.

Bonded Oil System of Chelsea, after negotiations with town officials, said it would supply the town with gasoline for the 1973-74 fiscal year. "Our price for regular gasoline will be our posted commercial consumer price on the day of delivery plus applicable taxes," Bonded said.

"Today's posted price is 26.4 cents."

The price is considerably higher than the 14 cents a gallon Winchester has paid. In addition to the 26.4 cents a gallon, the town must pay 7.5 cents a gallon in state tax.

The company's contract with Gulf Oil Co. ends today. More than 15 suppliers were contacted in efforts to set up bids for supplying the town. Not only would the suppliers not bid, they indicated they wouldn't even negotiate prices.

A state of emergency was called two weeks ago in order to permit an emergency gasoline committee to bypass the required bidding process and negotiate.

Selectman Chairman Arthur E. Dunbar said the new price is in line with the prices being charged neighboring communities. He said the increase will add $15,000 to the budget, which will be taken from the reserve fund.

There will be an added expense: the town will have to purchase and maintain its own pumps. Supt. of Streets Robert G. O'Brien said the town perhaps can purchase the pumps, located in three places in town, from Gulf or install new ones for about $1200. He is waiting to hear from Gulf.

O'Brien's department is the greatest user of gasoline, taking 92,000 gallons a year.

New Chairman Takes Over, Slaps Star

By Pauline Dishmon

Mrs. Harriet H. Dieterich was elected chairman of the Winchester School Committee Monday for the coming year. Mrs. Mary Mears, retiring chairman, was elected vice-chairman, the position vacated by Mrs. Dieterich.

After thanking her associates for having confidence in her leadership, Mrs. Dieterich's first order of business was to tell the School Committee she did not consider them "arrogant," as reported by The Star and "other people," and though persons have a right "to oppose autonomy" of a school committee, if we are to "encourage people to continue to give time and energy to School Committee we have got to give those people support."

Moving along to the closed issue of McManus House, Mrs. Dieterich said, "We couldn't have used McCall for an elementary school without use of (McManus) land for a playground. It was not our decision. It was a legal decision, a ruling of town counsel."

Andy Twomey, student representative to the School Committee, attempted to enlist the committee's support in putting forth a warrant article through the Board of Selectmen for consideration by town meeting for $1200, the cost of a teletype machine to be used as a news source for the high school radio station.

Twomey noted the radio station used to have a UPI teletype paid for by The Woburn Times but they'd been without one for two years, almost as much time as they'd been without a station. (The radio station was reinstated with license and new aerial shortly after the opening sessions of this year's town meeting.)

Committee member Stephen Parkhurst was the first to point out the cost of a teletype was an item for the school budget. Though he appreciated the use of the equipment was for "a public service," he said he would have to reject school committee backing for such a warrant because "it is too soon after town meeting" to seek additional money and "if we support it we ought to use money already in the school budget."

Supt. of Schools William MacDonald agreed the teletype would be an asset and that its cost should be included in the school budget. However, he pointed out, it will be "18 months before we submit another budget." He reminded his listeners the school budget had been cut so much already it would be "hard to find $1200 in what's left."

Richard B. Lawrence responded with "we will lose credibility if we say we can find it when we can't."

Observer and citizen Mrs. Mary Promski told Twomey, "It is your right as a citizen to put this in the warrant regardless of anyone's support. Go get your petition and bring it back to the meeting. We'll sign it and then we'll fight it out in town meeting."

Her statement brought to a close the tossing back and forth of the issue from committee to committee. A motion that the School Committee support the warrant article was rejected by the members, who choose to sign as individuals rather than as committee members.

Later Twomey returned to the meeting with his petition, which began making the rounds.

In other business, Mrs. Austin Broadhurst, representing the Winchester High School scholarship committee, retired to an adjacent room in the Sanborn House with the School Committee for a closed session when they discussed this year's prospective scholarship winners. Following this "intermission" the School Committee voted to accept Mrs. Broadhurst's recommendations.

Minutes of the April 24 open School Committee meeting and executive session were approved. Reference was made to the executive session private file. Parkhurst suggested a review of this file might remove material no longer needed to remain private. The group agreed his suggestion was in order.

Mrs. Florence Hritz gave a report on school programs coordinated by Winchester Trails. This included nature walks in the Long and Smith Ponds vicinities, distribution of science kits and Audubon literature, slide presentations and training sessions for Trails guides and instructors. Last fall Winchester Trails conducted 13 trips and plans 16 more

Petition Seeks Soccer Program

A group of residents is petitioning the School Committee for establishment of a hockey program in the town's two public junior high schools.

Led by John D. Duffy of 32 Wildwood st., the group has 27 signatures on a petition stating that other towns have soccer teams and Winchester should offer this sport as an alternative to those who don't like to play football.

In a letter to members of the School Committee, Duffy said he has been involved in the Winchester Youth Soccer league for five years and has seen participation in this non-school league grow from 70 to 360 boys. Its popularity is due to "the genuine love for the game by youth and the overwhelming interest and acceptance of the sport by parents and others," he stated.

The letter continued: "The soccer league in which Winchester junior high schools would participate is the Middlesex League. That league is composed of schools from Woburn, Stoneham, Lexington, Belmont, Wakefield, Melrose, Burlington and Watertown.

"The majority of these schools are playing an interscholastic soccer schedule. Winchester does not."

He invites committee members to watch soccer games played by three Winchester teams, members of the Boston Area Youth Soccer League, May 26, 27 and June 9 and 10 at MacDonald Field.

'They Must Have Swung Like Apes'

About 40 Winchester parents attended an open forum Tuesday morning in the McCall Junior High School library led by Principal Joseph C. Forte, who discussed the proposed move of the junior high school to the former senior high school, curriculum, teaching methods, counseling and discipline.

Helping Forte field questions thrown by parents were Arthur Hannaway, assistant principal; Jack Waite, mathematics teacher; Edmund Musteikis and Alice Murray, guidance counselors; Francis X. Finigan, science teacher; and Barbara Holden of the language department.

Mrs. Mary Ann Crockett, president of the McCall Parents' Association, introduced the educators.

Forte opened his remarks by giving a rundown on the status of the move of McCall to the old high school. "Moving before June 19 is out of the question," he said. "However, materials are going across the street on a continuing basis." Science room tables have already been taken over and are fastened in, he noted.

By the end of next week the building should be ready for rugs, which is to be one of the last items, Forte said. Painting of ceilings and other parts of the building have been completed, and for safety, doors containing glass have the addition of wire. All these years 145 doors did not have wire and were in safety violation, he noted.

Forte made reference to broken glass in the old high school and said there is "no sense to repair the broken glass till we occupy the building. Just recently seven more windows in the science lab were broken, he said.

Questioned on the weather damage to the interior of the building, Forte assured a mother the windows were being boarded up as a temporary measure until occupancy.

Other damage, Forte said, came from a lead pipe being thrown through a portable unit.

The new McCall Junior High School has 18 sanitaries, Forte told the parents, adding "In no way will all of these be opened." The present McCall girls' lav was literally torn up recently, he said. The girls "must have been swinging or hanging like apes" from the stall frames according to the damage.

Though teachers continually spot check the lavatories to lessen vandalism, markings on the walls, and curb smoking, they continually find damage, graffiti and cigarette butts, he said. "When we catch them we can suspend them, but it is a difficult thing to check on."

Forte indicated expulsion from school

Two New Proposals For Housing For Elderly Discussed

Two proposals for new housing for the elderly in Winchester were revealed publicly for the first time this week when the Housing Authority said it will seek architectural plans on the Lincoln School site.

And apartment developer Lawrence J. Burns Jr. of Somerville appeared before the authority Monday seeking approval of his proposal to build 300 condominium units for elderly housing between North Border road and the industrial park in Stoneham.

Financial assistance forms have been sent to the state by WHA chairman Mary E. Murphy. In addition, the authority indicated it intends to have two sets of architectural plans drawn on the Lincoln School site.

One plan would show how the school's interior could be gutted and converted into apartments and other apartment buildings constructed nearby. The other would show a plan for demolishing the school and erecting all new buildings.

The authority prefers to use the existing school if possible. The authority would pick the cheaper of the two plans.

The School Department intends to close Lincoln School when the old high school is converted into a new junior high school and McCall Junior High School is turned into an elementary school.

As authority members pointed out Monday at their meeting, however, the School Committee has not committed itself in writing to relinquishing Lincoln School and through Massachusetts' autonomy laws could if it solely chose to keep the school for whatever purposes it desires, as it did with the disposition of McManus House.

"This is holding us up all along the line," Chairman Murphy commented on the School Committee's lack of commitment.

Authority member Ralph M. Atkinson commented that the Recreation Committee is also interested in the school for its programs but until the School Committee "makes a decision we can't do anything."

Member John L. Doherty feels the school is definitely suitable for rehabilitation. "It's a sound building. The foundation is okay," Murphy felt the School Committee "would bypass us... they can ignore us, but they have to answer (the Board of Selectmen)."

She felt the Board of Selectmen should ask the School Committee what its intention is.

The selectmen, meeting the same night in another room at Town Hall, voted against including an article in the special town meeting June 28 which the authority had

Special TM Is June 28; Solons To Get Town Bills

The Board of Selectmen this week set June 28 as the date of the special town meeting to act on an appropriation to build a new Leonard Pool and approved insertion of three other articles for the special meeting to act on.

—Lower the tax rate if the pool item is defeated; —Enact a law against drinking in public; —Appropriate $1,200 for a teletype machine for the high school radio station.

Not to be acted on at the special town meeting is the future of the Lincoln School site. The board will ask the Council on Aging, Housing Authority and Recreation Committee for evaluations on what they feel the site should be used for.

The Leonard Pool article seeks to appropriate $200,000 for the construction of a new pool on the site of the old natural pool now unusable. If the article fails, the selectmen want the money to be used to reduce the tax rate.

The public drinking article asks the legislature to allow towns to adopt a by-law prohibiting drinking liquor on the street. It is the result of a suggestion from a resident. Deadline for inclusion of articles is Monday.

The selectmen approved two other legislative proposals, both dealing with the elderly.

One would allow persons over 65 years of age to seek a waiver on their taxes until they die. The accumulated taxes would be paid when their house changes hands. A similar bill filed by the board several years ago died in a legislative committee.

The other would lower the age an elderly person can apply for a tax abatement from 70 years to 65.

The board approved two persons for appointment to the Recreation Committee: Howard Goodrow and John W. Noble. A 15-minute closed session was held by the board with Supt. of Streets Robert G. O'Brien prior to the meeting.

Following that, there was discussion about building a traffic island at Waterfield rd. and Church st. to prevent cars from cutting over in making that turn. Elimination of parking spaces in front of the bank and traffic flow at that end of Church st. will be studied by the town engineer.

The board received notice that James B.L. Lane was elected chairman of the Finance Committee, John H. Sullivan vice chairman; Lawrence J. Quigley Jr., D.D.S., chairman of the Board of Health; Harry E. Chelato chairman of the Water-Sewer Board; and Robert Starrett chairman of the Personnel Board.

The board has one position to fill on the town meeting created capital planning committee and 11 positions to fill on the Council for Aging.

Catherine Burke Will Be Honored At Rehab Center

Catherine M. Burke of Longfellow rd., will receive top honors for volunteer work at the New England Rehabilitation Center, Woburn, when the Woman's Volunteers Association holds its annual luncheon program at the center May 23.

A large number of volunteers will be presented 100-hour pins for service among the incapacitated patients. Miss Burke will be cited for 1200 hours.

A former Medford High School teacher for more than 25 years she devotes a large amount of her time to the volunteers' gift shop in the center's lobby, which includes greeting visitors and maintaining admission and discharge records.

Due to her command of Spanish and French, having taught these languages at Medford High School during a quarter century, there is no language barrier for visitors and patients who converse in French and Spanish when she is at the center.

Miss Burke has been donating her talents and services since 1961 when she inaugurated the gift shop at the Lawrence Memorial Hospital, Medford, and served there until 1970.

She also served as assistant treasurer of the Hospital Auxiliary for many years. Miss Burke is the daughter of the late Dr. Walter T. Burke, M.D., who practiced in Medford for a half-century.

Miss Burke received her AB degree in the pioneer class at Regis College in 1931, and completed graduate work in languages at Radcliffe College. She is a member of the board of trustees of the Regis College Alumnae, and a member of the Steering Committee.

She has traveled extensively in Europe, the Holy Lands, Egypt, Mexico, South America, Norway, Sweden and to the community of Hammett on the Arctic circle.

Her hobbies are needlepoint, sewing, and motionpicture photography which she uses in travel lectures.

Cleanup Check List Is offered

"Have you taken time to clean up for spring 1973?" asks Fire Chief I. Francis Amico. "Here are a few short points to re-check."

How about fighting pollution in your own back yard? Driedout brush, dead grass, old paper and other litter left from winter can all be breeding places for fire. Now, during spring clean-up time, clear the grounds around your home.

Every 12 minutes a home in the United States is destroyed or damaged by fire starting in rubbish, reports the National Fire Protection Association. Help make your home safe from fire by giving it a good, vigorous clean-out of trash now during Spring Clean-Up Time.

Three storage areas of the home -- attic, basement and closets -- are the spots where 16 percent of all dwelling fires start. Give these out-of-sight areas your attention today.

"A clean house seldom burns," advises Chief Amico. Keep hallways, attic, closets, cellar and favorite storage spots free from fire's favorite fuel -- combustibles like discarded clothing, lampshades, mattresses, newspapers, paint cans, etc. Clean up now, for a fire-safe home all year round.

Have you checked your home recently for faulty wiring, frayed electric cords and exposed wires? These hazards, along with defective electric appliances, constitute a major cause of fire in the home. Make sure your house is electrically safe.

Don't "cop out -- clean out!" This is the watchword from the National Fire Protection Association, along with the advice that "a little elbow grease today may save a lot of grief from fire tomorrow." Don't put it off any longer -- go ahead and clean out old "treasures" you'll probably never need or use again. Start today to rid your attic, basement and closets of all those highly combustible clothes and home furnishings you aren't using. Don't give fire a place to start.

"A good spring tonic includes energetically getting rid of winter's accumulation of rubbish and litter in and around your home. Help keep your family safe from fire by taking part in Spring Clean-up," urges the Fire Chief.

Key Recipient

Baird Named In Statistics

Thomas L. Baird of Richmond, Va., a Winchester native, has been named statistical supervisor at National Grange Mutual Insurance Company. One of his principal duties will be in development of programs coordinating insurance rating and Dr. Richard Kingsbury bureau requirements with the data processing department at NCM. He joined the insurance company after five years with the air force. He is a Winchester High School graduate and has completed specialized supervisory and management courses.

Final Concert

The Masterworks Choral will present its final concert of the season at Cary Hall, Lexington, on Saturday and Sunday at 8:30 p.m. Winchester residents who will be singing in the chorus are Dr. and Mrs. Richard Kingsbury and Dr. Richard Pharo.

Soloists will be Eleanor Edwards, soprano; Jacqueline Hargrove, contralto; Christopher Lindbloom, bass-baritone; and Clay Douglas, tenor. The Choral will perform Brahms' "German Requiem" and Bruckner's "Te Deum."

One Of the Friendliest Faces in Town

Lou Emerson is our Head Teller at the Winchester Savings Bank. He understands the importance of savings in our lives. He has helped people save for vacations, education, new appliances ... and just about everything else too. With a warm greeting Lou is always understanding to your particular problems. He's been helping our customers for 18 years. If Lou is busy, go to one of the other tellers. The girls are prettier than Lou. And they want to help people too. Our tellers are the people to see for savings. And isn't it a pleasure to have friendly people serve you?

Dickman To Retire; Reception Planned

A reception for Mr. and Mrs. Raymond J. Dickman is planned for Sunday, June 10. Mr. Dickman in June completes 44 years of service to the town as a principal in Winchester schools.

The reception in Chidley Hall at the First Congregational Church from 4 to 6 p.m. will allow citizens and former students to meet Mr. and Mrs. Dickman.

Many persons living in Winchester today remember Mr. Dickman from the old Wadleigh School, where he was principal for three years, or from McCall Junior High, where he was principal for 28 years. He has been principal at the Mystic School for the last 13 years.

In honor of Mr. Dickman's service and devotion to students, a scholarship fund has been established. Those desiring to contribute may make checks payable to the Raymond J. Dickman Scholarship Fund and mail to 10 Madison ave.

Vandalism

Complaints of vandalism from residents this week included five windows at Lincoln School, a glass pane at Forester's Flower Shop, 18 Thompson st., a storm door on a Priscilla lane residence, a mailbox on Westland avenue, and flowers on Sheffield West property which were trampled and pulled up.

Black paint was used to decorate a rear door at the Wyman School and white paint was smeared on a Calumet road porch. Damage to motor vehicles was reported on High street where an antenna and rear view mirror were broken on one car and a hood ornament on another and on Westland avenue where an antenna was damaged.

Three Cars In Head-On Crash

Two Winchester youths were among eight persons injured or shaken up after a violent head-on crash among three cars on Water st. Wakefield at mid-afternoon last Friday.

Police identified the youths as James Babin, 18, of 23 Middlesex st., operator of a car, and a passenger, Michael J. Sheehy, 17, of 21 Washington st.

Witnesses said they observed one of the cars attempting to pass another on the wrong side of the road when the collision occurred. Extra ambulances were summoned to remove the injured, and the road was closed while police and registry officials viewed the scene and the wreckage cleared.

Police said they intend to charge the driver of one of the cars with several violations of the motor vehicle laws.

Larcenies

A 1970 foreign car and another 1971 model were stolen from the Winchester train station parking lot and bicycles were reported missing from garages on Wildwood street and Mayflower road this week.

A Little League refreshment stand at the West Side Field was entered and an entrance chain to the field broken. Other complaints of larceny included a light from a High street pole, two "for sale" signs from a Grove street residence and a canvas tarpaulin from a Dunster lane garage.

★ Forum

might be a deterrent to some of the abusers but a student has not been expelled in Winchester in 30 years. "All I can do is suspend," Forte said. "The School Committee is the only authority to expell."

Are those doing the vandalism the ones who are not achieving? Answering this question from the audience, Forte said "not necessarily, but frequently this is the case."

Parents offered to the discussion plausible reasons for some of the misconduct and possible solutions. This led the dialogue to homework and lack of it; peer group pressure; school-oriented programs in cooperation with guidance people; courses on values; enrichment programs; and the disclosure recently that a student accidentally slashed another student in the arm with a knife.

Forte and Jack Waite explained that in the fall all seventh graders will be given mathematics tests to determine their math capabilities. Only those who are ready will go into an accelerated class for algebra 1. The tests will not affect a student's grades.

He also explained the "cluster" concept which will bring between 100 and 125 students under the tutelage of four or five teachers who will be better able to get to know students and provide opportunities for interaction between classes. For example, an English teacher might assign a paper on a topic that is being learned in social studies. The paper would be marked by both teachers.

Forte explained the new McCall has had corridor walls removed allowing for about 30 feet of additional space so that five or six rooms can feed into a central lab. All departments will have their own labs manned by existing personnel because funds are not available to pay for paraprofessional and clerical aides.

Because teacher contract negotiations limit him in assigning teachers to additional duties, Forte noted he is allowed to assign teachers up to five extra periods. He hopes to use teachers in the labs.

At the new McCall all teachers will have keys to rooms related to their subjects. They will also have keys to sanitaries as will handicapped students using wheelchairs or crutches. However, keys to the latter, he noted, will be collected at the end of each day to prevent duplicate keys from being made.

Parents' interests covered nearly every aspect of education. Other topics brought to the fore included selective electives, which got into personal typing, languages, student elections; a breakdown of the entire science preparatory courses by Finigan; quiet versus noisy classrooms; and student evaluations, which, as one parent suggested, might focus on those teachers not yet on tenure.

★ Soccer

B.A.Y.S. League, said that in 1969 there were nine teams in the league and there are now 94.

The text of the petition follows: "There is no soccer program in either of the Winchester junior high schools, whereas many other towns have very successful junior high teams. For example, Wellesley Junior High School has two soccer teams and plays a 16-game schedule.

"They have been in a school league for 10 years with Needham, which has two junior high schools with two soccer teams, as well as Newton, Milton, Braintree and Norwood. Those towns are supplying their high school soccer teams with talent.

"Although Winchester High School has had successful soccer teams without assistance from the junior high schools, much of our high school's talent were participants in the Winchester Youth Soccer Program which began five years ago. Youth Soccer has been the high school's farm system. But, there is a gap between the two, which should be filled by a junior high school program.

It is a fact that soccer is the fastest growing sport in this country. Winchester's youth soccer program, which began in the fall of 1968 with 70 boys, was bulging at the seams with 360 boys in the fall of 1972, and yet every boy was placed on a team and every boy played in a game.

"The youth love the game. The coaches, parents of students and players, teachers, and others believe that soccer is one of the best sports for youth participation.

"The physical structure of the boy is not an important qualification. Boys, big or small, fat or lean, have an equal opportunity to challenge each other for success and enjoyment in soccer. Junior high students, who do not desire to play football, should not be denied the option to play soccer.

A soccer team is probably one of the least expensive sport teams to equip. The players wear shorts, a shirt, stockings, and shoes -- they use no expensive padding, no expensive field equipment -- they only use a soccer ball.

"The superintendent of schools apparently has been unable to institute any new athletic programs in the junior high schools because of a moratorium on funds. But how many more years will soccer be tabled?

"Everyone talks about the absence of soccer in our junior high schools, but no one has been able to do anything about it.

"Let's make room for this growing sport of soccer. If school monies have already been appropriated by town meeting, let's see that some reasonable dollars, effort, time and consideration are directed to a soccer program for the students of both Winchester junior high schools to begin in the fall of 1973."

Balance

Concerning discipline of Winchester students, Joseph C. Forte, principal of McCall Junior High School, tells parents at an open forum Tuesday that teacher-student communications used to be "too tight." Then they polarized to be "too loose." The pendulum has swung to opposite ends and we are now "returning to a balance," he suggests.

How to travel with furs? If you are going to be visiting a warm country, take as few furs as possible. For those you consider indispensable, however, get a perforated plastic bag to keep your furs in and hang somewhere where the air will circulate so that the furs can breathe. Put a few moth balls in the bottom of the bag but do not let them touch the fur. Keep furs away from excessive dry heat as they will dry out.

We at MC GRATH TRAVEL SERVICE, 14 Eaton Avenue, Woburn can offer many extra hints to make your trip more enjoyable. One week vacations are becoming more and more popular. But people are getting tired of the "usual" resort - overcrowded and overpriced. A change of pace and place, financially attractive and within easy reach might be welcome and different after the same old past years. Serving The Community For 90 Years

It's Happening Here

The media present countless scenes of destruction, the direct results of vandalism in the ghetto, the inner city or one community or another. But it seems that residents of Winchester smugly think, "It can't and won't happen here." They deplore vandalism in other communities, but like the ostrich are prone to ignore early signs of similar action on a local level.

When six young men in their late teens can find nothing more interesting or useful to do than stand on the McCall Junior High School lawn and pelt McManus House with stones, things have certainly reached a new low. This incident was in broad daylight, at five o'clock on a recent Saturday afternoon. If an interested citizen had not informed the police, it might have continued.

It was a pleasant day, one well suited to helping fathers with spring-time chores. Maybe the youths had done their part and wanted a little recreation. Instead of throwing stones, they might have gone over to Manchester Field and thrown baseballs.

The Little League is in great need of volunteers to help the youngsters involved in its activities and the youths might have been able to help out as coaches. The cost of replacing windows in Winchester public schools last year was $8,300.

This is not an isolated instance of incipient vandalism in Winchester. It's just an example. Some of the inch-thick glass doors in the new high school building have been worked on with such energy and diligence that the hinges have been torn from their places, resulting in the removal of the doors.

Fortunate indeed is the citizen who has not had to pick up from his property beer cans thrown from passing cars. Sometimes bottles are deliberately placed in the street, a real hazard to the tires of an unsuspecting motorist's car.

A whiskey bottle concealed in a paper bag was left in the gutter in front of the Public Library, where it was shattered by a motorist returning books. On Sunday morning a large plastic bag full of beer bottles was in the street opposite the tennis courts on Palmer street.

Try inspecting the parking area on the east side of Winchester Station. Notice the number of beer cans and smashed bottles which decorate the premises. But still we slumber in the sweet content that it doesn't happen here. Maybe in South Boston, Dorchester, New York or, possibly, even Woburn. But never in Winchester. Nothing could be further from the real situation.

There are countless other incidents and actions which could be enumerated to bring out the point that vandalism does exist right here under our upturned noses. It must be halted, not by the police, nor the School Department, but by every concerned citizen doing his part by urging youths to be productive rather than destructive.

Winchester has always been an attractive community, appealing to residents and visitors alike. Are we going to allow it to be anything less? Are we going to give those who do not care the right to destroy what has taken years to build? If not, awake to what is going on right here in town and resolve to do your part.

Aid And Comfort Given To Left?

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

Your sympathetic treatment of the party-line hypocrisy of Larry Levin reflects no credit on The Star and serves only to outrage, even nauseate, the most hardened reader.

If your reporter was taken in by this well-known leftist plot, it can be written off merely as inexperience and naive gullibility. In the unthinkable event that such was not the case, we have no choice but to entertain serious doubts as to The Star's integrity and its claim to fair and impartial journalism, and we must read into the story a dangerous and sinister effort to give aid and comfort to those whose aim in life is to subvert our society by destroying the last vestiges of authority.

Mr. Levin obviously cares nothing for the Indians at Wounded Knee, but as clearly demonstrated by his past notorious support of the enemies of his country, he is vicariously exploiting the cause of the Indians to publicize his already brazen record of constant and unremitting opposition to the government of the United States, no matter what the issue.

He asks, "Is it a crime to give food to the starving?" I submit that he isn't even slightly interested in whether or not they were starving, or that they were starving because they were engaged in criminal defiance of the government. His only true interest was placing himself on record of approving of that defiance and using it to his own advantage.

He further impugns his own motives by admitting that he has never been in Wounded Knee, in fact has never even been in the mid-west, while the author of this letter has lived with an Indian family, and was on the Pine Ridge Indian Reservation, where Wounded Knee is located, as recently as last September.

Mr. Levin's alleged co-conspirator, Tom Oliphant of The Boston Globe, revealed the depth of their subversion in his story on the front page of The Globe last week after his arrest by the FBI, when he actually boasted that the main purpose of the air-lift mission to Wounded Knee was not at all to bring food to the besieged Indians, but rather, to use his own words, "to strike a blow for the militant left—to show that the law can be broken with impunity."

Mr. Levin's crocodile tears were not as honest as that.

Damaged Cars

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

I don't suppose the boys who damaged a dozen cars on Lewis road last Saturday night will ever see this letter. But I wish they could realize that almost all the cars belong to elderly women to whom the effort of having their cars repaired is a great burden.

Would the boys like to have their grandmothers treated so? Do they like to be considered mean?

I. S. Drake

Ch. 2 Salaries

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

After reading your "Letter from the Editor" of May 10, we are persuaded you should not be paid $10,000 if your output is supposed to be logical. What an assumption—that no contributions should be made to any cause if the people involved are paid more than you are.

So one should not contribute to the Heart Fund because some heart surgeons make more than $20,000! Do you buy an automobile only from a company whose president makes less than you do?

Channel 2 is the only television station in Boston operating on a "free market" basis. Television consumers have none of the "free market" controls over any of the other stations. If we do not like their output, we cannot put them out of business by not buying. With Channel 2 we can—and conversely, if we like their output, we can contribute—which is the only way we can exercise our "free market rights" in this upside-down television economy.

Channel 2 wants to stay in business so it puts on good shows, and good shows cost money. Why should we contribute to a station which only hires hacks? On the other hand, we will be glad if the reporters get good salaries, as long as they turn out a good job, and they do. Could it be that you are jealous of their abilities?

Mr. and Mrs. Philip M. Morse
EDITOR'S NOTE: There was no assumption intended on charitable contributions.

Vandalism

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

I find it a disgrace that just a few short weeks after the WEPA put forth so much effort to clean and brighten areas of Winchester that Wedgemere Station is once again covered with litter.

Vandals can be blamed in part for broken beer bottles, but commuters must take the responsibility for discarded cigarette wrappers, butts and ticket stubs. Is it really so difficult to walk the few steps to the litter baskets which are provided on the platform?

(Mrs.) Myra Fournier

Litter Committers

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

The Winchester Environmental Protection Association wishes to express our thanks to the recent contributors of litter baskets. The baskets will be mounted around town this spring.

The businessmen have played a large role in promoting a greater consciousness concerning anti-litter among the townspeople. The WEPA is very thankful. We wish to thank and acknowledge the following businesses: Star Stationery Shop, Baptist Church Women's Fellowship, Winchester Garden Club, Muraco School PTA, Bonnell Motors, Lane Funeral Home, Myron Berlow's and United Methodist Women.

Lynne C. Kyed
Secretary

Letters To The Editor

Statement Most Absurd, False

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

I am taking issue with your editorial of May 3 entitled "Town Loses Again." Your opening statement that "the School Committee refusal to release McManus House for use by the town's elderly as a meeting center is an example of the committee's arrogance and abuse of power" is the most absurd and untrue statement I have heard.

The School Committee is charged with keeping up and improving the educational opportunities for all the children in this town. Everyone knows that the citizens do not want to pay more taxes—including the members of the School Committee who also all pay taxes.

I may not be in agreement as to whether McCall School should be used permanently as an elementary school but since we do have the opportunity to do so at present instead of building another building, where is there any space for elementary school children around the building if we cannot use the land on which McManus House sits?

It is absolutely necessary to have the largest space possible around the building if it is to be used for an elementary school. Children arrive at least a half hour before school starts and as a safety factor need a place to gather where they will be safe as well as needing the outdoor space for recess.

The School Committee follows rules and regulations set by the state of which many town meeting members are unaware. Because there were only two candidates for either of two seats on the School Committee does not mean the two members so elected are unqualified.

It means that many able people who might otherwise run for this committee are deterred by the enormous amount of time it takes to serve the town in this way—only to be so unappreciated as your editorial glibly states.

Take a poll of all—I say all—senior citizens of this town. Many of us are more interested in quality education for the children of Winchester than we are in having a place of our own in which to meet. Why did so many able people choose Winchester in which to live? I would venture to say many came because of our good school system. Can we keep it that way? Not if the news media in our town is so short sighted.

Although I do not always agree with everything the School Committee does, I certainly feel it most improper to accuse them of abuse of power and arrogance for doing their duty as they see it. Let those who feel they can do a better job come forth and run for office.

Ruth M Beckley
5 Marshall rd.

Bugs And Things

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

After noticing a green panel truck, parked at the Noonan School most every day after school and weekends sometimes late in the evening for the last couple of months I became curious and inquired as to what was going on.

I was told that electrical work was being done on the intercom system and they were trying to get the bugs out of it. I also asked if they were having fires at the school as I had seen the Fire Department there a number of times during the day and night for no apparent reason and learned that the fire alarm system rings in false alarms. So it also must have bugs.

It appears to me that what is needed is an exterminator instead of an electrician. Or just cut the source of power and funds and let the whole thing die on the vine, bugs and all. It sure bugs me the way our tax moneys are spend on some things.

Walter F. Gurney

Christ Has Risen!

I would like to express our sincere gratitude to the editor and staff of The Winchester Star for placing articles pertinent to the Greek Orthodox Church of Woburn on the church page of your newspaper.

Our church serves the spiritual needs of approximately 30 families from Winchester. The remarks from these families have been very favorable and many have expressed gratitude in reading the Greek Orthodox column in your paper.

Once again, we thank you most sincerely for your cooperation and we hope you will continue to publish our church news.

Schools Praised As Exciting, Ideal

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

Following is a copy of a letter received by the Parent's Association Board of the Ambrose School. We would like to share it with all the parents of our school through this column. Thank you.

Carolyn S. Gunby
Publicity Chairman

Supt. William MacDonald
15 High st.

Dear Mr. MacDonald:

Boston University's School of Education conducts a special program for liberal arts graduates who are interested in teaching. The program's director is Dr. Roselmina Indrisano. As Dr. Indrisano's teaching fellow, my chief responsibility is to lend assistance in this program.

Presently the 15 students involved are student-teaching in two of the Winchester public schools, the Ambrose and Parkhurst schools. Because I serve in the capacity of supervisor of their student teaching, I am in these schools two days each week. Having spent the past 18 years as an elementary school teacher, I feel competent in evaluating schools, teachers and administrators.

My supervisory duties have been a most positive experience largely because of the administrators of these schools, Mr. Robert Forest and Mr. Andrew Allen. Their schools are exciting, pleasant, challenging, creative places of learning.

Each time I visit, I am happy for these children who are privileged to learn in such model schools and for their teachers whose expertise is so readily apparent and also so very contagious. Selfishly, perhaps, I am most pleased for our student-teachers, who are entering in these ideal situations. Skilled, caring master teachers operate in an atmosphere that not only permits, but rather fosters intensely creative and highly sophisticated performance. What better models for our student-teachers. The superior quality of these novices' performance is the direct result of witnessing and imitating excellence.

I feel compelled to congratulate you on such excellence as evidenced in the superior leadership of your administrators, the supreme dedication of your teachers, and the fiery enthusiasm of your pupils. At the same time, I wish to express gratitude to you and to the entire Winchester public school system. Because of your support of our program, another very well-prepared group of new teachers will be available to schools in general and children in particular.

Sister Joan Bealisto

Simplicity Best

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

While attending the excellent Harvard Glee Club concert recently in the high school auditorium I noticed the following:

Main stage curtains, blue; stage valance and side curtains, mustard yellow; slats in front of stage, red; two entrances on side of stage, kelly green; oblongs around two clocks, blue and purple.

The blue curtains are very attractive, but WHO is responsible for the rest of the rainbow?

Bright assorted colors are great in the right places, but this is a hodge podge. Usually the simpler a thing is, be it clothing, a building, car, garden, what have you, the more beautiful it is.

A fairly small amount of paint could replace the red, green and purple with preferably the same shade of blue. With the neutral light walls it should look infinitely better.

And while there is so much discussion about the center, I've heard no mention of good taste. So much could be done so easily by removal of many signs. I don't see that signs help one make a purchase except in the case of a rare huge sale.

If one needs food, clothing, drugs, gasoline or a haircut, one usually goes to the specific store without being lured inside by garish signs. It makes me think of a disarmament.

If the WBA made a pact to remove all but the name sign of each store I'll bet the improved attractiveness would have a beneficial effect on business.

For more improvement I would love to see trees along the center sidewalks such as Lexington has. Their center is very appealing now because their store fronts have a common theme (Colonial). Again, simplicity, not hodge podge.

Letter From The Editor

Committees Involved In Name Calling; Sign WEPA Uses Offends Commission

Larry Levin, subject of a story in last week's Star, has been indicted by a federal grand jury in Rapid City, S.D. The 25-year-old Winchester man was charged with six others for violating the federal anti-riot law.

The government says the seven "did willfully combine, conspire, and confederate and agree together and with each other to aid and abet persons occupying Wounded Knee, S.D., in participating and carrying on a riot in violation of 18 U.S.C. Section 2101 (a)(1)(D) and 18 U.S.C. Section 371."

Levin tells the newspaper that he never participated in any activities in Wounded Knee or anywhere else in South Dakota and wasn't on board the flight that dropped food to the holed-up Indians. (Some readers felt The Star's story wasn't quite clear on that point.) Anyway, he now goes to Wounded Knee to appear before a grand jury with his "co-conspirators," who no doubt will be dubbed the Wounded Knee Seven.

Bunker Hill Day in Winchester this year will be celebrated on Monday. Most town employees will have that day off. Why Winchester and other surrounding towns celebrate this Boston holiday has been the subject of some conjecture.

Ed Donnelly, the selectmen's executive secretary, thinks it's because Winchester and other towns around here were part of Charlestown at one time. Maybe our readers have some different information on the origins of this interesting tradition.

There will be no parade here on Bunker Hill Day but the organizers of the Memorial Day Parade are hoping to get more veteran participation in its holiday parade May 28 than in previous years.

Let's hope they get a good turnout of marchers and the townspeople turn out in full to watch. Memorial Day is a time of remembrance, something we should all do to honor those who died for the country.

One group in town that will not likely be marching is the Winchester Peace Committee. They asked parade organizer John Horne for permission to participate but were denied it on the grounds their appearance with peace signs would be inappropriate.

Mike Strah of the Peace Committee said the group was thinking of having a car in the parade with some sort of sign saying they are dedicated to a world without war. "We said we'd do whatever is within the limits of the parade."

But peace signs are not even within the outer limits.

The town's Committee on Names is about ready to make a decision on the School Committee's request for renaming some of its buildings. Are you ready? The present McCall Junior High School would be renamed the Lincoln School.

The old high school would be renamed McCall Junior High School. What the Lincoln School will be called depends on what its eventual disposition will be. Chances are most people will call it the old Lincoln School as long as it remains standing.

Many persons still refer to the present McCall as the old high school. And chances are that for at least the next generation those who now refer to the old high school (that's the building vacated when the new high school was finished) will still call it that.

And no doubt the present McCall's will be called old McCall's for some time to come. The new high school is intended to be called simply: Winchester High School. That stands the best chance of catching on.

More name calling: The Committee on Names proposes to call Lake, Palmer and Fletcher streets one name since it seems to them that's all one street. They haven't made a decision yet which of the three names, or something new, it will be called. Lake street is being given serious consideration.

But the committee can expect a fight on that one since some feel dropping the Palmer will dishonor that old Winchester family. And what will the Fletchers feel? How about Fletcher-Palmer street, like Vinson-Owen School?

But maybe there's a Lake family in town that will feel insulted. So we'd better make it Lake-Palmer-Fletcher street, not necessarily in that sequence.

Or how about PalmLakecher street?

Park Commissioner Bill Ryerson thinks the old precinct notice board on the Common looks shabby and asked the Board of Selectmen to remove it. But the notice board is now being used by the Winchester Environmental Protection Association in its advertising campaign to keep Winchester beautiful.

Ryerson is going to ask WEPA assistance in getting the board down. The selectmen think it's useful for town groups and this week asked the Highway Department to paint it.

Members of WEPA, incidentally, are called Weepers by some town officials.

Ryerson thinks it's ironic that the WEPA, engaged in removing blighted commercial signs around town, should use a sign he feels is aesthetically offensive.

The Park Commission, currently sprucing up the Common, thought the removal of the precinct board at Waterfield road would improve the Common's looks. The commission sent a letter to the Board of Selectmen this week asking for the notice board's removal.

The board is the old Precinct 5 board, unused since the new Precinct 2 notice board went up at Town Hall.

Tuesday was "senior skip" day at the high school. Not only did three seniors skip, they crashed. In a car, that is. At the corner of Mystic Valley Parkway and Main street, with another car. No one was hurt.

The Winchester Housing Authority this week found itself in the uncomfortable position of wanting officially to ask the town to turn over the Lincoln School for elderly housing but being unable to say how much it will cost because of the expense in hiring an architect to determine that.

But the town meeting is unlikely to turn the building and site over to the authority unless it sees some plans. So the authority kind of left it up to the selectmen to decide what to do. The selectmen decided Monday not to anything—at least for a while.

That circular predicament of being unable to come up with plans until town meeting approves the concept and town meeting not approving until the plans are done is kind of like the stories why Winchester doesn't have a first class restaurant. No one will build such a restaurant in a town without a liquor license. But the town won't approve a liquor license for a restaurant until it sees what kind of an establishment it has.

The Winchester Unitarian Church in deference to rising food prices and "heavy demands" on the time of church members did not serve a full-course dinner at its annual meeting.

Town Hall never rocked like it did last Saturday night. About 650 persons attended a dance to hear the Reddy Teddy, a local group. When the Reddy Teddy plays it's more like a concert than a dance. The kids really love their sound.

Firefighter Joe Riga's fight against having to fill in during his off-hours for an absent officer has been continued for a second time by the Civil Service Commission.

The first time Riga hadn't received a notice about the hearing and missed it. The second time Chief J. Francis Amico was sick and it was postponed. New time and date: May 24, 1 p.m., 294 Washington st., Boston.

Members of the Police Department recently lost their campaign to organize a Winchester chapter of the International Brotherhood of Police Officers. The group circulated a petition with 24 members in favor, a majority of the force.

But when it came time to vote to keep their own association or join the Brotherhood the vote was 24 to 14 for keeping the Winchester Police Association.

So the group withdrew the petition, which allows them to re-submit within the year. Officer Bill O'Neill, who favored the Brotherhood affiliation, was asked why some changed their minds. "It's a small department. Somewhere along the line they changed their minds." He said eight or nine years ago a similar move lost by two votes.

He favors the affiliation because the officers have no written contract with the Board of Selectmen, only a verbal one.

Protest Now

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

Two weeks ago Winchester took the first step toward having our end of Cambridge Street look like Woburn's Cambridge street. We now can get double-thick shakes, garden fresh vegetables and super octane gas. Soon brand new Torinos and used Country Squires then perhaps doughnuts made fresh every four hours and chicken that's finger-licking good.

Perhaps you won't mind driving along Cambridge street and seeing only the green of S.H. stamps and a few pitiful trees between this parking lot and the next one. A few trees whose job will be to catch the litter drifting across the street.

If this does not worry you, can you concern yourself about Winter Pond?

Everyone agrees that the proposed building site of the Ford agency is a watershed for Winter Pond. But no one knows for certain what effect the paving of five or six acres will have on the pond. There is much talk of culverts, drains and of redirecting the water into an existing brook. But can anyone assure us that the Pond will not be damaged?

As the residents of Cross street can tell you - don't wait to protest until the Planning Board has bestowed its blessing on the construction plans and the Conservation Commission has issued the permit. Protest now before Winter Pond becomes a memory.

Mary E. Nolan

Defense Lack

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

The lack of comments from the joint chiefs of staff on the recent military cutbacks announced by Secretary of Defense Elliott Richardson is amazing.

Consider that Charleston, Philadelphia and Norfolk Naval shipyards' water approaches could all be destroyed simultaneously by simple acts of sabotage that would stop all ship access or egress for a number of weeks, while the strategic location and the ideal approach to deep water of Boston Naval Shipyard and Newport Naval Base preclude such sabotage. Is this preparedness? The Atlantic coast would now be completely without a naval base.

To assure all concerned citizens that the military experts and the Armed Services Committee have been honestly involved in the decision making and that defense cutbacks have not been made on political or economy reasons alone, a halt of all closure actions and the conducting of immediate hearings of the House and Senate Armed Services Committees, with the joint chiefs of staff assured of no reprisals, has been suggested.

The Defense Department has not followed congressional statutes which require that the House and Senate Armed Services Committee be given detailed justification for the shut-downs. Sect. 613 of P.L. 89-558 provides that "no camp, post, station, base, yard or other installation under the authority of the Department of Defense (D.O.D.) shall be closed or abandoned until the expiration of 30 days of continuous session of the Congress, following the date on which the Secretary of Defense of the Secretary of a Military makes a full report of the facts including the justification for such proposed action to the Congress."

Congress does have the right to keep these bases open under the Military Appropriations Act.

Is it any wonder why Massachusetts voters feel that the "short end of the stick" is in their grasp, when $50 million is being spent to refurbish a navy facility at New Orleans (the home town of Rep. F. Edward Hebert of Louisiana, Chairman of the House Armed Services Committee) and (thousands of workers made idle in Rhode Island and Massachusetts. The phase-out in these two states amount to nearly 60 percent of the entire shut-downs in military defense.

Again I ask, Where is the justification? Is this defense preparedness? John J. Shields

Hewis' Ideas Ahead Of Time

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

I was interested reading Mrs. Kincaid's letter of May 3 praising Mr. Amico for all his good deeds. Among his accomplishments Mrs. Kincaid mentioned the stabilization fund.

I wonder how many more "faithful town officials" will be credited with establishing this fund. A few years ago Mr. Doucette, then chairman of the Finance Committee, was so honored.

At that time I wrote to The Star stating that the stabilization fund was first put to the town meeting by Arthur J. Hewis Jr. (TMM pct. 1). As I stated before, being a "mere machinist" the idea was not good and not approved. Later, while he was working out-of-state, the fund was brought before the town meeting and adopted.

It was the "best thing for the town," they said. It seems to me that your profession, your college degree, or your address make you intelligent enough to know what you are doing and for being accepted.

Arthur has been ahead of everyone with good ideas. For instance: The incinerator—it would have cost less if it had been built when he recommended it. But he wasn't the "right man" to recommend.

He urged the town not to sell the land on Tufts Road. Later when we needed another grade school he gave his "free" suggestion to put the school on that land. It was not the right place and impossible.

The town hired a consultant for thousands of dollars to find a proper place for the school; yes, you guessed it, he said the school should be in that area (now the Muraco School).

Arthur suggested strongly to the town to buy the Beags & Cobb property; it had its own power plant. Maybe some day, he said, we could build a school or other municipal building there. What a beautiful, central place for a high school—dry land. Instead we have an apartment house with lots of rumors (or is it roomers), and an expensive high school on swamp land that once was a dump, still not accepted, sinking and ill-kept.

He worked hard for a vocational school in Winchester for many years. One location was the Wadleigh School, a sturdy building where students could have participated in Winchester sports and activities. Now it's an empty lot.

Someday we'll have a town manager or some other form of business administration to run the town's business properly; another of his suggestions.

At the last town meeting, with a little cooperation from town officials, there would be no tax increase (by lowering the school budget). It has been done in other towns as Mr. Parkhurst agreed—AFTER the town meeting.

These are only a few of his ideas and projects. No one can dispute the fact that Arthur knows the law and town meeting procedures. Many will admit that "he does his homework" but very few realize how much time he has put in in these 30 years.

Many of his recommendations go back as far as 1944, hours of thankless research into all these projects with no consideration of personal gain.

"Newcomers" wouldn't know that Hewis was the originator of many articles or that others have accepted praise and recognition for "serving the town well."

Maybe someday, someone will say, "Thank you, Mr. Hewis, for a job well done." Louise M. (Mrs. Arthur J.) Hewis

Music Club To Present Public Concert

The Winchester Music Club will present its fifth annual student concert on May 20 at 8 p.m. in Metcalf Hall, Winchester Unitarian Church, Main street.

The student concert, now a traditional activity for the month of May, is the one public program the Winchester Music Club sponsors. It is the culmination of the year's series of club programs usually limited to students, fellow student club members, and music teachers.

The special interest provided by the annual student concert is its purpose to give the entire Winchester Community an opportunity to see and hear the more mature musicians who have developed through several years of study and club membership to merit public performance and appreciation.

This is an evening of youth creating for their community. Parents, relatives, citizens interested in the creative ability of Winchester youth may attend the free concert.

Under the supervision of John Willis, Winchester piano instructor, the following program will be presented:

Crittenton Circle Presents New Slate

The annual meeting of the Winchester Circle of the Florence Crittenton League was held recently with a luncheon at the Winchester Country Club.

Mrs. Paul Fitzpatrick presided as the reports of the various committees were read and accepted, bringing to focus the efforts and accomplishments of the circle in its aim to support the girls residing at the Crittenton Hastings House.

Mrs. George Hauenstein, nominating chairman, presented the slate for the 1973-1974 year:

President, Mrs. James S. Quinn; vice-president, Mrs. Maxwell McCreery; recording secretary, Mrs. Thomas Raphael; corresponding secretary, Mrs. Paul Douglas; treasurer, Mrs. Herbert T. Wadsworth; membership treasurer, Mrs. Robert L. Hamilton.

Directors, 1 year, Mrs. Robert Clark; 2 years, Mrs. Henry Toomajian; 3 years, Mrs. Jay Finn.

Jaycee-ettes In Drive To Alert Pregnant Women

During Healthy Baby Week, which began on Mother's Day, the Winchester Jaycee-ettes joined with the annual prenatal care educational drive of the National Foundation March of Dimes in helping to disseminate vital information to save lives and improve health of newborns.

In order to make future mothers aware of the importance of regular medical checkups and skilled medical attention during pregnancy, the Jaycee-ettes are distributing literature to the offices of obstetricians, pediatricians and general practice physicians in Winchester; also the Winchester Public Library and the Well-Baby Clinic.

Nutrition posters to emphasize the importance of expectant mother's diets will be on display at the library and clinic.

Also, to observe Healthy Baby Week, a case of formula will be given to the first new resident of Winchester born at the Winchester Hospital on or after May 13. Also, a layette will be donated to a Winchester expectant mother, a gift of Jaycee-ettes.

SOPRANO Elisabeth Phinney of Winchester is one of 16 New England singers who will be featured by Associate Artists Opera Company in a benefit concert on May 30 at 8 p.m. in Jordan Hall. The program, "An Evening of Opera Scenes," will include duets, quartets and quintets from all-time favorite opera masterpieces. Tickets are available at Jordan Hall box office or at the Boston Center for the Arts.

Hospital Friends Plan Orientation Meeting Wednesday

The Friends of Winchester Hospital will meet May 23 at 7 p.m. in the Board Room of Winchester Hospital to hold an orientation session for persons interested in volunteer hospital service.

Mrs. Michael McDonald, Mrs. Gordon Graham and Mrs. Sherman Mapes will be in charge of the meeting.

Volunteers are needed at the continuing care unit in the evenings. Anyone interested in volunteer work at the hospital should attend the orientation meeting and tour the hospital or call the volunteer office at the hospital for further information.

Wellesley Club Donates Money

The Winchester Wellesley Club annual meeting and picnic was held May 9, inclement weather notwithstanding, at the home of Mrs. Robert Stone of 10 Wood In.

Social chairman Mrs. Richard Swanson was responsible for all arrangements. Local resident guests included Mrs. David Karp, mother of Caroline, Wellesley class of 1974, and Mrs. George Casey, mother of Maria, class of 1976.

The major business of the meeting was to allocate the profits from the Wellesley Club figure skating program. The membership voted to continue dividing its contributions among the Winchester Scholarship Foundation, Wellesley College and Students' Aid, the scholarship adjunct of the college.

The gifts comprise the second major contribution from the club to each of these organizations this fiscal year.

The double contributions were made possible by the membership undertaking two major community service projects in one year: the Wellesley Mornings Lecture Series, and the Boots'n'Blades skating program.

President Mrs. John Hamilton reaffirmed that next season's skating lesson schedule will approximate this year's with Saturday morning classes to be held at the Universal Sports Arena, Winchester. Registration has been postponed until late spring or early fall.

Speakers for the afternoon program were five Wellesley seniors who told of their experiences in the college-sponsored summer laboratories in urban affairs. Two of the girls had been interns in the initial summer of a successful new Wellesley-in-Los Angeles program with assignments ranging from the L.A. suicide prevention center and L.A. police academy to city hall and UAW meetings.

Planning was a joint venture of the college political science department, the alumnae, and the Coro Foundation. The latter is a professional organization established to train people for effective leadership in public affairs.

Two more participants in the Washington, D.C., program spoke of their positions in the House of Representatives, Republican Legislative Research Group and at the Federal Trade Commission.

The summer laboratories are designed to help students understand how urban decisions occur, develop their ability to learn and act, cope with ambiguity and complexity and wrestle with tough questions on shaping the future. The students' success was noted by one suicide prevention center official, "They asked the questions we had stopped asking ourselves or had become reluctant to ask."

Currently the Boston summer urban program is being expanded and made more structured on the models of the 26-year-old Washington internship program and the new Los Angeles program.

Wellesley students are now serving in Legal Aid for the Poor, in Roxbury in the newly created housing court and in mental health clinics of some Boston hospitals.

Unitarian Players To Repeat 'Burial' Drama In Festival

The New England Theater Conference is holding its 20th annual drama festival next week. For the first time Winchester community theater will be represented.

The Unitarian Players are sponsoring the production of "The Burial of Esposito" which was performed here in town on March 2 as part of an evening of one-acts.

Produced and directed by Marcia Morris of 23 Yale st. "Burial" is a devastating picture of an immigrant barber's guilt and eventual emotional breakdown over the death of his son. George Connor of 403 Main st. in the lead role will give a moving portrayal of the grieving father, Nick Esposito; the suave cruelty of the prosperous brother-in-law will be played by Al Leach of 210 Pond st.; the hysterical mother will be portrayed by Terry Travalline of 87 Thornberry rd.; and the gentle appeal of the son Tony will be played by Tom McLennan of Woburn.

The cast, together with a crew including stage manager Karen Delore; sound, Frank Nagle; set, Tony Schellino; and make-up, Peter Bloch, will perform the play next Thursday evening at 7:30 p.m. in the Spingold Theater of Brandeis University. This is opening night of the festival, which will be in session for four days, through May 27, at which time awards will be presented for the winning play, the best actor, actress, director and crew. Tickets will be available at the door. For further information contact Karen Delore, 25 Central st.

Mrs. Bartley On Local VNA Staff

Mrs. Sharon Bartley has been appointed to the nursing staff of the Winchester Visiting Nurse Association. Announcement was made at the May meeting of the organization at the home of Mrs. Phillip J. Blumberg, 35 Foxcroft rd. A sandwich luncheon was served.

Mrs. Hugh McCarthy Jr., president, officiated over the business meeting at which the treasurer's report was received and approved. The operating budget for 1973-74 and adjustments were discussed and approved.

Rev. Jack Zoerheide addressed the meeting on the activities of the Winchester Council for the Elderly. He described a series of actions of the council directed toward improving conditions of Winchester's elderly citizens. He cited a recently completed survey aimed at clearly identifying needs and number of elderly citizens in the town. This information will form the basis for focusing further efforts of the Council to improve future conditions.

Marriage Vows Are Exchanged By Elaine Vargis, Mr. Taslis

The Greek Orthodox Cathedral of New England in Boston was the setting for the

Mrs. Constantine G. Taslis

Saturday, May 12, nuptials of Elaine Vargis, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Aris George Vargis of 47 Bacon st., and Constantine George Taslis of Athens, Greece, son of Mr. and Mrs. George Taslis of Toronto, Canada.

The ceremony was officiated by the Rev. John Zaretos, assisted by the Rev. George Economou. A reception followed at the '57 restaurant.

The bride, who was escorted to the altar by her father, wore a white silk organza gown with a halter bodice encrusted with seed pearls and crystals with a circular skirt. Her capelet of silk organza was appliqued with Chantilly lace extending to a chapel-length train. Her headpiece was a banded cap of Chantilly lace flowers caught up by a silk illusion chapel-length veil. She carried a bouquet of miniature gardenias.

Maid of honor Marica Arvanites of Everett was gowned in petal pink voile with a deep double collar of self fabric, fitted waistline and full bias skirt. Her garden bouquet gathered Gerba African daisies and spring garden flowers together.

Junior bridesmaids were Melissa Rosyna and Lynn Jeuvellis, both of Newburyport, both cousins of the bride. Both wore pink voile with a fitted bodice delicately embroidered with vertical bands of Nottingham lace, sashed at the waistline and a gathered skirt ending in a deep flounce at the hemline. Their bouquets were like the maid of honor's.

Serving as best man was Nicholas Verenis of Quincy, Simon Taslis of Toronto, brother of the bridegroom; and Paul Jeuvellis of Newburyport, Robert Dunn of Lexington and Peter Keir of Villanova, Penn., all cousins of the bride, seated guests.

The mother of the bride selected a blush pink silk chiffon gown with a basque bodice embellished with Swiss embroidered flowers of pink and mint and a circular flowing skirt covered by a chiffon capelet.

The bride was educated at Rogers Hall School for Girls, Endicott Junior College and John Robert Powers School. She is associated with the Daughters of Penelope and the Greek Ladies Philoptchos Society.

Mr. Taslis has studied at the Toronto Academy of Music.

Following a wedding trip to the Greek Islands, the couple will reside in Athens, Greece.

All veterans' graves will be decorated with American flags for Memorial Day.

The Memorial Day Committee has extended an invitation to all Winchester veterans to participate. Uniforms are optional. Commanders Louis Carliotta of the American Legion and Frank Farris of the Veterans of Foreign Wars are looking toward a large turnout of veterans.

The route of the parade is as follows: From Leonard Field the marchers leave for Calvary Cemetery via Washington street; at 9:45 they return to Town Hall via Washington street; wreaths will be placed at honor rolls in front of Town Hall at 10 a.m.

★ Elderly

wanted in order to have the property turned over to WHA.

Chairman Arthur E. Dunbar said the School Committee will turn over the property to the town when the other buildings are renovated. The board voted to have the Council on Aging, Housing Authority and Recreation Committee submit plans by mid-September on what they feel the school should become.

Meanwhile, at the WHA meeting, discussion turned to zoning. Because the town two years ago adopted an elderly housing zone, no new zoning law would be required for Lincoln School elderly housing. All that would be required is a "map change" — designation of this particular area as an elderly zone.

Doherty felt the school is more adaptable to rehabilitation than the old laundry building at Mill Pond was to an office building. But Atkinson had reservations. "With that type of building it might be better to start from scratch."

Plans are very uncertain at the moment, but if the school were rehabilitated, three or four more buildings would be constructed on the 3½-acre site for elderly housing.

The members unanimously approved a motion requesting the selectmen approve an article for the June 28 town meeting warrant that "if there is any possibility the property is available" it be turned over to WHA.

The selectmen, an hour later and unaware of WHA's action, voted against inclusion of such an article. It remains to be seen whether the authority convinces the selectmen to change their minds before the warrant closes Monday.

The other project, at this point merely an idea, is to build 300 units of condominiums with an adjacent 100 to 150 bed nursing home on 14.6 acres of land on Forest cir., located off

Forest st. and the Fells Reservation.

Developer Lawrence Burns said there would be 22 units to a building, 11 apartments on the second floor and nine down, with a community center with "central feeding facilities." A bus would take the elderly to town, he said. Units would cost $20,000, according to Burns.

He added that there could be a movie theater, a 24-hour security guard and a putting green and "whatever we can throw in there to make them happy," including a small food store and a state-sponsored "feeding" program.

The area is single residence zoned.

He said his partner is Bowen Construction Co., "a $50 million company," which develops apartments. He said he is building 150 townhouses in Malden, called Crestview; 150 units of turnkey housing in the North End, has built 139 units of elderly housing in Portsmouth, N.H., and 150 in Westbrook, Me.

He said the monthly cost to the elderly would be $70 to $80. Told town zoning allows 14 units an acre, which on his acreage would limit him to 200 units, he said the cost per unit would be higher.

He had sought support from WHA on his proposal but none was forthcoming. WHA told him his first step is the Planning Board. He said he will make an appointment with them.

Burns said he was looking for support from town agencies to see if the plan was feasible and proper. He added that he could if rebuffed seek approval under the anti-snob zoning legislation but it wouldn't be worth it for him to take that course since citizen court suits could tie him up for a couple of years.

★ Metro

look at it." The wording of the proposal "needs to be studied further. Implications of the proposal deserve a little more time for study," she said.

Information from Amadio's office explains there is no commitment to participate in any of the pilot projects nor will a town find itself in a position to have the plan forced upon it at the end of a year.

The final sentence of the proposal, which a town is asked to agree to, is: "We are serious in our commitment to desegregation, but we are equally serious in our belief that any plan with a prayer of success must be voluntary and must emerge as the result of a genuinely open and participatory process." The key word to remember is "voluntary," reports the regional center.

Mrs. Mears says the initial request from Amadio's office came at a time when the School Committee was engaged in preparing the town's school budget and just couldn't "take priority."

Mrs. Mears said, "We feel tidying up our home ground is needed first. Though we agree with the concepts and would be in on the ground floor of such planning, we didn't feel the timing was such to study the proposal thoroughly and say yes." If Winchester is added to the list of those accepting the proposal "we would feel sort of honor bound to be a participant," she notes.

When the position paper will be forthcoming is not known. On April 26 when Ms. Oaks spoke with Mrs. Kay Anderson, secretary to Supt. of Schools William Macdonald, she was told "they (School Committee) are planning to write a position paper."

Mrs. Mears expects the "position paper" to materialize after the matter is brought up for further discussion by the School Committee. Though the topic is not on the agenda for the next School Committee meeting, she told The Star last Friday, it may very well come up.

★ Committee

this spring. Thus far the guide-pupil ratio has been 1:8.

Supt. MacDonald reported on a document on philosophy and objectives recently written and rewritten in part by a sub-committee at Winchester High School in preparation for a fall evaluation. This was accepted by the School Committee.

He further reported 95 percent of the job category descriptions in the Winchester school system had been completed. As the School Committee reviewed what appeared to be a list of the job descriptions before them, MacDonald cited job categories which were omitted: coordinator of instruction aides; director of reading (there is none); the secretary of the superintendent of schools, whose job description will be submitted with other secretaries; and custodians.

MacDonald asked the committee members to approve the descriptions on the basis they should be updated each year. They did this unanimously.

In other business he reported interviews for a principal at Wyman School are still being conducted and are expected to end this week. When interviews are concluded, a few will be selected for interview with the School Committee next Wednesday.

Bouquets of praise were presented to the Board of Health for the annual measles clinic; to Vinson-Owen school and 12 senior citizens for their program using grandparents as tutors and listeners; and to Helen Crawley, Winchester High School, for her outstanding work with students in the science department.

Miss Crawley was the subject of two letters of commendation sent to Supt., MacDonald's office recognizing her service. The Boston Globe noted her service as a member of the Massachusetts State Science Fair Committee for 1972-73, and Dr. H. Harvey Michels of the Fourth Northeast Region, American Cancer Society offered congratulations for her being chosen recipient of the ACS Northeast Regional Award in high school chemistry teaching.

A round of applause went to Andy Twomey following his favorable appraisal of students serving on school committees as representatives. Feeling his experience was beneficial because it "gives a student a view at other than high school levels," Twomey said he does not advocate giving students a vote. "To allow a small faction or minority group" this power is "alien to the system of town government. This kind of thing is not particularly helpful to anyone. It provides more problems," he concluded.

Other School Committee discussion concerned released time; bid awards and the approval to return a $100 deposit for a 1969 Ford station wagon not awarded because that model was discontinued; and authorization that Mrs. Dieterich may sign the payroll.

Also a reminder that Vincent Palumbo is School Committee representative to the sub-committee of the Permanent Building Committee to report to town meeting on the Leonard Pool issue; and the compulsory retirement due to age of the attendance officer, Earle Jordan. The School Committee approved the recommendation that Richard Beaton, juvenile officer, be temporarily assigned to this post at a rate of $600 a year.

The committee officially accepted the resignations of Mrs. Doris B. Trummel, elementary school counselor; Mrs. Carol P. Zilinski of the Muraco School; Thomas L. Geraty, Ambrose School; Mrs. Sherry Y. Mulley, high school; and Mrs. Christine S. McGuire, Lynch Junior High School.

Also, the request for leaves of absence for Mrs. Judith H. Collier and Paul T. Mulloy.

The committee voted to accept Robert B. Tufts Jr. as physical education specialist at a salary of $9181. A graduate of Northeastern University with a BS degree, Tufts did student teaching in Winchester public schools.

Astros Soccer Are Undeclared

The Winchester Astros soccer team won their fourth game straight, when they beat Weston 2 to 0 Sunday. Their record is now four wins and one tie.

The first half saw both teams with attacks that nearly produced goals. At the 15-minute mark, Winchester forward Bernie Belcastro scored with an assist from left wing Tom Merrow. The remaining 25 minutes produced hard exciting play but no scores.

In the second half, again Bernie Belcastro scored at the 7-minute mark. That goal gave added confidence to Winchester and they continued to play their best performance of the season backed up with great goal keeping by Wayne McNeill.

Weston kept the pressure on in the second half. One goal was prevented by Winchester's fullback Frank Gerardi when he cleared the ball with a booming kick after the goal keeper was out of reach of the ball. Playing in this second half for Winchester was Rick Champa, who made many great saves.

Sachem Gridders Seek Opponent

By John F. Parrell

With the recent ruling of the Massachusetts Secondary Schools' Principles' Association that all teams may now play 10 football games, Athletic Director Henry T. Knowlton is busily engaged seeking another game for Coach Manny Marshall's 11. The task is proving much harder than one would anticipate, due to previous commitments, league schedules and other factors.

First choice was the perennial North Shore power, the Big Blue of Swampscott, capably coached by Stan Bondevitch. Such a pairing would be a natural attraction. However, the previously scheduled games balked this meeting. Wellesley of the Bay State League and Andover have been contacted, but Wellesley could not rearrange matters and Andover has not yet replied.

Andover would not only provide a suitable 10th game opponent, but might well fit in nicely as an 11th member in the Middlesex League. It is a school well within the size and style of the other league members, and has produced outstanding teams.

Bernie Belcastro is the Astro's leading scorer, with five goals, followed by forward Jim Palermo, with three goals. Winchester has the best record, with seven goals against.

Next Sunday's game is at Needham. The Astros will be in Winchester on May 27, vs. Lexington.

Celtics Defeat Wayland 4-0

The Winchester Celtics completed the first half of the Boston Area Youth Soccer League season with a 4-0 win over Wayland and a heartbreaking 1-0 loss to Wellesley. With four wins and one loss, the Celtics are tied with Wellesley for first place.

The game played last Saturday was a routine affair against a weak Wayland team. Pat Fortin and Jim Oliver notched two goals in the first half, and Jim Oliver and David McLaughlin two goals in the second half.

The game against Wellesley two weeks ago was another story as the two top teams in the league met in what proved to be a mighty defensive struggle. The only score came in the final five minutes of the match when a Wellesley player chipped a high ball into the Winchester nets.

All those in attendance at the game agreed that the Winchester boys had the better of the match and were unlucky not to have scored three goals as at least five shots rebounded off the Wellesley posts.

The Winchester team looks with anticipation toward the rematch with Wellesley in four weeks.

After the EnKa parade Saturday, the Celtics will travel to play a 2:15 p.m. game with Wellesley II.

Baseball Team Swaps Shutouts

By John F. Parrell

The Sachem nine continued to maintain its even record in recent action in the Middlesex League by splitting a pair of shutouts. It is now 6-4 for the year.

Steve Johnson was in great form at Belmont as he limited the Marauders to three widely scattered hits. His teammates came through with an even dozen bingles as Winchester won easily by 8-0, due largely to a big six-run rally in the sixth inning.

Rain prevented the playing of the game with the Burlington Red Devils carded for Friday at Manchester Field. It was rescheduled for Tuesday afternoon of this week. The Reading Rockets came here Monday afternoon and co-captain Johnson again took the mound for Winchester.

It was not his day, as the Rockets drilled out four clean hits in the first inning. An error and a fielder's choice helped the visitors to build a three-run lead. Rudy Fiore came on to pitch well in relief, but the Sachem batters were helpless before the soft stuff that Jones was throwing and could manage only three safe hits.

After three innings of shutout baseball at Belmont, Gary Beard singled and scored on a triple by co-captain Ned Keating. Mike Heffernan followed with a single, and Winchester led by 2-0.

The sixth inning found the Sachems opening their barrage with four straight singles by Mike Herrman, Rudy Fiore, Albion Cordice and Wayne Dennis. Steve Johnson sacrificed. Mark Forte singled for two more runs, and he went to second on a walk to Tommy Brennan.

Then came two more singles by Beard and Keating to forge an insurmountable 8-0 lead. The Marauder bats were silent. It was an easy victory for Winchester.

Reading remained right on the heels of the league-leading Stoneham Spartans by the 4-0 win over the Sachems. The game was over to all intents and purposes even before it started. Hollingsworth was retired to open the game, but O'Brien batted out a solid double.

Clemens and Rosa each chipped in a single, with the former crossing the plate on an infield throwing error. This also enabled Rosa to reach second base. He advanced to third on a fielder's choice, and scored on an infield out.

The other Rocket run came in the fourth when Dwyer singled, advanced to second on an error, and scored when visiting pitcher Jones helped his own cause with a double. The three Sachem hits posed no problem to the visitors, but three Winchester errors hurt their chances. Tommy Brennan playing at shortstop made two fine stops in the final frame, but the game was long gone by that time.

The Lexington Minutemen will play here tomorrow, then come games away from home with Melrose and Stoneham, before the season's finale will be with the rival Tanners a week from tomorrow.

Apollos Defeat Giants 7 to 3

In true Cap League tradition, an excellent crowd of spectators, including many loyal mothers, turned out on Mother's Day to watch their boys play ball.

They were all amply rewarded by their sons, who put forth their very best efforts and produced some exciting and well-played baseball.

In the most hotly contested game of the day, the Giants, who seem to be making it a habit of playing in tight games, dropped an extra-inning game to the Apollos. Tied three, all at the end of six, both teams were scoreless in the seventh, but the Apollos came up with four big runs in the eighth to win the game, 7-3.

The other Mother's Day games in the Visor Division saw the Eagles take an 11-5 game against the Cardinals, who led a good part of the game and played fine baseball, while the Dodgers were defeating the Pirates 14-4.

Crown Division games on Sunday produced two upsets when the Yankees defeated the Braves, 9-1, and the Red Sox dropped the strong Hornet team, 6-1. In the third game, the Rangers won a close and well-played game over the Blue Jays, 7-6.

Saturday's games in the Crown Division saw the Red Sox take a squeaker over the Bob Cats, 7-6, while the Blue Jays won by a 12-3 score over the White Sox, and the Yankees were barely defeated by the Hornets, 9-8.

In the Visor Division on Saturday, the Pirates, who are playing well but in bad luck, dropped a close one to the powerful Astros, 4-3. The Apollos were defeated by the Eagles, 19-9, and the Orioles took a tight game from the Cards, 6-4.

Rockets Edge Sachem Track

The Sachem speedsters of Coach Manny Marsall gave the highly touted Reading track team a battle right down to the very end before falling by a 73-67 count.

The home team has been right at the top of the Middlesex League for the last few years, and the performance of the locals came as a surprise to their hosts. As a matter of fact, Winchester might well have emerged victorious if they had been able to pick up a few points in events in which they are usually strong.

The boys have been working hard, and may well carry off a fair share of titles in the Middlesex League individual meet which takes place Saturday at Stoneham.

The summary of the Reading meet:

100-yard dash: Fallon (R), Tonello (W), Keaton (R). Time: 10.5 sec.

220-yard dash: Tonello (W), Kaine (R), Fernside (R). Time: 23.9 sec.

440-yard dash: Fallon (R), Guarente (W), Guggler (R). Time: 51.3 sec.

880-yard run: Tatarian (W), McGee (R), Lanigan (W). Time: 2:01.9

1 mile run: Moran (R), McPhail (W), Powell (R). Time: 4:43

Two-mile run: Gallagher (R), Trefon (W), Chandler (R). Time: 10:34.4

Low hurdles: Friborg (W), Tilden (W).

Stoddard (R). Time: 13.9 sec.

High hurdles: Friborg (W), Vogehlin (R), Stoddard (R). Time: 16.2 sec.

Shot put: Graves (R), Macdonald (W), Bailey (R). Distance: 49 ft. 1 1/2 in.

Discus: Macdonald (W), Holbert (R), Wright (W). Distance: 135 ft. 2 in.

FINAL SCORE: Reading 73, Winchester 67

Go-Go Bowling

In Couples A Go-Go bowling, Bill Ross

earned high men's game with a score of 191

while high series at 489 and high women's score at 171 was won by Mimi Burnett.

Guest bowler Ebil Dobrott brought forth the big upset of the evening. He bowled a 198-

134-168 for a 500 series.

Reds KO Pirates

Bill Saurman and his Reds were a team not to be denied in Little League weekend play. The week before they lost two games to Parkers Mets. The boys were a little down on themselves.

Now they were going against the hottest and only undefeated team in the American League, Ferro's Pirates.

In a two-game series with some great baseball being played by both teams, the Reds won by scores of 7-4 and 4-2. On the mound for the victorious Reds were Gary Tedesco and John Waite, both doing a great job.

Joe Galante did some heavy hitting with everyone else contributing with the bat. Saurman and his staff of Larry Balrrow and Mike Boodakian were very pleased because both wins were complete team efforts.

All his players worked hard and played together as a team and only when you do that can you win in this very strong division this year.

In other action in the American League Tom Pearl had his Redbirds flying high last week as young Randy Pearl and Steve Wolfe threw consecutive shutouts at the Astros, winning 9-0 and 4-0. Of equal importance in the opening game win was a fine performance by Nick Wancowicz behind the plate for the first time this year. Tight defensive play by Chris Stanton, John Ross, Ed Kirkpatrick, Richie Kimball and Eric Waller helped preserve the shutouts.

Over in the National League in a fast moving game the Twins beat the rapidly improving Red Sox 6-2. Bob Cooke, Mark Aylward and Charley Mahoney all pitched for the Twins and looked strong while Kevin Fitzgerald went all the way for the Sox, showing great control. Tommy Norton made a fine catch and a good throw to the plate with the bases loaded to break the back of an early Sox rally.

Strong hitting by the Twins, particularly Pat Fortin, was partially offset by the excellent defensive play of catcher Joe McIsaac and shortstop Tom Masiello of the Sox. The best defensive play of the game, however, was turned in by Steve Kenney of the Red Sox, who made a great backhanded stab of a ball labeled "double" resulting in a close forceout at second.

In the National Minor League Al Samoiloff and his Bulldogs reeled off their fourth and fifth wins of the year without a loss. Southpaw Jim MacDonald and Ted Lorenzetti have shared the bulk of the pitching this year and both have been superb. Also the clutch hitting of David Lindbo and Brian Cullivan has been exceptional. Defensively Jim Gibbons and Eddie Moresco have stood out.

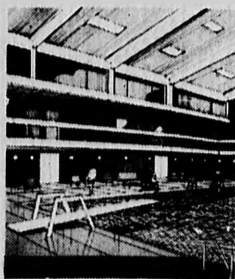

Overall Samoiloff is more than satisfied with the play of his entire club this season.

Girls Split Even In Four

By John Parrell
The Winchester girls' softball team has split even in four games. They opened impressively with a 40-2 slaughter of Watertown and followed with a hard fought win over Newton by 13-12.

The Watertown girls have had little experience with softball, and although Coach Joan Rosazza tried to keep the score from mounting, the Raiderettes persisted in making errors and issuing numberless bases on balls. The visitors are totally inexperienced at the game and had 34 runs tallied against them in their second outing in the league.

The game at Newton North was something else as both teams pushed hard for the victory. Going into the last inning, the Sachemettes were three runs behind. The score was 12-9 in favor of the Garden City girls until Ellen DeSanctis belted a grand slam home run to move Winchester into the lead by 13-12. Fine fielding plays by Nancy DeNatale, Ellen DeSanctis and Nancy Stillman thwarted Newton's last ditch attempt to even the count.

The Sachemettes started off fast with Belmont as Cathy Lawton doubled in the second inning to score the first run. Ellen DeSanctis also doubled in the third frame for a 3-1 Winchester lead.

Belmont broke the game open in the fourth as six runs crossed the plate. Winchester just could not catch up, even though a triple by Cathy Lawton in the final inning drove in two runs. However, the home team settled down to retire the last three batters, to preserve the 8-7 win.

Burlington came to Ginn Field and gave the home team a thorough lesson in how the game is played. The final score read: Burlington 11; Winchester 5. The Sachemettes had their only real strong inning in the fourth as Nancy Stillman, Mary Donovan, Becky Wolfe and Laurie Abbott crossed the plate, otherwise it was an easy game for the visitors.

Phil Kadesch On Winning Team

Phil Kadesch of 15 Mayflower rd., who played number one for Winchester high's tennis team for three years, has completed a winning season in his freshman year as a new member of the University of Wisconsin tennis team.

Phil has been playing both one and two singles, as well as one doubles, for the Wisconsin Badgers, who have racked up a team record of 14 wins against 5 losses.

Although the team was 4-5 in the strong Big 10 Conference, they were impressive in running up 10 wins against no losses against non-conference opponents. Kadesch's personal record of 11 wins and four losses includes wins over opponents from schools in South Carolina, Tennessee, Notre Dame and Air Force Academy.

The individual high series was won by Marge Boesch with 560, followed by Mary Dennis (534), Anne Ferry (517) and Glenda Green (526).

Gerry Lesperance received a trophy for Most Improved Bowler (18 pins over her average).

Kaylor, president; Vi Vangell, vice president; Laraine Milauskas, secretary and Marianne Webber, treasurer.

Tennis Team Wins Over Reading 3-2

By John Parrell
Coach George Hillier's Sachem tennis team edged Reading by a 3-2 margin to stay in the thick of the fight for the Middlesex League title. Times have changed during recent years. Whereas Winchester had both the interest and the facilities to produce winning teams on the courts, while many other teams did not, the opposition has shown great improvement.

For many years interest in tennis was at a low ebb in Reading as the Rockets concentrated on track and baseball. But, with the coming of the excellent athletic complex, tennis has experienced an upswing. Although Mark Alba and Jimmy Wynn had little trouble in the first and second singles matches, the other singles and both doubles matches were ding dong affairs.

The summary:
First singles: Mark Alba (W) defeated Mark Kasperovich (R) 6-3, 6-1.

Second singles: Jimmy Wynn (W) defeated Steve Kasperovich (R) 6-0, 6-0.

Third singles: Marcus Julian (W) defeated John Lyons (R) 6-3, 7-5.

First doubles: Loesch and Regan (R) defeated Ken Abbott and Jay Houlihan (W) 2-6, 6-3, 7-5.

LET A "PRO" SELL IT

Selling your home yourself is no easy undertaking. Basically, it means attracting the right prospects - people who are ready, willing, and financially able to buy. Not those who are curious to see what your furniture looks like from the inside. You can attempt to make this sale yourself, or you can have someone else handle the difficult negotiations. Frankly, the best way to market your home - probably your most valuable asset - is the professional way. Just as you would go to a doctor or a lawyer for medical or legal aid, you will want to go to a Realtor for assistance in selling your home.

His technical skill, business experience, list of bona fide prospects, contacts with financial institutions, and professional reputation are all at your disposal to expedite the sale of your home at the best possible price. This is the reason why 75 percent of all homes are sold through professionals.

If you have any questions on this subject or on any other aspect of Real Estate, please feel free to call or drop in at JAMES T. TREFREY, INC., REALTORS, 27 Waterfield Road, Winchester - Tel. 729-8100.

Handsomeness and Compact - English manor house with 3 fireplaces, five bedrooms, den, 1 1/2 baths, dead-end street, delightful setting, walk to everything, and priced at just $49,900.

First Cong. Parishoners "Jog For Joy" And Money

In an effort to supplement the past Easter offering designated for the "One Great Hour of Sharing" and the School Volunteer Program in Boston, parishoners at the First Congregational Church are running to earn money.

In a program called "Jog for Joy" Rev. Walter B. Davis and members of the church staff and parish are running a distance of two miles on Wednesday in a six-week period. Those who are not running are participating by sponsoring runners.

Sponsors are pledging to give their choice of an amount of money for each mile a specified jogger will run during the six-week period. Joggers include Rev. Davis, George Easton, Tom Niblock, John Skelton, Evelyn Breeden, Clyde Jones, and Norma Roffman, church secretary and originator of the idea.

Jones is the only trained athlete of the group. A church sexton, he ran track at Boston Trade School "just enough to get my letter sweater."

Some of the joggers run up and down stairs or play an early game of tennis to get in trim for the Wednesday jogs.

Persons who would like to jog or sponsor a jogger should contact Marguerite Johnson at the church office between 9 a.m. and 2 p.m.

On June 14 sponsors will mail their signed cards with amounts due to the church office. Payments will be received at the June 17 worship service.

Work Of Winchester Craftsmen To Be Featured In Sidewalk Show

Plans are underway for mounting a varied annual sidewalk show on June 2, according to Joseph Pontone, Winchester Art Association president. Rain date is June 9.

Abby Hamilton and Lola Pontone, chairpersons for the day-long show, report that committees have been formed to handle the myriad details.

Professional and amateur artists and craftsmen from Winchester and surrounding communities are expected to exhibit, demonstrate and sell their original works. There is no limit on entries. The Art Association receives a small commission on sales which is used to support its activities in promoting interest in art.

Show hours are 9-5 p.m. with registration from 9-10 a.m. Pictures need not be framed but should be equipped for hanging. Craftsmen are asked to supply their own exhibit props. A slip stating title, artist and price (if for sale) should be attached to each entry.

As in the past the fence along Mystic Valley parkway bordering Manchester Field will be used to display paintings, photographs and wall hanging. The Unitarian Church lawn has been designated for table exhibits of craft work.

Hostesses will be on hand to assist in setting up exhibits, greeting the public and making sales. Exhibitors need not remain to sell their works but should be prepared to remove them if rain threatens. Hostesses will do all they can to assist.

Newcomer to Winchester and the sidewalk show Mariette Fierens-Guertz of 131 Cross st. has established a reputation for her work as the result of a one-woman show of wall hangings in the library last November. One of Mrs. Fierens-Guertz' smaller works, "Death Spring," is at the library as part of the Art Association's members' show through May 30.

Mrs. Fierens-Guertz has developed a highly personal medium for expressing the rich colors, images, textures and folk tale motifs that were part of her childhood in Indonesia.

Employing the techniques of fabric collage and weaving on a canvas backing, Mrs. Fierens-Guertz makes her impact with raw-edged, highly textured fabrics, coiled ropes, rings, beads, leather, suede, unwined yarns and flax.

Macrame, knitting traditional improvised techniques of weaving and stitching heighten the visual and tactile excitement of the hangings. Yawning openings in some of the canvases as well as the use of high relief created by coiled ropes and the application of padded pieces place some of her works in the contemporary category of sculpture.

A native of Hoorn, The Netherlands, her works have been exhibited in art galleries in Delft and, more recently, in the Eastern Airlines Lounge at Logan Airport.

Pottery by Lenore Rothman of 247 Washington st., another first-time participant in the sidewalk show, is being featured in Town and Country of Winchester's window from May 19-June 2.

Remarkable for its beautifully controlled glaze application, Mrs. Rothman's work runs a gamut of forms and functions from covered casseroles, weed holders, wine goblets and cups to large decorative covered pots, bottles and footed vases two and three feet tall. She works successfully with both shiny and matte glazes, in subdued earth tones as well as with a more intense palette.

A graduate of Rhode Island School of Design with a bachelor of fine arts degree, Mrs. Rothman has taught courses in pottery and glaze calculation. Her current focus is on enameling which as a craftsman she finds an even more exacting discipline. Work as a printmaker will round out her contribution to this year's sidewalk show.

For further information interested artists and craftsmen may call either Abby Hamilton of 79 Walnut st., or Lola Pontone of 1 Lakeview rd.

Parade: Rain or shine everybody will meet at the rear of the town hall at 9 a.m. for the parade which starts at 9:30 a.m. It will be led by the Winchester Police and the Winchester Auxiliary Fire Department.

The Derby: The Fish Derby starts at 10 a.m. and ends at 1 p.m. Only worms may be used as bait. Each entrant will bring his own supply. Entrants will also bring fish to judges' table at Wedge Pond when caught. Prizes will be awarded at a later date. The Chuck Wagon, manned by Kiwanians, will be on hand to sell hot dogs, carbonated drinks, coffee, and donuts.

Prizes: Chairman Rocco J. Ferraina announces prizes will be awarded as follows: Fish in different categories (trout, bass, sunfish, etc.) will be judged by overall length, and divided into boys and girls groupings.

The prizes, awarded to winners in different categories, will be varied—some fishing reels, rods, and tackle boxes will be awarded at a later Kiwanis softball game after entries have been correlated by the judges.

Thousands At EnKa Events

The weatherman cooperated with the organizers of EnKa's Sunshine Fair by providing two rare rain-free days when thousands of persons attended the carnival-like event last weekend.

Rides, games and snack stands attested to the success of the annual fair. There were long lines at the ferris wheels and The Spider and the fair ran out of hot dogs at one point on Saturday.

But no one seemed to mind. There was always something else to do, like throwing baseballs, or something else to eat, such as cotton candy.

Held in the parking lot across from Town Hall Friday evening and all day Saturday, the fair is thought to have produced about $15,000 to aid EnKa in its charitable contributions to Winchester organizations.

A parade Saturday morning was observed by several thousand residents who lined the route beginning at the Winchester Theatre and winding through the center to end at Town Hall, where the American flag was raised.

There were more than 25 groups marching in the parade. Many of them had built floats for the event or had established a theme.

The Winchester Environmental Protection Association won first prize for its entry, "Recycling through Cycling," in which different kinds of cycles were ridden. The Friends of the Winchester Hospital won first prize for the best display.

At the EnKa Fair drawings, Ernest Reardon of 641 Main st. won two bicycles in the single bicycle drawing. Louis S. DeMalo of 8 Laurel Hill ln. won the trip to Bermuda.

Ready, Set, Go For The First Mini-Marathon

Winchester's first annual mini-marathon is set for Saturday, June 16, from 11 a.m. to 2 p.m.

Runners will start at the police box in the center and go up Main street to Highland ave. There will be three different routes for three different age groups.

Persons 18 years of age and older will run a 7-mile course; those 13 to 17 years of age, a 5 1/2-mile course; and youths 9 to 12, a 2 1/2-mile course.

Trophies will be awarded the first three crossing the finish line in each age group. During the marathon, the center may be closed to traffic. There will be a carnival atmosphere downtown with music between noon and 1 p.m. Balloons, vendors and special events are planned.

Auxiliary police officers will be placed at all intersections on the race routes to protect runners. An auxiliary sound truck will be in the center during the hours of the race.

Sponsored by the Recreation Department and the Winchester Business Association, the marathon is planned as an annual event to provide the many joggers in town and others a chance to compete. All are eligible to race, male and female, young and old.

All you have to have is a healthy body, a pair of sneakers and will power.

In order to participate, runners should fill out the application form appearing in this week's Star and return it to the Recreation Office at Town Hall.

The following are the three race routes:

18-YEARS AND OLDER

Start Main street police box, to Highland ave., to Fells rd., to Hillcrest pkwy., to Reservoir st., to Highland ave., to Forest st., to Kirk st., to Wendell st., to Loring ave., to Swanton st., to Washington st. and return to Main street police box.

13 TO 17 YEARS

Start Main street police box, to Highland ave., to Fells rd., to Hillcrest pkwy., to Reservoir st., to Highland ave., to Forest st., to Washington st. and return to police box.

Center Rezoning Momentum Gains, Two Meetings Planned

The rezoning of Winchester Center will be the subject of two joint meetings in June, one between the Planning Board and Winchester Business Association and the other between Planning and Board of Selectmen.

As the Planning Board nears completion of its rezoning plan for the center, WBA wants a meeting to discuss its own ideas for allowing apartments to be mixed with business in the center.

The selectmen, too, indicated Monday at its weekly meeting a desire to discuss such a mixed zoning proposal. "It's most appropriate for the new zoning by-law to have provisions for this combination zoning," Selectman Lawrence T. Smith said.

Planning members met Monday and chairman Otto E. Schaefer Jr. indicated the board will be ready to announce its much awaited zoning proposals in June. No firm date was set with WBA.

Schaefer said any "meaningful discussion of the center" must include discussion with owners of property there. Representative property owners will be asked to attend the meeting with WBA.

At the selectmen's meeting, member John J. Sullivan said Planning's special town meeting in September should have a proposal for center rezoning.

Smith, however, felt such a specific rezoning will "open the door" for citizens to petition the special meeting for zoning changes. Smith feels these specific requests should come at the annual town meeting and the September special should concentrate on adopting a townwide zoning by-law revision.

This revision would write into the town by-laws what restrictions business, apartment and residential zones would allow—height and density, for example—without saying where the zones would be.

But Sullivan persisted that as far as the justifiable reason," he said.

Ms. Cerullo recalls an attempted murder being tried when she served. She was not selected. "They chose older people for the jury," she observed.

Radio Station Drive Fails

A signature drive to ask the town meeting to approve $1200 for installation of a new teletype machine at the Winchester High School radio station has failed and the Board of Selectmen Monday refused to insert the petition for action at the June special town meeting.

Only 83 of 109 signatures obtained were certified by the town clerk's office, which sparked discussion at the weekly selectmen's meeting Monday that a new state law may allow certification of signatures not exactly corresponding to the official voters' list.

Selectman Lawrence T. Smith moved that the petition request be included in the warrant. Commented Selectman John J. Sullivan: "If it had come in as a School Committee request we would have put it in like that. But they failed to support it."

School Committee members signed the petition but didn't officially request its insertion in the warrant because they felt they should live within their budget as cut at the recent town meeting.

Selectman Chairman Arthur E. Dunbar said that if the board allowed the insertion there would be too many similar requests from persons whose signature drives failed.

The board took no action on a request for support from the Marlborough city council of a resolution calling on President Nixon to freeze gasoline prices.

The board received notice from the town's former gasoline supplier, Gulf, that the town can continue to use the gasoline pumps Gulf used in providing Winchester with gasoline.

(The Finance Committee, meeting Monday, discussed the new rates of gasoline the selectmen recently negotiated—more than two times the old price—and chairman James B. L. Lane said: "My first impression to the selectmen was if we are going to pay that much more let's reduce consumption." He suggested persuading the police chief to turn off the patrol car air conditioners and put more officers on foot.)

The selectmen have asked the Personnel Board to see if the appointment of the recreation director should be included in the list of other department heads regularly reappointed by the board. Recreation director Donald Spinney is alone in not being reappointed.

The board appointed 11 persons to serve on the Council on Aging, received notice that Sherman R. Josephson was elected chairman of the Cemetery Commission and noted that Town Moderator Raymond J. Kenney Jr. appointed Paul C. Dreyer of 30 Oxford st. and Richard S. Cresse of 12 Cambridge st. to the indoor swimming pool committee.

Peace Group Out

Memorial Parade 'Biggest In Years'

Winchester's Memorial Day Parade set for Monday morning is predicted to be the "biggest in years" despite the non-participation by a local peace group.

Parade marshal John T. Horn said one of the largest numbers of participants in recent years is scheduled. The parade begins at 9 a.m. at Leonard Field on Washington street, heads for Calvary Cemetery over Washington street, then to Town Hall by way of Washington st., where wreaths will be placed at the honor rolls at 10 a.m.

Following a brief stop at Town Hall for refreshments, the marchers will reassemble at 10:45 a.m. and proceed to the war memorial at McCall Junior High School, where wreaths will be placed and taps played.

From there the parade will head for Wildwood Cemetery, where there will be more taps, prior to a return to Town Hall for review by selectmen and dismissal.

Participating will be a contingent of Winchester police, commanders of the American Legion and Veterans of Foreign Wars, color guard of the American Legion, National Guard firing squad, Board of Selectmen, Saugus Disabled American Veterans Band, Company "C" of the 101st Engineering Battalion of the Massachusetts National Guard, Woburn High School Junior Navy ROTC and members of the American Legion and its auxiliary, all in the first division.

In the second division: Color guard of the VFW, Winchester Fire Department detail, Boston Firemen's Band, Third Judge Advocate General Detachment from the Boston Army Base, Winchester High School Band, a contingent of Winchester Boy Scouts and Cub Scouts.

In the third division: Marlborough Dukes Drum and Bugle Corps, St. Patrick's Drill Team of Stoneham and Winchester Elementary School Band.

Not participating will be the Winchester Peace Committee, despite its official request for a place in the parade. Rev. Michael Strah contacted parade marshal Horn earlier this month for permission to have the committee march "in some way appropriate to the meaning and spirit of the day."

Strah said the committee first thought of driving a car carrying posters, but would "be willing to participate in any way which was within the limits of the rules governing the parade."

Horn said the decision not allowing the committee was not his alone, but was made by the parade committee after consultation with the Board of Selectmen. Horn said he "didn't think it proper" for the peace group to march and said he contacted other towns and they won't have peace marchers.

"As far as I'm concerned, I don't think it's an appropriate time. If they want to run something they should do it themselves." He asked: "Did they ask to get into the EnKa street parade?"

Rev. Strah said Horn's reply to the Peace Committee "came slowly and uncertainly. He first asked who the members of the Winchester Peace Committee are, and added that he would have to see what a marching unit would look like before he could rule on the committee's request."

"He further indicated that nothing would be allowed in the parade which does not memorialize those who have served in the armed forces," Strah said the group then decided only to carry a sign reading, "Dedicated to a World without War." But, he

How Are Town's Jurors Chosen?

By Pauline Dismhon

Every spring about 85 Winchester residents' names are placed on a list; the Board of Selectmen goes over the list and may make deletions; the people on it are contacted and asked to complete a questionnaire, and the final product is a list of persons who will represent Winchester in Massachusetts courts as jurors.

Prospective jurors have all kinds of reactions to this new duty which will require performance for three consecutive years. Some are fearful. Some are resentful and look upon this task as a nuisance. Some look for a way out for any number of reasons.

Others, on the opposite end of the spectrum, consider this appointment an educational opportunity, an honor, a time to do something special for their community. Ed Ball of the Edward Ball Insurance Company is such a man.

A former juror, Ed Ball recalls, "I was lucky because I was called on a lot of cases and did little waiting around, which can be frustrating." He said he believed the reason he was called so often was because on arrival he told a clerk he didn't want "to sit around and waste time."

Ball says he served as juror for 10 or 12 criminal cases. He says he was challenged in all cases. He feels certain that this was because of his insurance occupation. "I was dismissed and not used on two cases because there was need of judgment in auto cases," he explains.

Seventy-five percent of the cases involved youths charged with drug-related crimes, Ball recalls. Assault and battery was also common. In all but one of the situations, police officers were the prosecuting witnesses and in one case the policemen told conflicting stories with the result that a youth was dismissed for lack of evidence.

In all of the cases only one defendant was found guilty and this, Ball says, was because the victim came forward and accepted the responsibility to give testimony, which proved the youth's guilt.

Most of the cases lasted for three-quarters of a day, he remembers. Sometimes a case would begin on an afternoon and finish up the next morning. "I was home every day by 5 and was able to go by the office to take care of any important work that needed my attention." Otherwise the business was carried on by "my competent staff." He adds he was paid $15 a day for his services.

Looking back, Ball contends the experience was an educational opportunity. I would enjoy being called again to serve he concludes.

Vivien L. Cerullo of 1 Myrtle st., a book-binder, agrees that being a juror was "an interesting experience" and gave her "an opportunity to learn a lot about the judicial system." She served "roughly for three weeks" on seven or eight civil cases.

To give an indication of the length of time between an incident and when it is heard in court, she says several of the cases concerning auto accidents happened in the 1960's yet were not heard in court until 1972 when she served.

What impresses jurors is the way they are picked from several hundred persons called together for jury selection each month. First there is a roll call and 25 to 50 names are called out. Then prospective jurors go into the court for instructions from the judge who explains that those not selected should not take it personally.

Ball recalls that some people were hurt when they were challenged and not used for a jury, but it didn't bother him. "It is common practice to challenge a witness without

Free Clinic To Test For TB

The Winchester Board of Health will conduct a free tuberculin skin clinic Tuesday, May 29, to replace the customary X-ray testing.

The local board received a directive from the state advising the skin testing in place of X-rays to eliminate any possible harmful results from radiation.

The new chairman of the Board of Health, Dr. Lawrence J. Quigley, said X-rays still have merit in some cases but the skin testing is now recommended. In the past the board provided a mobile X-ray unit.

The board has requested all persons who handle food to be tested annually. One-third of all town employees are tested annually, including teachers.

Dr. Quigley said the public is invited to be tested. He said the skin test covers all the legal requirements set forth by the state for those requiring testing. He urged all persons who have contact with the public to be tested.

Quigley said those who get a positive reaction to the skin test shouldn't be alarmed. It means they may have been exposed to TB germs and are not necessarily carriers of the disease.

If persons get a positive reaction, they will be requested to return for additional testing. The clinic is from 8:30 a.m. to 4 p.m. in the Town Hall auditorium. It is free this year because the state is supplying the materials necessary for the clinic.

The following statement was issued by the board: "The position of the Board of Health is that we do not say that screening X-rays are not important. But we are addressing ourselves to the statement requirement to screening food handlers and school personnel for possible pulmonary tuberculosis."

The clinic is being coordinated with Dr. William Barone of the School Department. Volunteer help is being provided by the Visiting Nurse Association and the Friend of Winchester Hospital.

★ Parade

said, Horn told them such a message would be inappropriate for Memorial Day.

Horn told The Star his refusal was partly based on his fear of trouble. "I was afraid innocent bystanders in the elementary school band might get hurt," he added. "Rev. Strah has a good point. None of us want the Vietnam War. But what can we do?"

Strah asked Horn if the Peace Committee could march without signs and was told the parade committee and selectmen denied the request. Strah reported Horn as stating the reason was because "we have never had a request like this before and we don't think your participation would add anything to the parade."

Horn told The Star: "I want to know what's going on in the parade."

Strah said the committee members were not surprised by the denial of their request but were disturbed nonetheless. "In the first place, we believe the parade committee's response to our request raises several questions."

"Is every group which marches in the parade asked to submit a roster of its members? How can Mr. Horn report that parade rules prohibit the carrying of signs when many of the groups carry colorful banners with their names on them?"

"Moreover, has the parade committee forgotten our request to march in the parade last year which was denied on the basis that it came too late?"

Horn said that different units do carry banners and flags, but no signs with messages. As for the rejection of the Peace Committee's request to march last year, Horn said:

"Why did he wait until three weeks before Memorial Day? Why didn't he come up with something he could show us he was going to put into the parade?"

The Peace Committee feels it has been "unfairly discriminated against" in view of the fact the parade is a townwide event sponsored by the selectmen. "Why shouldn't all citizens who wish to participate in it be permitted to?"

"We clearly stated that we had no wish to disrupt the parade nor express sentiments the committee deemed inappropriate. But it was certainly surprising to hear that the conviction that we should have a world without war is inappropriate to a Memorial Day parade."

"One wonders if families who have lost loved ones in war would object to such a sentiment. Surely Mr. Horn and the parade committee are not advocating that our country should be continually involved in war instead of at peace," Strah said in a statement.

"Perhaps this points to the real reason our request was denied," the statement continued. "We think that the presence of the Peace Committee in the parade would make the parade committee very uncomfortable because it would call into question what the Memorial Day parade communicates with its colorful drill teams composed of young children cavalierly twirling weapons—namely, an uncritical glorification of the use of violence in international relations, rather than a sorrowful mourning of the destruction of countless human lives in all parts of the world and a renewed dedication to making world peace a reality in our time."

Horn defended the use of rifles as part of the color guard. "Sure they toss them. You see that in every parade."

★ Jurors

A Reading resident, currently serving as a juror, tells The Star about a woman in her group of jurors who is continually challenged and denied service for what appears to be something she cannot help. She is, according to the Reading resident, "a homely woman."

The remaining citizens which The Star was able to reach and who actually were called to serve were not as favorably impressed with the task of being a juror. One man said he "lucked out," explaining that because "the guy confessed and no jury was needed, he didn't have to stay away from his business."

Another local businessman said the experience was "boring" and "a waste of time." He was referring to hours of waiting to be called for the better part of two weeks. "It was very frustrating," he recalls.

Edward Donnelly, executive secretary to the Board of Selectmen, explains how a person's name is placed on a prospective jury list in Winchester.

Every year, Mrs. Hazel McGuire, secretary to the Board of Selectmen, goes through the "List of Residents" and selects names by using a "chance system" every third or fifth name. Each year a different number is used in an effort to get different people.

Later, when the initial list is compiled, Mrs. McGuire checks a file containing names of citizens who are presently available for jury service or former jurors. The law says a person who has served is ineligible for three consecutive years after having served for three years.

This initial list, which contains more than 200 names, addresses, occupations and ages of prospective jurors, is presented to the Board of Selectmen for approval. They screen the list to ascertain that as far as they know everyone's of good moral character, sound judgment and free from all legal exceptions to serve.

The list of people exempt from jury duty is long. Among those are the men and women in government at all levels; attorneys at law, ministers of the gospel, officers of colleges, practicing physicians and surgeons, persons over 70 and under 22, officers and supervisors in state institutions, public school teachers, Christian Science practitioners and readers, attendant nurses, mothers of children under 18 and women having custody of such children and nuns.

Donnelly says each town provides about 10 percent jurors of its total population. Because Winchester's population is about 22,000, the town provides about 200 persons a year.

Mrs. McGuire prepares a list of about 200 persons. Each year names are removed due to deaths or circumstances which alter a person's ability to serve. This year's original list contained 238 names. Of these 85 were submitted to the selectmen for approval. Eighty-three were approved.

center goes. Planning should be prepared to have a map to draw its proposed apartment-business zone.

Commented Smith: "We need such a change in the zoning statute so badly and went through such gymnastics two years ago only to have it go down the drain by amending it to death."

Smith was referring to the brouhaha in 1971 when a special town meeting rejected revision of the town's zoning by-laws after town meeting members made many attempts to change specific areas from one zone to another.

Selectman chairman Arthur E. Dunbar said already there are proposals from residents petitioning the board to include in the special warrant certain zoning changes.

Those Precious Moments

Have you ever thought about those little things that bring smiles to our faces... those precious moments in life like... finding the car keys... a basket full of kittens... a puppy... a radiant bride... the first crocus?

There are many things around us that can bring a little happiness and it doesn't take much to find them. Life is full of little bonuses that brighten up our lives.

We like to think that a visit to Koko's is a precious moment also, because you can walk on all kinds of rugs from broadlooms costing as little as $3.99 a square yard to Orientals that are priced for thousands of dollars and no one will say "Wipe your feet." Why? Because rugs were made to be walked on and to be used as furniture in making your home beautiful.

Come and share a precious moment with us soon. Just meeting Leo or Mike is bound to be an experience unto itself.

Let's Get Together

Winchester's elected and appointed boards and committees have a history of independence which sometimes prolong, confuse and thwart the best results of an issue.

Now while there is still plenty of time and before one concerned group begins to feel the Lincoln School is their own domain, members of the Recreation Committee, Permanent Building Committee, Board of Selectmen, Housing Authority, Council on Aging and other groups who may have an interest in use of the school should get together and decide what is in the best interest of the town.

Too often decisions are made on the basis of what is in the best interest of one committee. The Board of Selectmen has made a start toward this end by asking Recreation, Housing and Aging to prepare studies on their evaluation of the site by mid September.

That will be beneficial as far as it goes. More analyses and information are required, however, than from these few groups. A public hearing might be the ideal way all those who have ideas on the future of the site could be officially heard. Perhaps the forum for this hearing might be before the Board of Selectmen, even though town meeting has the ultimate responsibility for determining how the old school should be utilized.

The School Committee has indicated its intention to give up the site once McCall Junior High School is ready for occupancy as the new elementary school replacing Lincoln. There is little reason to believe the committee will change its mind. Some are quick to argue that the committee has committed nothing to writing and may not relinquish the site, as with McManus House.

But the chairman of the committee has told The Star the School Department will have no use for the school. And there's really no reason to compare the issue with McManus House since the committee always intended to retain McManus House.

Right now there are only two major proposals for Lincoln School: housing for the elderly and a recreation center. A public forum could help in answering the obvious questions of whether the town really needs a central recreation center, what groups would be eligible for space in a center, what would the costs of refurbishing the school be, how many units of housing would the school yield, does the town need that number of additional units, what would the costs be.

Other points it is oped a forum would bring out would be possible federal funding for a recreation center and how both a recreation building might be combined on the site with elderly housing. One resident has already suggested that federal funds might be available to build a swimming pool next to a recreation center. And the resident suggests the 3 1/2-acre site is large enough to accommodate both a center and as much elderly housing as the town requires.

So already people are beginning to think about Lincoln School's future. Of immediate concern is who should take the leadership in garnering the myriad ideas that will develop. The selectmen have made the first move and since in the interim period between release by the School Committee and control by another group the Board of Selectmen will have responsibility for the school, perhaps they should conduct the public hearing.

One challenging thought is to appoint one person from each of the committees or boards concerned with the school's future to a special committee to prepare a report on the best use of the property. The intent of such a committee would naturally be directed toward compromise when a compromise plan may not be the efficacious use of the land.

Let ideas such as these come forward at a public hearing where everyone who cares will have a chance to be heard.

Many Responsible For Parade Success

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

The En Ka Street Fair parade chairmen wish to express through this column their sincere appreciation to all the clubs, organizations and youth groups in town who made the parade Saturday morning so successful. It is very gratifying to the En Ka Society to have such wholehearted support for this annual event.

The three judges for the parade entries, Miss Leonor Rich, Mrs. Nancy Dressler and Mr. Arthur Dunbar, felt that the entries this year were especially well done and made the judges' job a very difficult one. They wished each group could receive a prize — certainly all entries receive honorable mention for their effort and originality.

We are grateful to the Police and Fire Departments for their participation, to the VFW for the color guard and to the wonderful music of the Winchester High School Band and the Elementary School Band. The Cheerleaders, Tumblers and Brenda's Twirlettes all add to the color of the parade. Participation by the Rainbow Girls, the Red Cross, the youth athletic groups, the Boy Scouts, Cub Scouts, Girl Scouts and Brownies helps En Ka to help Winchester.

In addition to the above groups, attractive floats were entered by the WEPA, Winchester Estates Garden Club, Winchester Scholarship Foundation, Recreation Committee, Friends of the Winchester Hospital and the VNA. It also adds a great deal to have a contingent from the Klaxon Antique Auto Club.

To one and all, including all the behind the scenes helpers, we say thank you for getting the Sunshine Fair off to such a bright start.

ATOMS Thanks

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

We would like to thank everyone who helped make our ATOMS flea market a success. In particular we would like to thank Selectman John Sullivan, Mrs. Helen McGuire and Edward Donnelly for their help with all the red tape involved.

We are most grateful to Bill Duran, John Dooley, Fran Mawn and Ed MacKenzie, union men of the Winchester Fire Dept., for donating their time. Also to the custodians for their generosity. The MSers thank the school department for providing a most accessible facility for their use. Finally to The Star for helping us publicize our event. Our warmest thanks.

Grateful

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

Winchester Little League Inc., would like to publicly thank the Winchester Highway Department for its extreme cooperation in transporting the new above-ground dugouts from the high school to Glen and West Side Fields.

Without the cooperation of Supt. O'Brien and his crews, we would have been sorely pressed to get these 16-foot edifices into place. The willingness and inter-activity cooperation of the Highway Department is always complete, and we want everyone to know that we appreciate their work.

Water Pistol

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

There is a fire escape up to my apartment and as I sat watching T. V. two young boys about 10-12 years of age came up as bold as could be. I told them to get down before I called the police and the smallest of the two pulled out a water gun and sprayed my window and me. He aimed for my face. My chair was all wet also. What if these little nonsters had something worse in mind.

Where are these kids' parents? I brought five children up in this town. What kind of parents would have children with this kind of respect for their elders? In my mind a child who will point any kind of a gun at a person would stop at nothing.

Letter From The Editor

Hospital Buying More Houses, Denies Any Plans; Watch Out For Balloon Kits

Purity Supreme has agreed the old Converse Super Market sign over its store at Winchester Center should be removed. In a letter to Lenore Frazier, co-chairman of the Winchester Environmental Protection Association, Purity president Leo Kahn said he has "put in motion the order to remove it. The sign will be down in the near future."

Mrs. Frazier is attempting to enlist the support of the Board of Selectmen and Planning Board for enactment of a town bylaw to prohibit old commercial signs. The responsibility for their removal would lie with the owner of the property on which they are located.

The old precinct notice board on the Common, by the way, should come down, Mrs. Frazier agrees. WEPA has been using the board to promote its anti-litter campaign. The Park Commission asked the Board of Selectmen to authorize the board's removal to improve the appearance of the Common. The next move is up to the selectmen.

The selectmen this week referred Mrs. Frazier's sign proposal to the Planning Board for possible inclusion in its new zoning proposal. Town Counsel Leonard Mullen wasn't sure of the legality of the proposal or the board's ability to act on it, perhaps in the domain of town meeting.

But the board voted to maintain the precinct notice board on the Common and asked the Highway Department to maintain it.

On Sunday, May 6, the North Suburban YMCA held its annual 20-mile hike or bike fund-raising event, "Miles For Mankind." Thanks to the superb coverage of this event by you and your staff, more people than last year were aware of the program and participated in this event.

As you may know, "Miles For Mankind" activities support local youth programs as well as YMCA world service projects for youths around the world. We hope our march will help mankind come one step closer together.

On behalf of the staff, the participants, YMCA World Service, and the "Miles For Mankind" Committee, I would like to express our sincere appreciation for your support of our "Miles For Mankind" Day activities.

Shoe Store Fund

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

The Winchester Shoe Hospital fund is alive and well. To date, the response has been most heartening and should serve as real encouragement to its owners in their efforts to repair or replace uninsured equipment lost in the recent fire.

If anyone has not yet contributed and would care to do so, contributions may be addressed to Winchester Shoe Hospital Fund, c/o Winchester Business Association, Box 191, Winchester, 01890.

Presentation of a check to Mr. Paul Caros will be made on June 5 for the amount in the fund as of that date.

Gay Birds

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

I have seen more Baltimore Orioles in the last four or five years than I ever saw before. There must be at least a half-dozen pair in my area. We used to have a few Orchard Orioles nesting nearby, but I have not seen them lately.

Yesterday when I was working in my garden I heard a pronounced racket overhead, in the Baltimore Oriole tongue. I can't understand Oriole, but I know the language when I hear it. I looked up. There on a low branch I saw two resplendent orange and black birds facing each other about a foot apart and arguing at the top of their voices.

First one bird would lower his whole body with head still out-thrust almost to the limb, then bounce erect again and sing a short measure (an insult, probably). Then the other bird would mimic the first by doing the same thing. He would go into the same crouch, then bounce erect again and give voice to a similar passage — no doubt a suitable retort to the insult.

I watched this performance for about five minutes. Meanwhile, the birds fluttered nervously about from limb to limb, but always facing each other about a foot apart on a different twig each time. It was something like an opera of a sort, quite formalized, I thought — a vocal ballet, a song and dance routine.

When I tried to explain what I had seen to my wife I said that I thought what I had seen was a mating dance, except for one thing both birds, I am sure, were males.

"Oh no," she said, "please don't tell me that. I always knew that Baltimore Orioles preferred bright colors but I never suspected that they were gay."

Well, I only call 'em as I see 'em — I don't make these things up! There they were, chasing each other round and round, and I don't think they were fighting. At least they never came to blows while I watched.

I saw two blue jays yesterday after the doughnuts in my feeder. Welcome back strangers!

Who Has Sidewalk Responsibility?

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

The New England Telephone Company has just completed a conduit job on the west side of Main street from the center to their Central office, 954 Main st. and should be complimented for a job well done.

This installation will provide better telephone facilities and will also provide the people in this section of the town a decent sidewalk. A sidewalk that can be used without turning an ankle; that can be plowed of snow; swept clean of sand and debris; one without puddles and ice.

This new sidewalk replaced one partly without curbing, of broken concrete, gravel and black top — all in deplorable condition. The question now is: "Who will complete the sidewalk from the Central office to the Winchester - Woburn line?"

J. J. McCarron
35 White st.

A headline in last week's Star read, "Petition Seeks Soccer Program." But the next ran: "A group of residents is petitioning the School Committee for establishment of a hockey program in the town's two public junior high schools."

The headline was correct. It is soccer - SOCCER - the residents want. Those who signed the petition are:

Arpad von Lazar, John J. Waite Jr., John F. Mitchell, James M. Oliver Jr., Carolyn Cummings, Charles L. Morgan, William B. Budd, Richard C. Parker and George M. Miller.

Also, F. Robert Johnson, Edmund J. Doherty, Barbara E. Pacetti, Jean R. Nelson, Irene Schneller, Henry J. Curtis Jr., Raymond J. Champoux, Roger A. Sillman and Richard N. Wilsack.

Also, Mary M. Brink, Pauline A. Driscoll, Mary Foss McQuillin, Catherine R. Fallon, Thomas G. Callahan, Edward T. Conley, Justin M. James Jr., Sandra Sillman and Peter Kennedy Tully.

Harriet Dieterich, new chairman of the School Committee, has explained for The Star her recent statement critical of this newspaper for not correcting its errors "when they are found to be wrong."

The "error" Mrs. Dieterich referred to was a note in this column wondering what happened to the marble mantelpieces at McManus House. The mantelpieces, as it turned out, were not marble, but brick, a fact we duly noted in this column April 12. Mrs. Dieterich said she missed seeing that clarification.

On the committee's posture on failing to relinquish McManus House, she said it had never been the committee's desire to give up this piece of property it feels is necessary for expansion of McCall Junior High School.

Thus when Town Counsel Leonard Mullen ruled at town meeting that the committee would first have to relinquish the property before the meeting could vote on its use, the committee voted against giving up control.

For that action, The Star called the committee arrogant, feeling the committee should have allowed the town meeting to make the decision on McManus's use. We pointed out to Mrs. Dieterich that the ultimate decision to relinquish or retain was made by the committee and not town counsel. Mullen's ruling merely allowed the committee to make that decision.

Autonomy for school committees appears to be in its last years. Harry Chadwick, Winchester's representative in the legislature, says its end "is very, very close" and predicts autonomy will come to an end in a year or two. A bill closely defeated this year would have given town meetings and city councils the right to cut school department budgets by a four-fifths vote of its members.

Of course, as Chadwick points out, in a town like Winchester a school committee would have to make a colossal blunder in order for town meeting to garner a four-fifths vote against a school budget. But passage of a four-fifths bill could mean bills in subsequent legislative sessions of two-thirds and even a simple majority.

Town meetings and city councils might then go overboard, as they have in the mid-west, and reject all bond issues for schools, resulting in the closing of school districts.

Many don't realize that school budgets in Massachusetts represent more than 50 percent of the total city or town budget. To get a true picture of the Winchester school budget one must add to the education budget such other budgets as school traffic (under the police budget), most of the $1.7 million debt service and $1.2 million interest on funded debt budgets.

It wouldn't be fair to add such things as snow and ice and park and recreation since these budgets have townwide application. But the $10.4 million school budget represents far more than 52 percent of the town's total budget, perhaps nearer to 65 or 70 percent.

Eric Rudd of 29 Nelson st. bought some Blobo, a plastic bubble making substance, at a local store for his daughter the other day. He said when he took the cap off he nearly fell over because of the fumes.

Rudd says the stores are selling stuff like this to kids so fast they can hardly keep the junk on the shelves. The kids, he believes, get a cheap high from sniffing it. The local store took it off the shelf right away.

Anyway, Rudd immediately got on the telephone to the Federal Drug Administration and the three major manufacturers of these blow-your-own plastic balloons in an attempt to halt their sale. FDA tells him a loophole in the law allows the manufacturers to produce this substance as long as the acetone in it is less than 10 percent.

It's the acetone that creates the fumes, Rudd says. "The FDA is trying to close loophole." The instruction sheet that comes with one of the brands says only those six

BOOK REVIEW

The Great Bank of America Telex Heist
by Roderic Knowles

The author of The Great Bank of America Telex Heist, and brains of the operation is Roderic Knowles, stepson of an English lord. He was educated at Eton and spent several diletantish years searching for truth and self realization.

He practiced Yoga; he associated himself with a mysterious movement called Subud in which the activity of the will is suspended. He decided successively to become a poet, a mathematician, a missionary, a painter, and finally wound up as an art dealer in an accountancy office. This job he loathed but managed to stay with for four years.

After this he went on to several more including teaching English in a school in Algiers. It was here that he learned to see crime as a sport. He describes with a great deal of self satisfaction his robbery of money from the secretary's desk under the very eyes of the school director who never even thought of suspecting him.

Roderic Knowles was now ready. He rather fancied himself in the role of international gold smuggler. It was a quiet, gentlemanly occupation with loads of opportunity for secret meetings, false documents, cryptic messages, and sudden nocturnal journeys.

At the time it was possible to make a quick profit in buying up large quantities of gold in Europe and selling it in the Far East. This was illegal. The author's plans for operating this clandestine business were masterly. He took on as partner a charming and knowledgeable confidence man, known for the purpose of this report only as Ben. Ben had contacts in the Far East and was an experienced smuggler. Together they placed the following advertisement.

"Interesting and remunerative part time work, with travel, offered to adventurous and well educated young man." This brought forth a number of applicants and after intensive interviewing several of these young men were chosen and briefed on their role as carriers in the smuggling operation.

A very ingenious type of corset with pockets had been devised which fitted snugly under the wearer's own clothing. The gold bars were so distributed that a heavily loaded carrier looked perfectly natural. He was given advice on how to avoid being jostled, when not to nap on flights, never to drink enroute, to hold on to the hand rails so as not to trip and other ways of avoiding detection.

These carriers, although essential, were only a small part of the overall organization. There were gold buyers, public relation men, advance men, contacts, many more, all directly responsible to Roderic Knowles. There were even some women, although Knowles felt this was bad policy. He didn't say why.

Once into the gold operation the partners encountered a beautiful Chinese diamond smuggler and with her help decided to do a little of this on the side. The young lady who said she did it for fun arranged contacts for them.

This was not their only break. They also met a crooked bank official in Korea who knew all the secret bank codes and was willing to throw his lot in with them for a share of the profits which would be something like $600,000 for 2 days work. This was supposed to be foolproof! The banks would hush up any discovery of a loss rather than have confidence in themselves to be undermined.

Everything was going so beautifully and promised to be so profitable that it was a shame that it had all been set up by the CIA. Roderic Knowles found himself in jail writing this book. He wrote in code though. That made it more fun.

Distortion Of News Topic Of Speaker

On Wednesday, May 30, the Winchester Peace Committee will sponsor a public lecture on "The Distortion of the News in the Public Media" to be held in the meeting room at the Winchester Public Library at 8 p.m.

Featured speaker of the evening will be Edwin Diamond, former senior editor of Newsweek and now press critic for the Post-Newsweek Stations, Inc., Washington, D. C. Diamond is a guest lecturer in the department of political science at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology. He is also a contributing editor of New York Magazine. In his presentation Diamond will explore such questions as who decides what news is carried on the major wire services, printed in the national papers and aired on major network television news shows. He will discuss on what basis these decisions are made, what kind of news is suppressed and for what reasons, how the public can learn to recognize and make adjustments for certain biases in news reporting.

Edwin Diamond has had long experience as a professional journalist. Born in Chicago, he received his Ph.D. and MA (with honors) degrees from the University of Chicago. He served as a combat infantryman and officer in World War II and the Korean War.

He worked on the Chicago American before going to Washington to serve on the Times-Herald and as a science writer for International News Service.

He was science editor of Newsweek for a number of years and the senior editor of the "back of the book" until he resigned at the end of 1969.

He is author of two books, "Science of Dreams" and "Rise and Fall of the Space Age," and has contributed to another, "The Media and the Citizen." He has written articles for a number of periodicals, including New York the New York Times Magazine, the Bulletin of Atomic Scientists, and The Columbian Journalism Review.

In 1971 Diamond participated in a Karl Taylor Compton Seminar at MIT on "The Mass Communication of Complicated Issues." At MIT during the 1972-73 year, Diamond, together with a group of MIT faculty and students and established the Network News Study Group to analyze coverage of the 1972 presidential campaign.

He lives in Sands Point, N. Y., and while at MIT will continue to go to Washington weekly for his broadcasts analyzing press coverage of the news. He is a member of the National Press Club.

There is no admission charge for this event and the public is invited to attend. Following Diamond's presentation there will be time for questions and discussion.

The First Congregational Church's "Jog for Joy" in which church members pledge money to match the number of miles a jogger they sponsor runs is "dragging and lagging," the church reports. So far about $70 has been raised. The goal is $1,000 by June 17, the money to be contributed to One Great Hour of Sharing and School Volunteers for Boston.

Even if the jogging drive has run into trouble, at least the 15 human and one canine ("Jessie") participants have benefitted from the exercise. The youngest jogger is five years of age; the oldest, 55.

The $70 raised is so far from the established goal one can only think that the joggers as they set out each Wednesday at 12:15 for their weekly jaunt must have great faith in the Biblical phrase, "Ask, and you will receive." Arthur MacDonnell

800 Fail To Get Licenses

Dog Officer Dominic Molea said last week records from Town Clerk Elsie M. Nelson's office indicate more than 800 persons who own dogs in Winchester have failed to get licenses for their pets.

He said violators are subject to a $10 fine if their dog is picked up.

The dog impoundments period, he said, has been cut from 10 to 5 days. "It's very important to have dogs licensed in order to have them returned. The law goes into effect May 28," he said.

Set June 2

Gabriella Mountain's Work Feature Of Sidewalk Show

Work by multi-media artist and craftsman Gabriella Mountain of 31 Wildwood street will add a contemporary dimension to the Winchester Art Association's sidewalk show, planned for June 2 along the span of Manchester Field fence bordering Mystic Valley pky. A sculptor in marble, wood, clay, and metals, working in the round and in relief, Mrs. Mountain is also a weaver, creator of mosaics, yarn painter (using wool stitching on a canvas backing), craftsman in stained glass and glass cloisonne, and most recently, creator of an innovative multi-media form she calls "collage."

Using sheets of plywood as a backing and a plastic adhesive medium for a ground, Mrs. Mountain's collages are begun with "found" metal objects gleaned from junk yards and dumps. One large collage recently completed featured a centrally-placed oil drum lid emerging as "Midnight Sun" in a universe pattern using brake shoes, fly wheels, nuts, bolts, pinions, and brake drums. Bands of intricately aligned brass screws and marble chips are worked into "Midnight Sun." Juxtaposed against the "found" metal objects and the mosaic patterns are undulating lines of softly colored wool yarns glued to the plywood paneling—in the manner of Mexican yarn painting.

Mrs. Mountain's works are represented in museums and private collections in Europe and in the United States. A resident of Missouri for 20 years, examples of her craftsmanship in many media are the architectural features of numerous buildings and private residences in the Midwest. Twice a winner of the American Institute of Architects Award for Craftsmanship, she has been the recipient of a Huntington Hartford Fellowship and a Tiffany Fellowship.

For details on sidewalk show participation, interested professional and amateur artists and craftsmen may contact Abby Hamilton of 47 Walnut st. or Iola Pontone of 1 Lakeview rd.

Oceans Show Introduced By Wilcox

Stars, galaxies and planets have been supplanted at the Worcester Science Center's Alden Omnisphere by a visual trip into a new dimension - the oceans.

The new show, which opened recently to an audience of school children, was charted months ago at a brainstorming session between omnisphere director Jackson F. Wilcox, a fifth generation native of Winchester, and his assistant. Wilcox explains the idea is to use planetarium techniques to explain other sciences. Three months of drawing, filming, construction and taping prefaced the opening of the $100,000 show that they put together for $800.

Called "Neptune's Children," the show is a series of special effects directed onto a screen by 45 still projectors, three motion picture and four slide projectors.

Wilcox, a graduate of Tufts University, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Woodford L. Wilcox of 29 Calumet rd.

Music To Reach More Students Says Cowgill

Plans to reach more students with an upgraded program of music education in Winchester schools were outlined by Burton Cowgill at the annual meeting of the Community School Association at Vinson-Owen School recently.

Director of Music for the Winchester schools, Cowgill spoke briefly and answered many questions.

At the elementary level, he said, the addition of a fourth instrumental teacher next year will make it possible to separate instruction by musical families. There are plans for a chorus at each of the nine schools next year. Presently three vocal teachers provide 30 minutes per week of instruction for each student, compared with a state average of 90 minutes per week. Eventually at least one more teacher is needed, he noted.

Over the next few years at the junior high level a new program will allow for options in order to involve more students. About 20 percent of the students now participate in the Conservatory System, under which parents pay the private teachers directly, Cowgill said.

Next year there will be more instrumental instruction, particularly in color instruments. Cowgill sees the need for a full-time instrumental instructor at both Junior High schools, where now there is one person half-time at each.

At the high school, in order to more fully use the facilities, Cowgill said another academic music person is needed. He noted a void in background education and wants to see more course time in music theory, including construction of scales, chords, triads, harmony, composition, music appreciation and the hearing of music.

Extracurricular activities planned for next year he said include continuation of the popular double sextet, and the beginning of an ensemble composed of students from grade five through high school.

Winslows Potpourri Offers Gifts, Personal Shopping

Mrs. Marjorie Luce, owner of Winslow's Potpourri, celebrated her first year with the gift shop on May 1.

Winslow's Potpourri has been in Winchester for about 20 years. Originally Winslow's Press, a job printer, it has had five or six locations. The present address is 576 Main st.

When Mrs. Luce bought the business she thought about calling it "The Cross-eyed Cat" after the Luce pet, but decided to let it remain Winslow's Potpourri since the name was already known.

Mrs. Luce has had much experience in sales. For a number of years she was manager of the gift shop at the Waltham Hospital. She loves her work, particularly the personal shopping she does for customers who come in looking for special hard-to-find items. As she travels around to various points in the northeast and New York, she finds unusual boutique articles to add to the line in her shop and is able to obtain items she knows a certain somebody is looking for or would like to have.

Mrs. Luce, who lives in Wayland with her husband, Edward, would like to move to Winchester and expects to do so sometime in the future. She says she has found Winchester people "most appreciative," noting a time when a young man, a candlemaker, came in to offer special thanks for finding just the right set of candlesticks. His mother had been the shopper and had told Mrs. Luce what he was looking for. "He didn't have to come in to say thanks, yet he did," Mrs. Luce recalls.

Winslow's Potpourri has a wide selection of gifts, novelties and utilitarian items. Among these are imported doll house furniture, hand-done sterling silver jewelry for youth made by Mexican Indians, lamps from Maine with quaint shades, goblets from France, demitasse sets, Carbone casseroles, Irish coffee mugs, relish dishes, pictures, coasters, figurines, music boxes, place mats and even a tool kit for ladies containing hammer, nails, pliers, screw driver and awl.

The shop carries a complete line of greeting cards by Francesi and Workshop, the latter of Concord, N.H., along with other brands. "I hand-pick cards," Mrs. Luce says explaining she looks for personal one-line messages that focus on positive feelings and forces in life.

Other products include candles, candleholders, candle rings, stationery, party paper products, gift wrapping materials, guest towels, stuffed animals, and albums such as baby books.

Products which may be ordered through the store are picture frames, printed stationery, wedding invitations and Christmas cards.

Though the shop "is geared to the feminine customer" men are sure to find just the right something for their "special giving." And in preparation for Father's Day, the store has a display of whisk brooms.

Mrs. Luce sings the praises of Mrs. Mary Hughes, who has worked for Winslow's Potpourri for almost eight years and is "always cheerful. She is precious to me," Mrs. Luce declares.

Regarding her goals for the future, Mrs. Luce hopes to continue adding new boutique items from craftsmen from abroad, nationally and locally. Next year she plans to travel along the coast of Maine and poke around to seek out some really different things for the people of Winchester.

Dogs Bark Back

By Kay Cardin

Equal time please for Ferd, Miss Basset and Eric, the doberman, who were woefully misquoted in Ann Landau's recent witty article in The Star.

We canines may sometimes be a nuisance, but what isn't? — your neighbor's children (or even your own), door-to-door solicitors, horn-blowing automobilists, teenagers who carelessly litter beer cans, but who would advocate leashing any of them?

Dominic Molea, the dog officer, is more than a rumor to most of us since he makes daily morning trips to all the school yards and rounds us up if our presence is disruptive and sometimes it is. Our owners would really be smart not to let us follow the kids to school. Most children enjoy our company. Soft strokeable fur, a cold inquisitive nose and a gaily wagging tail can make a casual encounter with one of us fun.

For those little ones who freeze at the sight of us, we recommend their family get them a cuddly pet of their own.

As for the 40-year-old man who let me spook him, Eric whimpers, "If he had just spoken to me in a friendly voice and gone his way, that probably would have been that. Of course, Mr. Molea will enforce my being tied if I upset too many people, mostly just because I was born a doberman. I know many quiet, gentle dobermans, by the way!"

One last bark: dog owners pay taxes too, we're told. Please have a little tolerance, all you keepers of the grass.

Reds Reel Off 6 Wins In Row

After losing their first two games to George Parker and the Mets, Saurman and his Reds have reeled off six wins in a row and are perched in first place in the American Division of the Major League. The veteran skipper and his staff have quietly and efficiently put all the pieces together. Barring any major injuries they appear to be in full stride for the second half of the season.

The Redbirds under Tom Pearl of the American League continued their winning ways last week with back-to-back victories over the Pirates 6-5 and 11-1. The first game featured a tight pitching duel between Randy Pearl of the Cards and Chad Doe of the Pirates. John Ross had two hits and two RBI's but the margin of victory was provided by Steve Wolfe who belted a two run homer in the fourth inning.

The second win was gained by Steve Wolfe's solid three-hitter coupled with a flawless defense and the heavy hitting of Jimmy Willing, Randy Pearl, Ricky Kimball, Chris Stanton and Lenny Rallo. Rick Mood got the Cards started with his alert base running in the first inning scoring the Cards first run.

Over in the American Minor League the Wildcats, after four straight losses, proved that determination is a wonderful commodity to possess in life, especially in sports, as they won their first game of the year walloping the Foxes 12-5. Last year's champs completely outplayed and outthrust their opponents in a much deserved win. Much credit is due to manager Warren Gagan and Sal Amadeo. Any club who takes the Wildcats lightly in coming weeks had better be ready to pay the Piper for it.

In National Minor League action the Bears under Ed Doherty continued to roll last week winning their 6th and 7th in a row without a loss. It now looks to be a two team race in that division with the Bulldogs. A two-game series slated for June 4, and sixth between these powers at West Side Field could decide the winner in that division.

The Ponies, however, with only four games played thus far due to rainouts could be very much in that divisional battle if their makeup games do not overburden its pitching staff.

After last week's action in the National Major League the Yankees remained the only undefeated team in both major leagues as they won two from the Braves by scores of 15-4 and 15-1. The Bombers now have a record of 7-0. The first major confrontation in the national division will occur this week when the second place Twins take on the Yankees in a two game series which should feature some great baseball at West Side Field. Peter Franchi said his Twins will be ready for this important series.

In other national league action last year's winner the Royals, under Paul Guarante, swept two from the Red Sox by scores of 14-0 and 3-1. In the opener Jackie Collins and David Errico combined to pitch a one hit shutout while ten Royals hitters smashed out a total of 13 hits.

The game ball went to David Downing who played an exceptional game at third base; flawlessly handling three ground shots and making a diving catch on a bloop infield pop. Dow also contributed a key hit and scored two runs.

The second game featured strong pitching by Bobby Fiore and David Carrigan who limited the Red Sox to one hit and one run. Defensive gems were turned in by Brad Holmes, with a nifty catch while looking into a tough fielder's sun, and Greg Cummings who made an unassisted putout on a wicked bouncer in the first base hole that was ticketed for extra bases.

Fran Murray went the route for the Sox and did a fine job limiting the Royals to three hits. Solid defense was provided for the Sox by Kevin Fitzgerald at third, Tom Masiello who was immense at short including a base hit saving catch he turned into a double play, and steady catching by Joe McIsaac.

Washington Dads Hold Field Day

The George Washington School Dads' Club annual family field day will be held June 2. Rain date is June 16.

The field day will begin at Leonard's Field from 10 a.m. There will be races and prizes for all George Washington School children and parents.

Rudy Fiore Hurls One-Hit Victory

By John F. Parrell

Coach Bill Colella and his Sachem baseball team have been having a hard time with the weatherman. In the past week they have been able to squeeze in only one game, with Burlington, forcing a full schedule of games this week. Another game was added when rain forced postponement of Monday's game with Melrose.

Rudy Fiore was in rare form against the Red Devils of Burlington, limiting the visitors to one hit, in the last inning. His control was off, however, and he was in trouble as the result of six walks. But, the new league members could not hit what they couldn't see, so he breezed through without too much trouble. Rudy set 14 Red Devils down on strikes.

The Winchester attack was not overpowering, but the Sachems made good use of their seven safeties. Wayne Dennis singled to open the third inning and advanced to second on a throwing error. Tom Brennan's single sent Dennis across with the first run.

Three runs came in for the Sachems due largely to a pair of bunts. Co-captain Ned Keating walked and Mike Heffernan followed with a single. Rudy Fiore helped his own cause with a bunt which filled the bases. Wayne Dennis attempted a sacrifice bunt, but Burlington's fielders threw the ball around and when the smoke had cleared Winchester had three runs and a 4-0 lead. This was more than enough for Fiore. The two runs that the Sachems tallied later were just incidentals.

Unless there is a series of major upsets it looks as though the Stoneham Spartans will take the Middlesex League crown, with Reading as the probable runnerup. Winchester is not completely out of the race, nor is Watertown, which has come along fast. However, unless the leaders falter, it appears they will represent the Middlesex League in the state tourney.

The standings after Monday's games:

Stoneham	12-3
Reading	10-4
Watertown	9-6
Melrose	8-7
Winchester	7-6
Wakefield	7-7

Astros Soccer Team Loses First In Six

The Winchester-Medford Astros Soccer team lost its first game in six starts, as Needham beat them 7-0. Their first engagement was a 3-3 tie, six weeks ago. Needham's power exploded in the first minute of the game by scoring a goal. They scored three more to end the first half. In the second half Needham added three more goals.

Winchester-Medford played their worst game of the season! Their passing and control of the ball was unlike their previous performances, and the timing of their fullbacks was off. Normally three practices are held during the week, but due to other commitments of the boys no practices were held. This was the reason for the breakdown of the team, which was voluntarily admitted by the players.

However, since Needham is not within the same league group as Winchester, it had been scheduled as a "friendly" game. The tie and the loss with Needham does not reflect in the standings. Their next game is with Lexington on Sunday at 1:30 on MacDonald Field.

MOVING THE BALL - Vinnie Palumbo (6) advances against Beverly defender in game played against the North Shore team at Leonard Field recently.

Celtics In First

The Winchester Celtics soccer team outdistanced Wellesley II last Saturday with a convincing 3-0 win and climbed into first place in the "C" Division for 12-year-olds.

The Celtics took an early lead on a short boot in front of the goal by Dave McLaughlin, off a well-placed corner kick by John Walte. The second goal was delivered by John Barcus, who took advantage of a high bouncing ball which escaped the Wellesley II goalkeeper. Pat Fortin closed out the scoring early in the second half with his third goal of the season.

Wellesley II was never able to penetrate the stout Winchester defense which notched its fourth shutout in six games.

The entire Winchester squad played during this match with the reserve 11 logging much valuable playing time and giving an excellent account of themselves.

The next three weeks will determine if the Celtics can dislodge the Wellesley I team from the "C" Division title. Winchester takes on Franklin, Needham and Wellesley I and must win all three to guarantee the championship. The first of these crucial matches takes place at 2:15 p.m. next Saturday on McDonald Field against Franklin.

In the Methuen game in the third inning, Hurley drove in three runs with a long double. He was able to score later on a teammate's safety.

HOW MUCH ELECTRICITY?

The average family today uses three times as much electricity as families in the U.S. only 15 years ago. Back in 1940, a mere 80 amperes electric service was all you needed to power a house including the lights. Now we have electrical devices ranging from washers and dryers to TV sets and knife sharpeners. Some of them, such as an electric range or dryer, draw more electricity than could be supplied by an entire electric board in a typical 1940 house.

The average house today requires an electric service output of 240 volts and 100 amperes capacity. If

LL Steering Committee To Meet Tuesday

The steering committee of the Winchester Little League will hold its monthly meeting next Tuesday at the Crawford Memorial United Methodist Church.

The meeting will be called to order at 8:15 p.m. to allow members involved in baseball games that night enough time to get to the meeting. Only steering committee members are invited.

On the agenda is a review of past performances, a discussion of umpire-manager relations, fund drive results, improvement plans for fields and facilities, Little League tournament participation, and selection processes for the four all-star teams, if tournament entry is authorized.

In order to make this meeting viable, any manager, umpire or other administrative person not on the steering committee who has business he feels should be covered at this meeting should advise his vice president or manager representative of his wishes so that individual can present it for discussion.

Manager representatives who are expected to attend, in addition to the officers, are John Heffernan, Al Fay, George Parker, Ed Conley, Paul Guarante and Don Martin. Frank Langone and Bob McGoldrick and Inny Noel, Umpires-in-chief of senior, major and minor Leagues should also be there.

The winners were congratulated by Mrs. Anne Slack, retiring president of the Eastern Massachusetts Chapter AATF and a vice-president of the national organization.

Also present at the meeting were the incoming president, Prof. Donald Stone of Harvard, and the regional representative, Elaine Hardie of Concord-Carlisle High School.

Among the recipients of certificates were two Winchester students, Claudia Megan Urry, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Grant Urry of 2 Black Horse ter., and Lisa Fitzgerald, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Paul Fitzgerald of 15 Ravid rd. They placed fifth in their respective categories.

The second performance will be Douglas Parkhurst's "Early Frost." Originally presented on NBC television, this is a drama of two sisters who live in a rambling old house.

The performance of "Early Frost" will carry with it a first for the Lynch Drama Club. Its presentation has been totally student-oriented. Student director Kim Shawcross and assistant director Caryl Semonian have handled the selection of the play, casting of the actresses and the overall directing and coordination of the production. Cast members are: Emily Block, Liz Fowle, Kathy Dorsey, Joan Mahoney and Liz Fuller.

Memorial Paraders Undeterred By Cold, Drizzle; Neither Are Spectators

At least several thousand residents watched 800 marchers parade through Winchester Monday as the town celebrated its annual Memorial Day ceremonies to honor the men killed in defense of the United States. Parade marshal John Horn said the largest crowd in years watched the parade travel from the starting point at Leonard Field down Washington street to Town Hall. Impending rain held off until the ceremony at the war memorial at Town Hall. As taps began to play, first from one location and then another, mist began to fall.

After the brief service, marchers paused for a few minutes then the parade resumed for the walk to Wildwood Cemetery.

The rain was falling more heavily when the marchers assembled for the trip to Wildwood Cemetery and the elementary and high school bands dropped out. The contingents of police, fire, various veterans groups, student military units and Boston Fire Department Band stuck it out, however.

At Wildwood there were more taps, brief comments by Arthur E. Dunbar, chairman of the Board of Selectmen, and a firing squad by the Woburn National Guard, as there had earlier been at Calvary Cemetery.

Marshall Horn had intended to end the parade after the Wildwood ceremony because of the rain but the marchers insisted on returning to Town Hall, where they dispersed shortly before noon.

Wreaths were placed at the war memorials at Town Hall, McCall Junior High School and both cemeteries.

The Dukes of Marlborough Drum and Bugle Corps had been scheduled to parade but cancelled shortly before the start at 9 a.m.

During the first part of the five-mile march several members of the Winchester Peace Committee distributed literature to observers. "Let us use caution not to equate patriotism with an acceptance of the present military policy of our government," the literature read.

"Let us not glorify the trappings of war by giving guns to our children in parades. The thrill and excitement of a military exhibition (a fond Memorial Day for many) is a piece of nostalgia from a simpler and more innocent time."

Services Friday For 2 Dead Officers; Third Is In 'Fair' Condition

Services for Winchester police officers Frederick J. Marasca, 25, and Andrew J. Saraco, 25, killed Monday in an automobile accident on Cross street are tomorrow at St. Mary's Church.

A third Winchester police officer, William Gannon, 27, of Tremont st. is listed in fair condition at Winchester Hospital with multiple injuries received when the car in which the three were riding went out of control and struck a tree.

midnight. Both were in uniform. Gannon was on a day off.

Gannon is suffering from a broken arm, broken leg and internal injuries. He is married and the father of two.

"Naturally the department is saddened by the deaths of these fellows," Chief Bowler said. "We feel bad for their families." The police station is decorated in black bunting in their memory.

Investigation into the accident is con-

Yeanacopolis, John W. McKinley, William E. Nash, John E. Guarente.

Visiting hours for both deceased officers are today from 2-4 and 7-9 at Lane Funeral Home, 760 Main st. A funeral mass will be Friday at 10 a.m. at St. Mary's Church for Mr. Saraco and at noon at St. Mary's for Mr. Marasca.

Burial for both will be at Wildwood Cemetery on Lake street.

Mr. Saraco was a native of Winchester and had lived here all his life. He attended the Winchester schools and graduated from Winchester High School in 1966. His father was Michael D. Saraco, director of the Winchester Board of Health.

His mother was Gladys (Gordon) Saraco. He was the husband of Joanne (Fitzgerald) Saraco and the father of one daughter, Tammy. He leaves two brothers, Sgt. Michael D. Jr. in the U.S. Marines in 29 Falmes, Calif., and William D. of Winchester; and two sisters, Linda M. Saraco of Winchester and Mrs. Robert (Barbara) Walsh of Burlington.

Mr. Marasca was born in Arlington and attended the Winchester schools. He was a graduate of Winchester High School, class of 1966. He was a member of the Winchester Lodge of Elks.

The son of Albert and Dianne (DiFrancesca) Marasca, he was the brother of Dennis J. and Alberta E. Marasca of Winchester; Dolores M. Planowski of Chelmsford and Mrs. Beverly A. Murphy of North Tewksbury. Contributions in his memory may be made to St. Roberts Church, Andover.

In Memoriam

Andrew J. Saraco

Police said Marasca, of 23 Mystic ave., and Saraco, of 41 Irving st., were killed instantly. Both were "specials" in the department—temporary officers awaiting permanent appointment. Marasca has been on the force over a year, Saraco for three years. Gannon is a regular patrolman who joined the force in 1970.

Witnesses to the accident at about 5 o'clock said the car came under the railroad bridge on Cross street heading toward Washington street at a high speed and went out of control at the curve a short distance from the bridge.

The car, they said, swerved from one side of the street to the other several times before striking the tree at 50 Cross st. Police Chief Edward F. Bowler said Marasca was the driver and Gannon was probably a passenger in the front. The car belonged to Marasca.

Saraco was found lying over the front seat, indicating he was likely a passenger in the rear, Chief Bowler said.

None of the men was thrown from the vehicle, a 1973 Oldsmobile Cutlass. The force of the impact crushed the car against the tree. Responding firefighters and police officers removed the men within 10 minutes. Chief Bowler said.

He also said witnesses observed the car rocking and heard an explosion, which he believes was the front tire blowing out as the car hit the curb. He said there was a tire rim mark on the street and 20 feet of rubber marks on the curb.

"Road conditions were bad," the chief said, noting the rain soaked streets. "They had to be going fast. How fast I don't know."

The three men had marched that morning in the town's Memorial Day Parade and were off duty at the time, perhaps driving Officer Saraco home. He lives nearby. Marasca and Saraco were scheduled to go on duty at

Sachems Take Six In Row, Make State

By John F. Parrell

The Sachem nine routed the Melrose Red Raiders Tuesday afternoon, winning 7-1. This raised their season's record to 12-6, clinched second place in the Middlesex League, and earned them a place in the state baseball tournament.

Co-captain Steve Johnson threw a five hitter, Wayne Dennis had a home run, two other hits and 4 RBIs.

The big victory marked the end of the last ditch drive of the Colclamen which carried them to this point by six games in which the combined opposition managed only 22 hits and three runs, only one earned over the 42 innings. Good defensive play helped Johnson and Rudy Fiore to three wins each, and the defensive gem of the Melrose game was a perfect peg to the plate by Rudy Fiore from deep left field to cut down a Raider runner.

The line score:

Winchester is slated to play Essex County League champion, Peabody, on Saturday afternoon. The game will start at 1:30 and will be played at the new Peabody athletic field, located at the new high school in that city.

To reach the field it is suggested that local rooters take Rte. 128 to Rte. 1 North. After

WBA Hits Rundown Garage, Says Town Assessment Policy Unrealistic

A large dilapidated one-story garage on Converse place blights the area and should be restored or torn down, says the Winchester Business Association, concerned with upgrading the business area of Winchester.

A check recently showed more than 50 broken panes of glass in the dim brick structure across Converse place from the rebuilt Mill Pond Building, formerly the New England Laundry and now a medical office building.

Owned by Benjamin Schulman of Brookline, the garage is rented as a storage area. There is a truck and half a dozen old cars inside.

Schulman said the building is for sale and he's "had several offers." He said it's ideal for any retail purpose. Its price is $75,000. The building, which contains 5,700 square feet of space, is assessed for $42,800.

Asked if his selling price wasn't steep, Schulman replied: "No, not when you consider the taxes I'm paying." Taxes in 1972 were $2,610.

Schulman said he owned the old laundry building at one time "and could have had a $5 million project but the town meeting zoning fouled it up." He explained that R. M. Bradley Co. was interested in erecting condominiums but the town meeting rejected a zoning plan for the town which would have allowed apartment to be built in the center.

The WBA feels the building's deteriorated condition contributes to an unhealthy business climate in the center and the garage should be rehabilitated and put to use.

In a statement, the WBA commented on the general appearance of the area: "The looks of the central business district convey the message of the central business district:

Bright, sharp and progressive, or dingy, dull and reactionary.

"Apathy and inertia are our worst enemies. Two things are very clear from this situation. First is the overwhelming need for multi-purpose zoning in the business center of town to permit apartments, restaurants.

"Second is the need for creative taxation for differing rates of assessment. Oppressive taxation can directly undermine downtown and reduce its power of self-rejuvenation. When a person improves his property he is assessed more in taxes; when he lets it deteriorate (as in the present case) his taxes actually decrease.

"This system is inherently unfair and counter productive. In the central business district there are enormous investments in buildings, businesses, sewers, streets, utilities and more. To allow the useful life of this to be wasted involves a colossal cost to the town."

Board Airs Proposal For Charter

In response to uneasiness expressed at town meeting over the establishment of a Charter Commission for Winchester, the Town Government Study Committee has investigated alternative means of streamlining town government.

"Although there have been alternatives in the past, such as special acts of the legislature, they are vanishing," Robert Grenzeback, chairman of the TGSC told the Board of Selectmen last week. In the opinion of his committee, "The Charter Commission is the best route for the town to take."

Grenzeback noted that there is a law on the books requiring publication of the town's charter not later than 1976, and at intervals of not more than 10 years thereafter. He said 1976 is also the cut-off date after which the legislature will refuse to hear petitions for special acts reorganizing municipal governments.

Rep. Harrison Chadwick explained to The Star, "The legislature has confidence in the towns and feels that they are mature bodies who know their own needs and can best determine them." It is time consuming for the legislature to hold hearings and guide a town towards modern governmental procedures, he stated.

"The major goal of the Home Rule Act of 1966 was to achieve more standardized local governments and the legislature encourages towns to do the job themselves."

Winchester does not at present have a charter, although the town by-laws are interpreted by the Town Government Study Committee as a charter, noted Robert McCormack, attorney and member of the TGSC.

McCormack cited an ambiguity in the law requiring publication of a charter. "You can't publish it if you don't have one," he observed. "However," he added, "the Department of Community Affairs does not take that view." Grenzeback indicated that if the town does not produce a charter, "the attorney general might demand it." The codification of existing laws to comply with the charter publication requirement does not have to come as the result of a charter commission, but may simply be the result of an updating and review of the present form of government.

Needham Experts

Grenzeback introduced to the Board of Selectmen two Needham residents who played active roles in codifying and modernizing the town government there without going through the charter commission procedure. The men were John Hatch, former selectman, and Henry Hardy, attorney, former town counsel, and author of a basic text on municipal law.

Hardy outlined the history of three separate committees appointed by the

Dear Sirs,

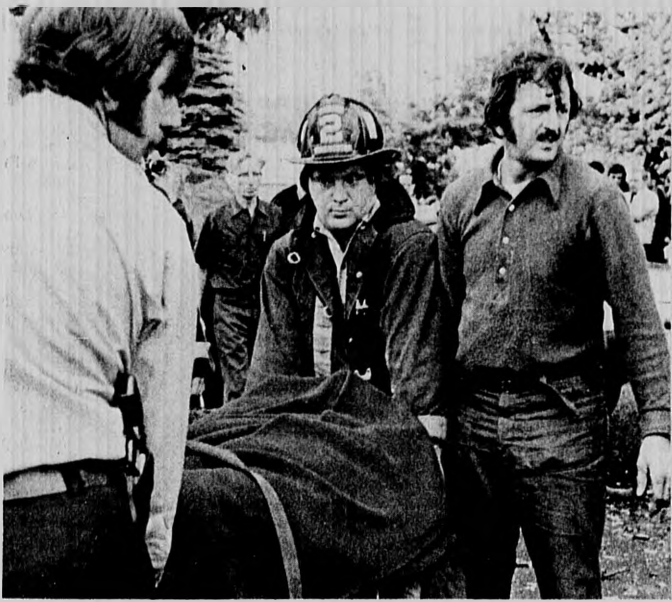

Please send me a new passbook as mine was lost and returned. But when it was returned it was wet. So I would be very thankful if you would please replace it.

I would like to tell you why I have continued banking at your bank. Four years ago we moved from Winchester to London, N.H. 15 miles from Concord, N.H. When we first moved here I planned to open a new account closer to home and close this one. I opened two but it wasn't easy to deposit and withdraw. So I came back to you. I have my money back in two days from you. Everyone here that I told was very surprised at the promptness of your bank. I would like to congratulate the whole staff on its promptness. I will continue banking at your bank as long as I live or as long as you remain open. My brother also banks at your bank and has no desire to stop.

'Aging' Committee Will Support New 11-Member Council

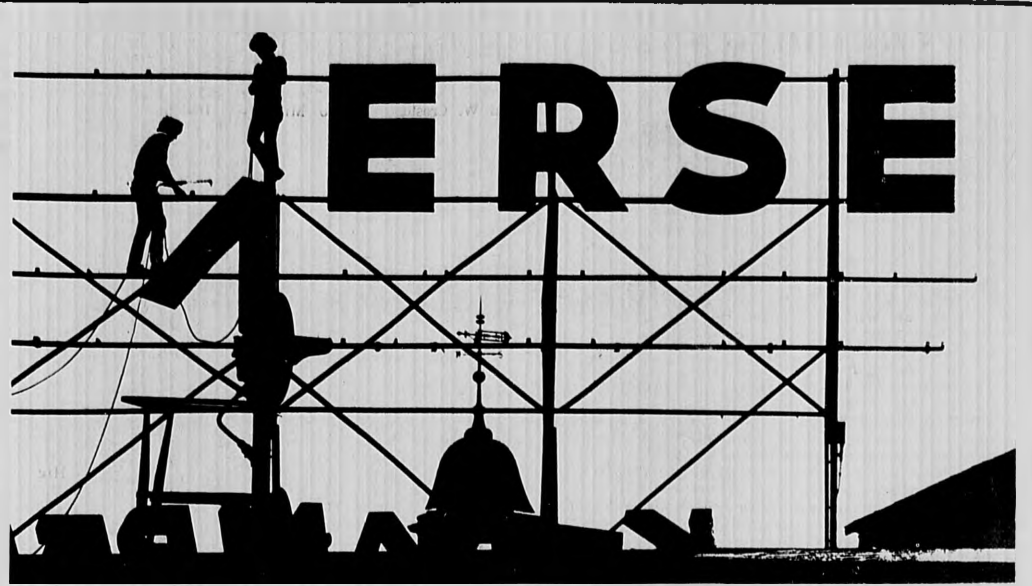

The Committee for A Winchester Council on Aging met recently at the Unitarian Church with Rev. Jack Zoerheide presiding. The committee voted to continue its activities but in a new form.

With the passage by the recent town meeting of the committee's article to form a permanent town council on aging and the allocation of funds for a part time director, the original purpose of the group has been fulfilled. The committee has now voted to continue as a support group for the new 11-member council when it is appointed by the selectmen.

Among the areas of support which the group discussed were advocacy for bills dealing with elderly affairs, a source of volunteers to work with older citizens, and acting a program initiating agency.

The Committee also voted to elect a 7-member steering committee at its June meeting which will direct the activities of the parent organization until such time as the council on aging is formed, and the relationship between the two groups is defined.

Reports were heard from Mrs. Winfield Knopf, editor of the newsletter for elder citizens; Dr. Richard Norberg, chairman of the committee surveying requirements of older townspeople; Mrs. John Stoekle, chairman of the senior service line, a phone line seniors can call for help and information; and Mrs. Ralph Seferian, publicity chairman.

Serving The Community For 90 Years

Letters To The Editor

House Cut Vote

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

Next Wednesday, June 6, the Massachusetts House of Representatives and Senate will meet in joint session as a constitutional convention to vote on an amendment to the state constitution to cut the size of the House of Representatives from 240 to 160 members, from districts of equal size.

The League of Women Voters in some 100 communities across Massachusetts studied the structure and functions of the legislature in the mid-1960's. We concluded then and still believe that the Massachusetts House, now the second largest in the country, would be strengthened if it were reduced to 160 members, better able to maintain the proper equilibrium between the branches of government.

We believe the reduction in size would increase its responsiveness and effectiveness. Proceedings and debate can be sharper and shorter in a smaller body. The responsibility of individual members could be more clearly focused and the power and prestige of each member enhanced.

This reform is not solely the concern of the league and other groups. The citizens in 60 representative districts across Massachusetts had on last November's ballot the advisory question, "Shall the representative(s) elected from this district be instructed to vote for a reduction in the size of the House of Representatives?" In every one of the 60 districts the vote was an overwhelming "yes."

The aggregate figures show that of the 1,015,421 people voting in the 60 districts, 635,830 voted yes; 182,258 voted no; while only 187,333 left the question blank. Indeed, many citizens did not realize the question was merely advisory and thought they were voting on the issue.

The legislature which was elected in 1970 voted on this same issue; the results were 177 in favor, only 65 against. If the current legislature votes in favor as well, then the question will appear on the 1974 ballot. A majority vote in favor at that time would mean the constitution would be so amended.

I am writing to you because of your disagreement with our position expressed earlier, and because the issue is at stake next Wednesday. Many Winchester League members plan to be in the visitors' gallery during the debate at the State House. We invite you and your readers who may be interested to join us. Mrs. Raymond Simpson of 10 Lawson rd. will co-ordinate transportation. Margaretta Thuma, President, Winchester League of Women Voters

Yes To Movies— No To Hamburgers

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

I think it's a shame that a town like Winchester can't support a theater. It gives people an opportunity to go out for a night. Winchester is so lucky it has a theater because the only other recreation is a bowling alley and a tennis court. The closest theater is at the Burlington Mall, which is always too crowded and expensive.

Does anybody know how crowded and sloppy Winchester would get with a McDonald's? People from all over would come.

Albino Robin Saved By Bell

While walking his female kitten Smokey on Stowell rd. recently, Michael Puttre, 8½-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Peter Puttre, caught sight of a white-breasted robin sitting on the street. Before Mike knew what was going on, Smokey began chasing the bird up a tree.

According to Mike, the bell on Smokey's blue, metal hobbled collar alerted the bird to Smokey's oncoming chase. "I don't think Smokey would have hurt the bird," says Mike, "but you really can't tell."

Mike tells The Star he got Smokey almost a month ago after someone tossed her out of an automobile. Last Friday, to celebrate having Smokey for three weeks, Mike had a birthday party for her. He got her some catnip and other treats.

Mike is not the only one in Winchester to have seen an albino robin. There have been others in town who have observed the bird.

BOOK REVIEW

by Elva L. Nelson
Winchester Public Library

A LIFE OF ONE'S OWN
by Joan Dash

Three gifted women, Edna St. Vincent Millay, Margaret Sanger, and Maria Goeppert Mayer and the men they married is the focus of A Life of One's Own.

How did marriage affect their lives? This is the question the author raises. "Is self-realization for women possible if they continue to live with men?" The author's answer is "It has been known to happen, and with all the passion currently being expended on the subject, surely we will learn how to make it happen more often."

How did Margaret Sanger become dedicated to fostering birth control? Trained as a nurse and married with three children, she was restless. She was afraid of becoming "kitchen-minded."

She became associated with a ladies' literary society. At each meeting a member gave a talk. "politics," says the author, "the rights of women, Havelock Ellis and his daring explorations of human sexuality now were her interests and Bill (her husband) encouraged her efforts by telling her, 'You go ahead and finish your writing. I'll get the dinner and wash the dishes.' He didn't want her to limit herself to small town interests."

Moving to Manhattan, her obstetrical nursing took her to the Lower East Side where cheap abortions became almost a necessity of life. Women would beg her for the secret that rich women had—how not to get pregnant. Birth control, a cause for which she sacrificed, brought an end to her first marriage. The husband who encouraged her growth became embittered. Two years later she remarried a man with a fortune who helped her work. But as the years passed they saw less and less of each other. He remembered only the happiness they had shared before his death, which was before hers.

Marriage was by no means the central fact of Margaret Sanger's life. Poet Edna St. Vincent Millay was just the opposite. At the height of her fame, in the 1920's this first woman poet to be awarded the Pulitzer prize, married a businessman, Eugen Boissevain, who loved having talented people around him.

His first wife had been feminist Inez Milholland. Her public activities brought much publicity. Boissevain was her guardian, secretary and manager. Lecturing one day she collapsed and died from pernicious anemia.

In 1925, after their marriage, Edna and Eugen bought a farm in the Berkshires. The author writes: "Here Edna Millay was to work in perfect solitude, and Eugen, who sold his importing business to move there, was to become a full-time professional farmer, not because it was the career of his choice but because it was best for his wife."

"When we got married," he told a reporter a few years later, "I gave up my business. It seemed advisable to arrange our lives to suit Vincent. It is so obvious to anyone that Vincent is more important than I am. Anyone can buy and sell coffee." Eugen became the man who looked after everything. As a husband, he became a powerful and protective parent.

Edna Millay's childhood had been marked by insecurity. Her parents were divorced and her mother who worked lived away from home a good deal. The ambitions of the mother for her daughters fostered Edna's poetic talent, but left her emotionally unstable. She had illnesses and breakdowns during her life.

Poetry was Edna Millay's existence. But her life would not have been as well or as successful without Boissevain.

Emigrating from Germany in 1930, the young couple settled for a while in Maryland, then New Jersey, and while both had doctorates in their respective fields it was only the husband who could secure a professorship.

"Don't become a woman!" her father had told her.

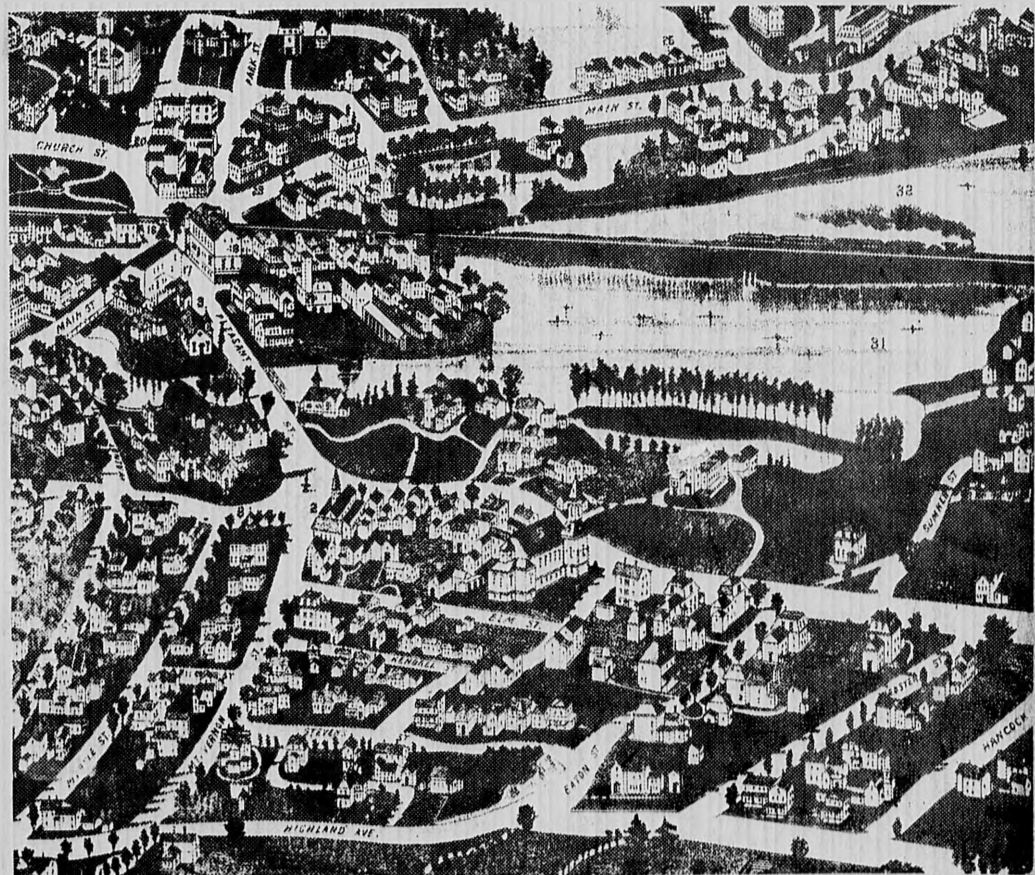

When her daughter was born, she spent much time at home playing with the baby. Though having a baby was a "tremendous experience," she felt the tug of scientific work pulling at her and this was much encouraged by her husband.

According to the author "for upper-level research scientists like the Mayers the fun lay in discovering 'what no one else knew the day before yesterday, even if it's trivial.'" Maria, who once had an attic for an office at John Hopkins, had a job offer from Harold Urey in the early 1940's to join a secret research group at Columbia, which became the SAM project a year or so later. The job expanded and Maria soon had 20 scientists working under her.

Through her contacts with Edward Teller she came to know about nuclear fission and the atomic bomb. (This was a painful secret she had to keep from her husband.) Through her work with Teller, after the war she began to do research on nuclei of certain elements. To make a long story short, the neutron and proton numbers of some elements were very stable, while others were not. It was the explanation of the spinning of these particles, spin-orbit coupling, that Maria discovered.

Her husband insisted she should publish. For months she hung fire while he needed her. Her day was dawning, however. The book was published with Hans Jensen as co-author. This publication led to a phone call on Nov. 5, 1963 at 4 a.m. from Stockholm that she and Jensen had won the Nobel Prize.

Perhaps it was the one occasion in their life when the Mayers had champagne before breakfast.

Somber Memorial Day Ends In Thunderstorm; Hundred Club Helps Widows Of Police Officers

Memorial Day in Winchester Monday dawned cold and dark under a heavy cover of clouds. The day ended with a violent thunderstorm and torrential rains.

In between the town was hit with the tragedy of the loss of two of its police officers and the serious injury of another in an automobile crash.

The Memorial Day observances were somber, befitting the point of the day: remembrance of those who died in the service of the United States. The three police officers involved in the accident participated in the parade and the memorial services at the town's war memorials and cemeteries.

How ironic that the town 24 hours later would be considering some sort of memorial observance for Frederick J. Marascia and Andrew J. Saraco.

The Board of Selectmen Monday observed a standing moment of silence in honor of the dead officers. Chairman Arthur E. Dunbar called their demise a great tragedy and offered their families the town's heartfelt sympathy and assistance in their sorrow.

Leo Laughlin, executive director of the Hundred Club of Massachusetts, says Mrs. Saraco may be eligible for financial help from the organization which aids families of police officers and firefighters.

Laughlin, of 9 Everett ave., said officers who are killed not in the line of duty but who leave young children may receive $1,000. Their children are eligible for a Christmas check for one year for $100.

Families of men killed in the line of duty receive greater benefits, he said. The Hundred Club has 2,000 members who pay an annual dues of $250. Last year the club paid out $250,000 and since its founding in 1959, nearly $1 million.

Last year's total was great because of the Hotel Vendome fire, which took the lives of nine Boston firefighters. Winchester has 23 members in the club. "Because of wonderful people like our sponsors we're able to do this," Laughlin said.

Laughlin left as commissioner of Public Safety in 1969 to take over leadership of the club. Before that he was head of the FBI for New England.

Winchester has a black swan which many in town have taken a great interest in.

The mother and father swan are now taking turns sitting on the two eggs that were laid two months ago. The Park Department feels the eggs must be "duds" but they don't have the heart to remove them—nor the courage.

Every time someone goes in the door of the birds' winter quarters the swans "hunk their heads off and chase you out the door." It's time the swans took up residence at their summer home, Mill Pond, where they might have better luck with their eggs. Park Department says no one seems to know how long it takes for swan eggs to hatch.

A member of the Town Government Study Committee observed that Needham had only been able to get five people out to a public hearing on the subject of a charter commission, while the town of Northboro got 125 people to come to a public meeting on the same subject by raffling a turkey for every 25 persons who came. That's really talking turkey. Maybe Winchester, considering the fear with which some view a charter commission, should offer chickens.

Larry Levin of 17 Lakeview rd., whose tribulations have recently been observed in this column, is trying to raise $2,500 for his and his "co-conspirators'" trials in South Dakota on federal charges the seven did all sorts of wrongdoing by trying to help feed the starving Indians in Wounded Knee. In addition to all the charges previously stated, the seven face an additional one: obstructing federal marshals in the lawful pursuit of their duties.

"It gets to be a real drag to call people to ask for money," Levin said. To travel to South Dakota alone will cost the seven $2,000, Levin says. Two of the men, including Levin, pleaded before the grand jury in Deadwood, S.D., Monday.

The Winchester Historical Society has an interesting gimmick to promote membership. It's selling reproductions of an old Winchester map. The cost is $3 if you become a member. The map alone costs $5. Kind of hooks you into membership.

Sidewalk Show Saturday, 9-5

This Saturday the Winchester Art Association-sponsored sidewalk show will transform Manchester Field fence into a gallery for the talents of artists and craftsmen from Winchester and surrounding communities.

A Winchester tradition since 1956, the sidewalk show offers a relaxed atmosphere for browsing, buying and exercising a "sidewalk critic's" prerogative over hundreds of art works in all media and price ranges.

Amateur and professional artists and craftsmen have been invited to exhibit, demonstrate and sell their original works in the 9-5 show. Same-day registration is 9-10 a.m. Rain date is June 9.

Hostesses will assist in setting up exhibits, greeting the public and making sales.

Special feature of this year's show and possible bargain of the day will be a silent auction of an original watercolor donated to the Winchester Art Association by Rockport artist Betty Lou Schlemm. The painting, a study of the effects of early morning light on an old Rockport house, will be on view throughout the day at the show. Mrs. Schlemm, member of the American Watercolor Society, is listed in Who's Who in American Art.

For further information on the show call either Abby Hamilton at 47 Walnut st., or Iola Pontone of 1 Lakeview rd.

Mrs. Winn Speaks To Press On Social Security Bill

Mrs. Robert (Maureen) Winn of 10 West Chardon rd. recently returned from Washington where she participated in a conference with the President's Commission of Employment of Handicapped at the Washington Hilton.

Accompanied by her husband, Mrs. Winn, who has multiple sclerosis, met with members of the National Multiple Sclerosis Society and presidential advisors at the National Press Club for a first press conference on multiple sclerosis.

During the press conference Mrs. Winn talked about her Social Security bill which will lend assistance to handicapped persons. Passage of the bill (HR 5151) will allow a handicapped person to be eligible for disability payments through Social Security if they have earned enough quarters regardless of work experience dates. At present, many women who have not worked for five years and then become victims of MS are not eligible for payment.

Sylvia Lowry, founder of the National MS Society who was present, supported the bill and called it "a fair and just bill." Mrs. Winn says she "found the commission members to be sincerely dedicated and knowledgeable of problems of the handicapped."

Mrs. Winn advises that Ralph Strauss of New York City, whose mother was a victim of MS for more than 40 years, has offered a grant of $100,000 to the doctor who can cure or find a successful means of treatment for MS. She says Strauss spoke of not being able to help his mother but hopes to help other MS'ers.

During the three days in Washington, Mrs. Winn attended discussions, awards banquets and kept an appointment with Rep. Torbert Macdonald with whom she discussed the Social Security bill and the Vocational Rehabilitation Act. He also took her to a hearing on the floor of congress.

In the course of her discussion with Macdonald, Mrs. Winn says she learned that 10 years ago he filed a bill which was passed and implemented calling for publication of maps showing locations of ramps on all federal buildings in Washington.

At an awards dinner attended by Julie Eisenhower, Pearl Bailey acted as mistress of ceremonies. An award was presented to the outstanding handicapped American, Farris Lind of Boise, Idaho. Lind, who is totally paralyzed and required to use breathing apparatus at all times, opened 85 gas stations in the Midwest.

Mrs. Winn notes a comment from Miss Bailey who said she disliked the word "handicapped." Instead Miss Bailey would rather use the word "handy" meaning to be clever and make use of talent, and "capped" suggesting capped with the grace of God to fulfill goals set up for ourselves.

Awards also went to high school students for essays and posters on "hiring the handicapped," Mrs. Winn reports.

Four legislators participated in a simulated congressional session. They were Sen. Harrison Williams of New Jersey; Rep. Orville Hanson of Idaho; Sen. Robert Dole of Kansas; and Rep. John Brademas of Indiana who was originator of the Vocational Rehabilitation bill. Five handicapped people spoke on problems of handicapped related to transportation, housing and rehabilitation.

Mrs. Winn adds that 23 students from Massachusetts arrived in Washington by bus and participated in an all-night vigil at the Lincoln Memorial to protest the president's veto on the Vocational Rehabilitation Act. There was another demonstration, she notes, a wheelchair march to the White House.

The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Robert A. Janelle of Manchester, N.H., and the late Mr. Janelle. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick L. Lindberg of 5 New Meadows rd.

Given in marriage by her uncle, Leo Janelle, the bride wore a formal gown of peau-de-soie fashioned by her mother and featuring an empire waist, tulle lace and seed pearls at the bodice and border and silk organza sorcerer's sleeves bordered with matching lace. A Juliet cap of pearl embroidered lace held her cathedral length veil of silk illusion, and she carried a cascade bouquet of stephanotis, carnations, pink roses, bachelor buttons and gypsophila.

Mrs. Albert Bullis of Manchester, N.H., acted as matron of honor. She wore an empire waisted gown of lavender satin featuring a full-length skirt and cap sleeves. In her hair she wore a circlet of flowers and carried a basket of assorted mini-carnations, poms, bachelor buttons and gypsophila decorated with matching lavender ribbons.

Kristine Lindberg of 5 New Meadows rd., sister of the bridegroom, was bridesmaid. She wore a full-length gown of turquoise satin with an empire waist. A circlet of flowers adorned her hair, and she carried a basket of flowers similar to the honor attendant's featuring matching turquoise ribbons.

Mrs. Dian Hitchcock, consultant in ecology, presented a program entitled: "Ecology and Food Prices, Global and Local."

With charts on slides, Ms. Hitchcock illustrated how the combined pressures of industrial nations' high technology and living standard and underdeveloped nations' growing population growth on a limited resource base reflect the critical ecological situation today.

MSPCA Elects Mrs. W. Knutsen At Annual Meeting

The annual meeting of the Winchester Auxiliary MSPCA was held recently at the Aristotle drive home of Mrs. James Grassi. Mrs. Fred Cardin, president, opened the meeting with the announcement that the Poolside Promenade will be held on June 18. Rain date is June 19.

Guest speaker was Mrs. Edward Brainard, a volunteer worker for the Audubon Society at Drumlin Farms in Lincoln.

Mrs. Brainard spoke of the origin of the Audubon Society, a non-profit organization established in 1890 at a time when there was concern over the sacrifice of birds for their plumage used for the adornment of ladies' hats. Purpose of the society was the protection of birds and other forms of wild life. As the environment, signaled by its effect on birds and animals, threatened these forms of life, the Society turned its attention to environmental issues.

The speaker described the Society's activities which include the maintenance of 16 sanctuaries and 35 open space areas throughout the state. It has two educational centers.

Drumlin Farms provides a home for farm animals and birds and furnishes information on environmental problems. Laughing Brook, at Norfolk, is the former home of Thornton Burgess, where many of the areas are named for enchanting Burgess characters.

Mrs. Brainard and the staff at Drumlin Farms are planning an experimental project in the form of a solar building to be erected at the Farms. This is thought to be one of the first such buildings to be tried out in New England climate.

Mrs. Wallace Knutsen, nominating co-chairman, presented the slate of officers for the 1973-74 season: president, Mrs. Fred Cardin; vice-president, Mrs. Gordon Sidebotham; treasurer, Mrs. Byron Jackson; assistant treasurer, Mrs. Walter Bowen; recording secretary, Mrs. Adolph Alla; corresponding secretary, Mrs. Gordon Tobey.

Millionaire Winners Win More - Formula

Mrs. Robert Taylor of 12 Hill st., wife of the million dollar Game winner, gave birth to the first new resident of Winchester at Winchester Hospital after May 13 and won a case of formula for her new daughter, Pamela, weighing 8 pounds, 3 ounces.

The prize was given by the Winchester Jaycee-ettes, who in their effort to assist the March of Dimes in disseminating vital information to pregnant women to save lives of and improve health of newborns, offered the prize as part of their campaign during March of Dimes Healthy Baby Week.

Healthy Baby Week recently was proclaimed by Lt. Gov. Donald Dwight to take place from May 13-19, beginning on Mother's Day.

Mrs. Taylor says she was aware of the contest and the Healthy Baby Week campaign, but was surprised that 12 days went by without a winner, and even more surprised that her baby was born first. "It's unbelievable," she says, pointing out "this is the first time I've ever won anything."

The Taylors have two other daughters aged four and six.

Mrs. Taylor received her prize from Mrs. Ronald Milauskas, Jaycee-ettes project chairman for Healthy Baby Week in Winchester. Mrs. Richard McMorrow is president of the Winchester Jaycee-ettes.

As part of the total campaign local Jaycee-ettes emphasized the importance of diets to pregnant women through nutrition posters on display at the library and the well-baby clinic.

Through disseminated printed literature they tried to help future mothers become more aware of the importance of regular medical checkups and skilled medical attention during pregnancy.

A layette was also a gift to another expectant mother by Jaycee-ettes.

GIFT TO NEWBORN - Mrs. Ronald Milauskas, Jaycee-ettes project chairman for Healthy Baby Week in Winchester, left, presents a letter to Mrs. Robert Taylor of 12 Hill st. entitling her to a case of formula for her new daughter, Pamela, first new resident of the town after May 13. Mrs. Richard McMorrow, president of the Winchester Jaycee-ettes, who serve as March of Dimes volunteers, looks on.

Rev. Zoerheide, E. Goodwin Elected At MVMHA Meeting

Two Winchester residents have been elected to serve in official capacity for the Mystic Valley Mental Health Association and the Mystic Valley Area Board.

Edward E. Goodwin has been elected treasurer of the Association and Rev. Jack Zoerheide was elected president of the Area Board.

Their election came at the 16th annual meeting of the Association and the Area Board recently. At the same meeting the Association changed its name to become the Mystic Valley Mental Health Center Association Inc. It continues as a private non-profit corporation.

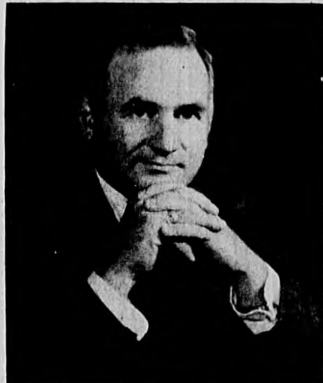

The name change clarifies the function and role of the Association and its board of directors which is to provide comprehensive community mental health services to meet the needs of the five constituent communities.

Besides Goodwin, others from Winchester elected to the Association Board were Mrs. Robert J. Grenzeback, Rev. Leonard Pelletier, Mrs. H. Kimball Archibald, Mrs. Thomas M. Hill, Mrs. William J. Fallon and Mrs. Charles L. Morgan.

In addition to Rev. Zoerheide, Winchester residents who are members of the Area Board are Rev. Walter B. Davis, Dr. Leonor Rich and Dr. Howard Niblock.

Special guest for the annual meeting was Mrs. Francis Sargent who spoke to the 125 assembled members and guests on what the Governor's reorganization plan would mean. Citizen participation in planning and local control are paramount to the reorganization concept, she said.

Dr. Morton B. Newman, director of the Mental Health Center, reported on the problems and achievements of the past year including services to the elderly, progress toward providing a residence for alienated adolescents, and in-patient psychiatric unit in cooperation with the trustees and medical staff of Choate Memorial Hospital, Woburn. Guy Palage, chairman of the board of trustees of the hospital, spoke of the psychiatric unit opening the hospital in the fall.

Dr. Newman mentioned three grants for special projects have been received from the state: one for a team to assess the needs of severely disturbed and handicapped children; second, an expansion of services for autistic children and their families; and a home care service for children with multiple handicaps.

He noted Mystic Valley is in the business of helping people who have problems from childhood and adolescence to aging, problems relating to group differences and relationships between the sexes and between parents and children, problems about work, employment and unemployment. He emphasized the goal of prevention and the aim toward providing a truly therapeutic community.

Library Seeks Help Of Residents On 11-Volume Series

"Environment Reporter," an 11 volume series dedicated to a "weekly review of pollution control and related environmental management problems," has been sent to the Winchester Public Library on approval.

"ER" covers legislation on both the national and state levels for air, water, and land use. It includes monographs produced by the staff of the Bureau of National Affairs which produces the entire service, as well as current updates on regulations and decisions.

At a cost of $340 per year (and considerable staff filling time and shelf space) the library staff is uncertain that this service would be a suitable addition to their collection. In the event this is not kept, other larger libraries in the Boston area do already subscribe to it. The library staff concedes the WPL does not possess everything that might be useful to the community on the subject. With this in mind, they would greatly appreciate having residents on their next visit to the library, look at ER and see if it is something they would recommend and use. For a few weeks it will be on display on a table in the Main Lobby of the adult library.

Banker Of Week

Bill Sullivan Began Working At National Bank In 1931

William D. Sullivan, president of the Winchester National Bank since 1967, began working at the bank in 1931 as a summer employee. He was then 16 years old and a junior at Winchester High School.

He did general work such as filing for that summer and the next and in the fall of 1932 began four years of schooling at the Bentley School of Accounting and Finance in Boston, working at the National Bank part time and then full time after graduation.

The war interrupted his incipient banking career for four years. Mr. Sullivan recalls that on the day war ended with Germany he was going down the East coast aboard a ship carrying ammunition bound for the Philippines.

Discharged in February of 1942, he married Rita M. Goodwin of West Roxbury in June of that year. The couple lives at 2-A Rangely Ridge. They have three children, Lee, Mark and Eileen.

Lee, a 1965 graduate of Winchester High School, graduated from Bentley College like his father and also served in the Navy for four years. He graduates from Springfield College in November.

Mark, a 1967 WHS graduate, married Ann Butler, daughter of Charles Butler, the former treasurer of the Winchester Trust Co. He is a graduate of New England College and is office manager for two Woburn orthopedic surgeons.

Eileen is a 1968 graduate and a 1972 graduate of Framingham State College. She is a teacher of home economics at Wilmington High School.

Senior citizens may telephone 729-2111 from nine to noon Monday through Friday for information on activities, help or just talk.

William D. Sullivan

Bill Sullivan became assistant cashier at the National Bank in 1946 and cashier in 1953. He was a vice-president before becoming president six years ago.

He completed a course in banking at Rutgers University sponsored by the American Bankers Association and is a member of the Robert Morris Association of Credit Men. He also belongs to the Knights of Columbus, the Lodge of Elks, American Legion and is currently active in the Rotary Club. He is vice-president of the Bentley College Alumni Association and is a director of Winchester Hospital.

The National Bank is very much a community bank but has an important distinction. It has the strength of the Shawmut Association behind it. It is an affiliate of that $2 billion association and thus can draw on the association's financial resources for such transactions as large business loans, foreign exchanges and drafts, trust services and metropolitan check-cashing services.

The bank was organized in 1917. In 1935 its deposits totaled $941,000. Today deposits are more than $11 million. In 1935 capital funds were $161,000. Today they total more than $1.2 million.

Elks Ball Team Reunites As Part Of Woburn League

The Elks 1445 softball team, the last team to win the Winchester softball league title before disbanding in 1971, will play this year in the Woburn softball league.

The Elks team is made up of most of the Elks players who played on the championship team of 1971. They have added a number of players from the old Bellino's and DiZio's teams.

The team is managed by Dick Mawn, who has run the Elks softball team for 12 years, winning the town championships in 1966, 1967, 1968, and 1971. He will be assisted by his brother, Peter, who ran the Bellino's team.

The team is made up of many former Winchester High School athletes: Bobby Nuttle, Ed Grant, George Murphy, Bob Gray, Rich Lanzillo, Richie Casalnuovo, Kevin Mawn, Kevin Barry, Gene Lane, Rich Errico, Victor Lawson, Jim Guarente, Joe Marrone.

The only two players from out of town are two former Woburn High School athletes: Tom and Jim Lynch. The pitching is one of the strong points of the team with Elks ace pitcher Jay Rowe and Tom Gannon and Skip Strange.

With no fast-pitch softball in Winchester last year, the team got together at the end of July just in time to enter the Hanscom Air Base Metro Boston "B" Tournament. They surprised everyone by reaching the finals, only to lose out in extra innings to the Belmont V.V.

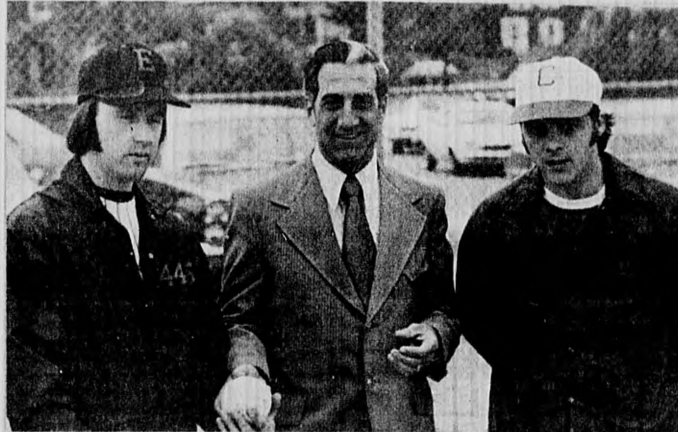

This year they are one of eight teams in the strong Woburn League which features the St. Anthony Club, City Club, South End Italian Club, Moore and Parker, Hanscom Air Base, Fort Devens, and McGills Natureland.

Prying the lid open in the first game of the year between the Woburn City Club and the Winchester Elks, the Elks, making their debut in the League, did a fine job. After seven innings they retreated from the field with a 5-2 victory over the City Club. In the second game, the two service clubs met (Hanscom Field and Fort Devens).

Elks hurler Jay Rowe struck out two and walked none while receiving good support on the field to hand him the victory. City Club's Ricky Gonsalves suffered the loss after striking out five, walking seven and being taken for the four runs.

The Winchester ball team outlived the City Club by only one, 7-6, with George Murphy leading his team with three base hits in three times at bat. Jay Rowe helped his own cause with two hits while Rich Lanzillo had his team's only extra bagger with a double. The City Club tagged the ball six times with three of the hits being triples.

For the first time under the lights at Library Park in their second game, Winchester Elks pitcher Jay Rowe hit three batters. Otherwise he was untouchable as he pitched a no-hitter to lead the Elks to a 2-0 shutout over Moore and Parker.

Rowe pitched perfect ball for the first four innings and in final statistics had five strikeouts to his credit. Suffering the loss on the mound for Moore and Parker was Tom Slack while also seeing action later in the game was Cecil Pollard.

The Elks at the plate collected five hits with Jay Rowe helping himself with the game's only extra-base hit, a triple, in the seventh inning. Adding singles were Errico, Murphy, Casalnuovo and Lane.

Gene Lane singled home Casalnuovo with the first and winning run in the top of the second inning and adding a big insurance run in the seventh was Rowe after he tripled and scored on a ground ball in the infield by Richie Lanzillo.

Even though Moore and Parker were held to no hits, they still managed to put together a scoring threat in their last time at bat in the bottom of the seventh inning. Two Elks errors along with a hit batsman loaded the bases with no outs. However, the Elks quickly met the challenge when Jay Rowe fielded in a hit back to the mound, threw to Nuttle at home plate for the force. Nuttle in turn fired a perfect throw to third base for a double play. The next batter struck out and the game was over with a Rowe no-hitter and a Winchester 2-0 victory.

Unexpected Happened

Sachem Nine Stuns League By Stirring Stretch Drive

By John F. Parrell

Two weeks ago today, Coach Bill Colella's Winchester High School Baseball team was in fifth place in the Middlesex League race. They had played good baseball, but had dropped at least three one-run decisions and it looked like a case of "wait 'til next year."

Their record was an even 6-6 and they trailed four other teams in the title quest. On that day the league alignment showed:

STONEHAM	12	3
READING	10	4
WATERTOWN	9	6
MELROSE	8	7
WINCHESTER	6	6

It looked like just a building year for the Sachems, whose team included only three seniors, co-captains Steve Johnson and Ned Keating, and Mark Forte. The lack of experience had been a factor in some of the games, and errors at costly moments hurt badly. But, they were playing .500 baseball, more than can be said for the Red Sox and most of the eastern division of the American League.

Southpaw Rudy Fiore, taking the mound for a makeup game with the Burlington Red Devils, was in fine form. Just one of the visitors hit safely. That hit came in the last inning as Rudy spun a 6-0 shutout.

This upped the record to 7-6, but the Sachems were still no threat to the league leaders, or even to the second place Rockets.

Then, last Monday's game with Melrose was postponed due to wet grounds, and that may prove the most important game for a Winchester team in the past several seasons.

Last week's issue of The Star stated: "Unless there is a series of major upsets it looks as though the Stoneham Spartans will take the Middlesex League crown, with Reading as the probable runner-up. Winchester is not completely out of the race, nor is Watertown, which has come along fast. However, unless the leaders falter it appears that they will represent the Middlesex League in the state tourney."

All the unexpected things happened as the Colellamen chalked up four straight, including a shocking upset of the high flying Spartans, and as this is being written they are ensconced in second place. However, the Melrose game has not yet been played and should the Raiders come out on top, a quadruple deadlock for the qualifying spot in the state tourney would result.

The final score on that game will be found elsewhere on this page, together with the possible arrangements for a playoff, in the event Winchester should slip.

But everybody in town is hoping for another win, which would guarantee sole possession of second place, as well as the state tourney berth.

Whatever happens, it will be a winning season for the team, and the only winning record for the year by a Winchester major sports team. Congratulations to Coach Colella and his boys. But, we are hoping for even more success and that state tournament bid.

After the Melrose postponement came games on four consecutive days which would test even a major league pitching staff. Co-captain Steve Johnson hurled the makeup game with the Wakefield Warriors and emerged the victor by 3-1. The only Wakefield run was unearned and came in the last inning on a misplayed fly ball and two balls which evaded Mike Heffernan's hands and allowed the only run for the Warriors to cross the plate.

Fiore came back on Wednesday and baffled the champions from Stoneham as he allowed only three hits and fanned eight batters. The Sachems opened up fast and pounded starter Steve O'Neil for three runs in the first inning.

An error and a wild pitch added to his trouble. By Mike Heffernan's double scoring co-captain Keating made it 3-0. Relief pitcher Trotta fared little better as the Sachem batters mounted one of their best attacks of the season. Gary Beard had three safeties and Mike Heffernan a pair. The 11-hit attack was spread among eight of the nine Winchester bat wielders.

By this time the local team was looming as a real threat for second place, since Reading had gone into a slide by dropping two games and Melrose had regained its stride and was winning. Watertown also played steady ball, but the Sachems had an advantage in the loss column where they had only six. Reading also showed six, but they were carded to play first place Stoneham on Friday. Winchester's opposition was the rival Woburn Tanners.

When Rudy Fiore bested the visitors on another three-hitter, it was a 4-1 victory for Winchester. This zoomed the record to 11-6, and edged them into second place since the Rockets went down before the Spartans. Meanwhile the Melrose record went to 10-7 and Watertown's to 11-7. Thus, a Winchester win over Melrose would assure second place, but a loss would give all four teams an 11-7 slate and necessitate a complicated playoff.

Although the Sachems made only seven hits off Brian Melanson on the Woburn mound, they bunched three of them in the second for a three-run lead. A walk to Heffernan and singles by Albie Cordice and Wayne Dennis set the stage for the big blow, a triple by Mike Siegfried which cleared the bases. The Tanners put across an unearned run in the third on a combination of a walk, a wild pitch and a Sachem error.

Winchester got this tally back in its half as Tom Brennan singled and co-captain Ned Keating followed suit. Heffernan's sacrifice brought in the final run, and Fiore was master of the situation right to the end.

Thus, a Winchester team which wouldn't be beaten, wasn't beaten in its last five games and has achieved the seemingly impossible. It is rare indeed that any high school has two hurlers of the ability of Johnson and Fiore and rarer still that both should be at peak form at the same time. Five consecutive games in which the opposition has been to muster no more than four hits, and has been able to score only two unearned runs.

BURLINGTON	R	H	ER
WOBURN	1	3	0

This record is without equal in all the years of schoolboy baseball, and should stand unchallenged for many years to come. Win or lose against Melrose, and state tourney or not, it's been a wonderful season.

Profile

Little League's Royals, Mets

By George Parker and Paul Guarente

The Little League Royals are led by their unofficial team captains, Craig Bradley and David Carrigan. Both have been three year starters, Craig as a catcher and David as a shortstop and a pitcher.

Craig is one of the most dedicated players on the team. He is always at practice even though he must do his paper route first. Because of his hard work during practice Craig has developed into an excellent catcher and he is currently batting .500. A clutch hitter, Bink bats clean up for the Royals.

David has been gifted with a strong throwing arm. His smooth wind up enables Dave to harness his tremendous speed with strike zone control. An All Star last year, David pitched a complete game 6-1 win over Stoneham. David has consistently batted in runs with his power hitting.

Two Royals who have scored many runs for their team are Brad Holmes and Bobby Fiore. This dynamic duo bat 1-2 in the line up and have been rapping base hits all over the West Side Field. Both Brad and Bobby have excellent speed and are a threat to steal whenever they get on base. Their speed has helped them to become excellent outfielders since they are able to cover so much territory.

Jackie "Wristshot" Collins does a fine job for the Royals at third, short or on the mound. Jackie's .350 batting average is sure to improve as soon as he starts wearing cleats to the games instead of skates. Jackie thinks Mr. Falla is the best baseball coach he has ever played for — and please, Jackie, no more green socks at the games.

David Downing and David Errico both play a strong third base and both are pitchers too.

Dow has been a steady presence at third base the past two seasons. A timely hitter, Dave has contributed many key hits during Royal rallies.

David Errico has been a solid pitcher and his aggressiveness at the plate should result in many hits.

Jimmy Phillio and Timmy Carrigan are the Royals' second basemen. An energetic ballplayer, Jimmy has become a sparkplug for the team with his strong hitting and heads up fielding. Jimmy is always alert and plays with confidence.

Timmy has done well at second base and like his brother has a strong throwing arm. Timmy will see action as a pitcher during the season.

First base is held down by Greg Cummings and Mike Burkley. Slick fielding Greg has been impressive at first this season. A smooth throwing left hander, Greg can also pitch.

Mike Burkley, a versatile player, is capable of playing any position. Mike has done a fine job at first base and has also done some catching. Mike can hit with power and his bat should help the Royals this season.

Dick Cruise, Greg Davis, Gary Walsh and Bobby Magliozzi all play outfield for the Royals.

Dick plays left field and will probably do some catching this year also. Dick has been swinging the bat quite well and he is expected to deliver a lot of hits this season.

Gary Walsh, a happy-go-lucky player, is the flake of the team. Gary has done a fine job in centerfield and is improving at the plate. Bobby Magliozzi has done well in the outfield and he has been improving both at the plate and in the field.

Manager Paul Guarente coaches Peter Phillio and Rudy Fiore and the players would like to thank the officials of Winchester Little League for their efforts to make this season possible and a special thanks to the team mother Mrs. John Collins and the team sponsor Tierno's Mobil Station.

Over in the American League George Parker's Mets expect to feature hard hitting, fine fielding and good pitching in their challenge for the American League pennant this year.

Parker expects strong pitching from Sam Bellino, Dana Kawa and Don Pigott with fireballing Marc Pelloux ready to relieve when needed. This capable staff is handled by catcher Andy Wilsack. The infield is solid with Bill Strazzullo at third or short and Sam Bellino at short when he's not pitching. Don Pigott at second is capably spelled by Tim Mahon. First base is handled well by Mario Alfano and Dana Kawa.

The outfield is solid with David Parkhurst in left, John Parker in center and Peter Johanson in left. This trio is backed up by Alan Roche, a strong utility man who can fill in anywhere in the outfield or infield, Tony Donlon, Len Bellino and Tom Wilsack. The outfield is in good hands when any of these boys are operating.

The Mets have split their first four games, beating the Reds 6 to 5 and 11 to 2 and losing to the Pirates 11 to 4 and 8 to 4.

Manager George Parker coaches Bill Strazzullo and Ed Kawa who along with the players feel they are fortunate in having as their team mother Mrs. Joanne Donlon. Thanks go to the Mets' sponsor Saltmarsh Insurance Agency of Winchester.

Next: a preview of the senior league featuring the White Sox and Indians managed by Al Fay and Jeff Oldach.

Girls Tennis Play
At Local Courts

Chief Wier Names Two To Auxiliary

Auxiliary Police Chief Frederick Wier announces the appointment of two officers as auxiliary policemen. Louis Russo and Roger Ralphs were signed on at a recent department meeting.

Russo and Ralphs have extensive backgrounds in auxiliary police work. Russo has been an auxiliary officer for several years in Winchester and Ralphs has served with the Woburn auxiliary police.

Their appointments are part of a current recruiting drive for new members. According to Wier there still are openings for more members. Persons who are interested in applying should contact Wier through the Winchester Police Department.

The Auxiliary police serve as a supplemental and emergency arm of the regular police department. Duties include traffic control and police patrol under the jurisdiction of the regular department. Auxiliary police participate in police training and emergency procedure programs.

Strictly a volunteer group, the auxiliary police donate almost 2000 hours of time annually in town service.

Mets Beat Cards In Thriller

George Parker had his Mets in the groove last week. As a result they climbed back into a tie for first place by sweeping the Cards 1-0 and 8-3.

On Tuesday night in one of the finest Little League games seen here in some time the Mets rode the shutout pitching of Don Pigott to a 1-0 victory. Randy Pearl matched Don Pigott pitch for pitch until the last of the fifth inning when the Mets scored the only run of the game.

A walk, a wild pitch, a perfect sacrifice bunt by John Parker and a timely sacrifice fly by Dana Kawa scored Mario Alfano with what proved to be the game winner.

On Thursday night the Mets got the better of the Cards by an 8-3 score. The Mets scored five runs in the first inning on a hit batsman, four walks, a single by Mario Alfano and a clutch double by John Parker.

This proved to be the big inning of the game. Steve Wolfe settled down and limited the Mets to only three runs the rest of the game. The steady pitching of Sam Bellino kept the Cards at bay throughout the game. Andy Wilsack and Mario Alfano had two hits each for the Mets.

Jimmy Willing chipped in with two hits for the Cards. Dave Parkhurst, Don Pigott, Billy Strazzullo, and Alan Roche all came up with fine fielding plays for the Mets.

The Pirates, in a bit of a slump of late, put it all together against the Athletics, winning 11-4 and 9-4. In the first game Chad Doe and Bubba Sandford split the pitching and did a fine job limiting the Athletics to only six hits and four runs.

Meanwhile the Bucs led by the strong hitting of Rob Dellagrotte and Ken Goodrow belted out 12 hits and 11 runs. Defensively Kurt Ellis was a standout for the Bucs.

In the second game the Pirates went to work immediately, scoring six runs in the first inning. This outburst was ignited by one of the league's top hitters, Chad Doe. A highlight of the game was the baserunning of Bubba Sandford. In one inning Sandford stole two bases on one pitch. Pitching for the Pirates were Chad Doe and Bubba Sandford, who limited the Athletics to three hits and struck out 12 batters.

Veteran manager Jerry Ferro said that the past two games were a good indication of what the Pirates can do when they put it all together.

In the National Major League the Yankees in a big two-game series against the Twins remained undefeated, winning 1-0 and 7-2. The Bombers now stand 9-0 on the year. It now remains for the second place Royals to stop this juggernaut.

The Indians in the American Senior League won two squeakers last week, both in the last inning, beating the White Sox 4-3 and The Expos 6-5. Oldach and Powers have their club playing fine baseball and should be major contenders in their division.

The White Sox after dropping a heart-breaker to the Indians bounced back and beat the Senators 9-1 to stay near the top in their division. The Giants won their first game of the year over the weekend as they measured the Indians 2-1.

The Indians made a valiant attempt to pull it out in the last inning as they had done in their two previous wins last week. They had runners on second and third with no out when Jay Estabrook came on in relief of Donny Allard. Jay struck out the first batter and forced the next hitter to bunt one up in the air which was quickly turned into a double play and the ballgame. The combination of Allard and Estabrook was just too much for the Indians to handle.

The Angels in the National Senior League continued to win and now stand 6-0. Last week in a superb pitchers' duel the Angels sneaked by the Orioles 1-0. Righthander Billy MacDonald threw a two-hitter at the Orioles while Tony Saleme limited the Angels to one hit.

The only run scored was when Steve Duran walked, stole second and third, and on an overthrow to third scooted home with the winning run.

It was a family affair for manager Bill McGinty of the Phillies when his club beat the Orioles 3-2. Son Bill pitched a strong complete game win while brother Jack drove in the tying and winning runs in the sixth inning.

The Foxes remained on top in the American Minor League by beating the Buffaloes twice. Offensively for the Foxes it was Bruce Crawford, Gary Stewart, Paul Fay and Anthony DeVellis.

The entire team has shown marked improvement since game one. Coaches Fred Zappala and George Stewart have done a super job with this club all year and deserve much recognition. For the Buffaloes Joseph Berardi stood out in a losing cause.

Tracksters Do Well

By John F. Purrell

Coach Manny Marshall's track team turned in a highly creditable performance in the Middlesex League meet held last Saturday at Stoneham. They won the relay in 1:33.1, and in so doing broke the school record of last year's relay team by .1 sec. They also took two firsts, three seconds and a third place in the individual competition.

Charlie Tatarian whirled through the half mile to take first honors in 1:58.5, which was highly creditable time in view of the strong wind which prevailed. Blair Joyce led the field in the pole vault as he took top honors by clearing the bar at 10 ft. 6 in. He had won eight out of nine competitions in this event, and the winning of the league event was a fitting climax to the season.

John Friberg, a newcomer to track this year and a real workhorse in every meet, garnered second honors in low hurdles. Tony Guarente continued his fine running in the 440-yard dash as he finished second to state finalist Mark Fallon of Reading.

Pete Tilden was second place winner in the triple jump, with a leap of better than 42 ft. Bob Tonello, who has been turning in excellent efforts in both the 100-yard dash and the 220, suffered a pulled muscle early in the week. However, he returned to action to finish third in the 100-yard event and also run a leg in the record smashing relay.

The winning quartet was Tony Guarente,

In Middlesex Meet

John Friberg, Steve Meahl and Bob Tonello. The victory in the relay was doubly sweet because the Sachems had won the event on the same track in the Stoneham meet only to be disqualified after they were in the bus ready to leave for home.

Their fine showing in the league meet is a tribute to the team's desire and courage. Their last three dual meets had been heart-breakers. They lost to the high-flying Reading Rockets by 73-67, dropped the Stoneham meet by 69-66 after the relay disqualification, and were edged by the Lexington Minutemen 71-69, in a meet where many boys were forced to run in other than their usual events due to injuries to others. Thus, the Sachems lost all three meets by a total of 10 points out of a 415 point total.

Such a result would have discouraged a less courageous group, but the boys stayed in there, and their fine work in the league meet was a most satisfying result. They should do well in the state meet to be held this weekend at White Stadium, and might upset some of the more favored teams in their division, provided that they get top efforts from their entries.

LATE RESULT: The Sachems bested arch rival Woburn 84-56 on Tuesday afternoon. Charlie Tatarian broke Tim Fahey's Winchester School mile record by several seconds as he set the new mark at 4:27.5.

Astros Drop Game

The Winchester-Medford Astros soccer team lost its first league game to Lexington 2 to 1 Sunday in Winchester. Lexington tallied at 14 minutes in the first half.

Although the Winchester-Medford team out-hustled and seem to outplay its opponent, they couldn't find the net.

Behind 1 to 0 starting the second half, Winchester continued to press a hard game and finally at 31 minutes left wing Tom Merrow scored the tying goal. However, four minutes later Winchester's goalkeeper Rich Chappa, who had made several great saves, was caught out of the net when he attempted to cover a loose ball and Lexington scored the winning goal.

Winchester's next opponent is in Woburn at the Joyce Junior High School Field on Sunday at 1:30.

Red Cross Seeks Funds For Miss. Flood Disaster

The Winchester Chapter of the American Red Cross has received word from Frank Stanton, national chairman, that the Mississippi flood has reached such disaster proportions as to call for the most heroic relief efforts.

Stanton reports the Red Cross is providing shelter for over 10,000 persons and feeding over 32,000. "With the crest of the flood moving southward, a precarious situation will continue for several weeks," he notes.

"We are told that Red Cross relief funds are depleted," John J. Walte Jr., Winchester chapter chairman, says adding that individual chapters are urging citizens to give as generously as possible so that the Red Cross may aid the Mississippi victims and reestablish its disaster fund to meet other needs as they arise.

Checks may be made to the American Red Cross Disaster Relief and mailed to the Chapter House, 39 Church st.

School Committee Rejects Soccer Program

Tuesday night the Winchester School Committee rejected a request to include a fall interscholastic soccer program in the junior high schools, and approved summer workshop goals, a summer school facility on a contingency basis, to seek assistance from Olney Associates, management consultants, and a bid award for $2,325 for the razing of McManus House.

John Duffy, who has been involved with Winchester Youth Soccer as a coach during the past five years, made an appeal on behalf of youthful soccer players and petitioning citizens, many of whom were present at the School Committee meeting, that a junior high soccer program be established.

He pointed to the popularity of soccer in recent years saying there is "an overwhelming interest and acceptance of the sport by parents and others. Yet there is no soccer in the Winchester junior high schools."

Scheduling manager for the Boston Area Youth Soccer League, Duffy said that in 1969 there were nine teams in the league. Now there are 94 teams including three from Winchester of boys 11 to 16. "These teams are not affiliated with any school."

Claiming the youth soccer program has been the high school's farm system, Duffy noted, "There is a gap between the two which should be filled by a junior high program. Junior high students who do not desire to play football should not be denied the option to play soccer," he said.

Duffy noted the equipment costs for a soccer program, after the initial $1,500 for each junior high, would be an annual budget of $300 to cover the costs of replacement or reconditioning of soccer balls and uniforms. This estimate would not include coach's salary, buses or referee fees, he said.

Duffy said Eugene Bouley, soccer coach at Winchester High School who was present, has been interested in having a separate soccer program for sophomores because there are enough boys playing soccer to have three teams in the high school. Up to now Bouley has had a no-cut policy, but for the first time he expects to have to change this policy in the fall.

Both Bouley and Duffy feel soccer should begin in junior high school to prepare kids for high school. Also youths want soccer because "it is a new skill which they want to learn and should be taught."

In talking with varsity soccer coaches in other towns they have learned that Burlington had 40 boys try out, Watertown and Melrose had 60, while Winchester had 80, further evidence of the youth soccer demand.

In conclusion Duffy asked the School Committee to let Winchester citizens know "within the next two months whether we will have this program." The School Committee gave its negative answer and reasons why immediately.

Agreeing that "soccer is an excellent sport, worthwhile and viable and nationally becoming more and more popular," newly-elected School Committee member Richard Pharo noted, "Money is not available." He said he understood soccer would reach "a greater spectrum of athletic talents" and though there are soccer enthusiasts there would be the "same support for major reductions in the school budget."

Asking about the junior high football budget, a student representative pointed to the efforts and donations of cars and time by coaches Bouley and Duffy as being equal to football coaches. "If we can give money for kids to play football, why not soccer?" he inquired.

Supt. of Schools William MacDonald responded that junior high football costs amount to $1,800 not counting salaries. Salaries are $7,000, he said.

School Committeeman Stephen Parkhurst said, "As funds are available we will add more sports, but we will need support of town meeting."

Bringing forth a bit of laughter, Pharo said, "In your support of soccer at town meeting you might rouse some support to reduce football."

Duffy pointed out that costs might be cut some such as using goal posts already built for $50 by the Park Department. "I just hate to see this program tabled again."

Mrs. Mary Mears, acting as chairman in the absence of Mrs. Harriet Dieterich, said, "We have been fighting for more sports—soccer and a swim team." Richard Pritchard suggested, "Let's reevaluate and take a good look at the existing athletic program."

An observing parent who pointed out she had children at many grade levels in the town's schools who were into many of the varsity and intramural sports said she "would rather see a large intramural program" rather than one that doesn't meet the needs of the majority.

Supt. MacDonald also agreed a junior high soccer program could serve as a feeder to the high school and "there are all too many kids not being served now."

"We need to get the girls caught up on sports," noted Parkhurst who asked Duffy to "be patient for another year. This is just not the year to be starting new programs, he said.

Assistant Superintendent Walter P. Gleason reported on goals for the Winchester summer workshop which continues with an emphasis on preparation of teachers and materials for the new junior high school programs.

1. To free students from restrictions of track scheduling to they might find themselves in both heterogeneous and homogeneous groupings and allow freedom of movement within the homogeneous groupings without rescheduling as their productivity warrants;

2. To concentrate the learning materials for each subject into one laboratory area so that the widest possible variety of learning experience and learning times might be available to teachers for prescriptive purposes;

3. To have materials which allow self-directive learning and provision for different optional means of reaching curriculum goals;

4. To have teachers and students working in groups for the purpose of employing teacher strengths to best advantage, better communication among teachers, and more flexibility of offerings for indepth or remedial study.

Frederick J. Murray, summer school director, noted preliminary enrollment for summer school is 264 students. Only eight of these are in academic areas of secondary school. Four are in English subjects, three in math studies and one for a foreign language.

Murray said he feels certain there will be an increase in enrollment after report cards are out later this week, but reminded the School Committee of the late Tom Morse's projection that the great thrust of eight years ago, with Sputnik and other advances in the technology field, which had parents and students striving toward college acceptance, would have the pendulum swinging the opposite direction.

Today, after college demonstrations and unrest parents have a "laissez faire" attitude. "Parents are more interested in their kids being happy. Children are now deciding the course of their futures," Murray said.

Enrollments as well as courses sought fluctuate between 650 and 450, he said. One year children were turned away for personal typing, he said. This year there are 13 signed up.

MacDonald asked Murray if junior high students would have an opportunity to enroll in summer school or would lateness of report cards hinder them. Murray said plans are to reach guidance counselors with information to get these students.

He added, "We should develop a process for recommendation and referral on the secondary level just as we have for elementary pupils which is done so thoroughly." All it would take is "a few hundred dollars more for postage."

The School Committee voted for the presented summer school staff on a contingency basis. That is, teachers would be on stipend for the summer school if enrollment warrants their need as instructors.

Mrs. Mears asked about high school seniors who would not have enough credits for graduation. What do they do?

Tom Boudewicz, assistant principal at the high school, said these students will know who they are on Friday after final exams. They can enroll in the summer program, but if they have flunked a subject not on the summer school agenda they will have to go elsewhere to make up the subject, he said.

A suggestion was made that towns might collaborate here with one town offering a couple of subjects while another a couple more.

The School Committee also voted to employ Olney Associates, management consultants presently engaged by the Personnel Board to survey managerial positions at the Town Hall, to study School Department clerical force. At present there are 24 different positions with seven classifications.

Though Pharo considered this kind of job one that should be done by the committee and the personnel board itself, other committee members pointed to benefits if, as Pritchard noted, the results are used and "not put in a bottom drawer somewhere."

Mears spoke of inequities in the clerical force. Pritchard asked if the Evans survey conducted five years ago brought forth positive results. Assistant Superintendent Henry Perry said, "Some were corrected, others ignored and at least one was created."

Parkhurst spoke of positive results at his place of employment following such a survey. New methods were set up and the system has perpetuated to the betterment of the business. The committee agreed to engaging Olney and acting on their recommendations.

Payment for the survey in the amount of $1900, with an additional $100 for incidental expenses, according to Perry, will come from the school department's Other Expenses account.

In other business the school committee received bids from three firms to raze McManus House. High bidder was $3,800. The job has been awarded to low bidder Mystic Building Wrecking Co. for $2,325.

Other bids were awarded to Twombly Associates for chairs and to Public Seating Co. for tables and desks, all for McCall Elementary School. Also to various other firms for interior and exterior painting in the amount of over $12,000 at McCall, Vinson-Owen, Mystic, Parkhurst Schools, and Sanborn House and the adjacent Carriage House.

The School Committee tabled two other bids for carpeting at McCall and two rooms at Mystic School to give Supt. MacDonald an opportunity to check out a couple of legal questions.

Other matters tabled, to give an opportunity to examine and study further, included a telephone company easement across property at Lynch Junior High School, and a request from the Winchester Visiting Nursing Assn. asking school committee approval on their salary schedule.

Following discussion on shrubbery at the Lincoln School the school committee voted to leave the shrubbery where it is. Supt. MacDonald said the Lincoln shrubbery is worth from $300-$400; would take about four days' work to remove it; presented risk in transplanting; and area residents had requested the shrubbery remain where it is.

Concerning community use of schools as a result of a Town Meeting appropriation of $5,000, School Committeeman Pritchard reported the high school gym will be open to the public a couple of evenings a week and Sundays for a program that will meet with approval of all including town counsel, who is devising an enrollment form for applicants. The plan calls for a charge of 50 cents to try (1) to help provide funds for upkeep and equipment and (2) as a control measure to have only those who really want to make use of the facilities be on the premises.

"The rules will be promulgated as we go along," he said promising that schedules, when worked out, will be reported in The Star. "The program will be responsive to the needs of those who participate," he said. The program will begin shortly after the school year starts, he added.

The School Committee accepted the resignation of Ricki A. Kleist, Grade 6 teacher at Wyman School and accepted the election of Mrs. Allegra A. Atkinson as an English teacher at McCall; Herbert O. Ziegler, presently at Muraco School; Susan M. Tussing, Washington School, Grade 2; and Mrs. Rachelle R. Isserow to full-time status as elementary school speech therapist.

★ Charter

selectmen to consolidate all enabling acts which formed the structure of the town government. Town meeting in Needham recommended to the legislature that the consolidation be enacted and it was adopted by the legislature and subsequently by the voters by a better than two to one margin. Their reconfirmation made no substantive changes in town government, but did repeal a number of outdated acts.

The Needham selectmen then constituted a committee of nine, which Harby termed a "blue ribbon" committee, serving at the will of the Board of Selectmen and representing the League of Women Voters, the Personnel Board, the Finance Committee, the School Committee, the taxpayers and two appointees.

This committee has submitted nine articles to the Needham warrant, increasing the number of School Committee members and Library Trustees from six to seven, changing the town treasurer from an elected to an appointed position and other title changes, some of which must go to Town Meeting, and others to referendum for action.

Another example of consolidation made possible by the new document on town government was the pulling together of four departments, each of which maintained grounds—the Memorial Park trustees, the school department, the public works department and park department. Hatch noted, "all the playgrounds in the town are now in better condition, maybe at a savings, now that they are under consolidated management."

The school department in Needham, which had budgeted $140,000 for reconditioning fields on a contract basis, will now be able to have the same job done by the town for between $40,000 and $50,000.

Needham went the way of the special act in order to insure involvement of non-political "blue ribbon" people. Hardy stated that he would not have run for a nine-member Charter Commission. "The trouble with a charter commission is that you simultaneously elect the members of it when you determine if you want it."

Arthur Dunbar, chairman of the Winchester Board of Selectmen, stated that he is concerned about voting for the commission and the commissioners at the same time. He expressed deep concern for the quality of the persons who are elected. If people with limited experience in town government were elected, he feels, in the 10 months they have to operate, a sloppy charter might result.

Grenzeback stated there is no legal restriction on who may run for charter commission, therefore a presently elected official may run. Statistically, only 50 percent of the 40 communities which have tried a charter commission have accepted the proposed charter. Ms. Morgan observed, "the greater the change proposed, the greater the chance of its being turned down." Many public hearings would make the charter commission sensitive to the wishes of the public.

Robert Erickson, TGSC member, spoke of a meeting he had with a consultant to towns interested in creating a charter commission. The consultant noted that there are two types of situations in municipalities, one where a serious situation exists which needs correction, and a second, a stagnant, status quo situation, where someone in the power structure suggests a change. Past selectmen, finance committee and school committee members are often found serving on charter commissions. Erickson made the point that he considered Winchester to be in the second category of a community "where nothing is radically wrong. Codification by a charter would permit easy amendment and seems sensible."

TSC is assembling materials pertinent to the work of a charter committee. "These materials will give the commission a running start. The function that the charter commission can perform is extremely vital and should not be subjugated to any notions of the committee—it will be truly independent of the Town Government Study Committee," Erickson said.

Erickson stated that a Charter Commission is responsive to the honest hopes and desires of a town's citizens. Town meeting is not really in the picture here, the decision is up to the voters. A special town meeting could be called to hear an interim report of the charter committee to provide massive feedback to the commission while it was developing the charter, he said.

Grenzeback commented "In one town which failed to vote in a charter, the downfall of the effort was precipitated by the election of people to the charter commission who were unable to work together." Ms. Morgan stated, "It's very evident that the success of getting a good charter depends upon the community paying attention and being vigorous during the entire process." Hearings would give each interest group an opportunity to voice opinions. The selectmen can initiate a hearing.

Selectman Vito Giarrizzo stated, "I'm enthusiastic about the initiative of the Town Government Study Committee. I think we'll end up with something similar to what we have, only simpler and streamlined."

It was pointed out that if Winchester votes a charter, town meeting would still be able to present articles on the warrant or introduce referenda for further amendment and modification to the charter. The original charter, however, must be accepted or rejected without amendment at the polls.

Chairman Arthur Dunbar reiterated his concern that the public should be made aware of the importance of their participation in getting people to run, in speaking their minds at public hearings, in voting and in accepting or rejecting the charter. "As one with strong feelings for the town," he stated, "I will watch the nomination papers that are filed and will be out recruiting candidates." It will demand a great deal of time for 10 months, he noted.

ARE YOU A SALESMAN?

House buyers all operate on the same basic principle. If and when you do find one who is actually interested in buying your home, will you be able to bargain successfully with him? He is almost certain to make an offer substantially below your asking price. It will be difficult for you to discuss price, terms, possession, and the multitude of details involved. As a principal in the transaction, you will have little or no freedom to negotiate.

Salesmanship in Real Estate involves more than just selling. It encompasses many technical areas, negotiations, contracts, and intricate financing. Even if you're the best salesman in the world, it still pays to have a good broker serve as your intermediary, negotiator and advisor. He has no inhibiting emotional attachments and his familiarity with the local market is your most reliable route to the best price available.

If you have any questions on this subject or on any other aspect of Real Estate, please feel free to call or drop in at JAMES T. TREFREY, INC., REALTORS, 27 Waterfield Road, Winchester - Tel. 729-6100.

Gracious 9 room Split Entry Colonial. Fireplace living room with beamed cathedral ceiling. Family room adjoins fully equipped kitchen. Formal dining room, 4 bedrooms, 2 1/2 baths, plus huge fireplace recreation room. Possible in-law suite. Priced in the 60's.

'Joy For Joy' Moves Forward, Picnic Sunday

The "Joy for Joy" program at the First Congregational Church is jogging along but still in need of sponsors if the goal to raise $1000 for the "One Great Hour of Sharing" and school volunteer program of Boston is to be reached. The last report put the sponsored total at $384.02.

The program, which has parishioners running to raise money to supplement the recent Easter offering designated for the "One Great Hour of Sharing" and the school volunteer program of Boston, is lagging behind.

The plan calls for parishioners who aren't running to sponsor runners by pledging an amount of money for each mile a specified jogger will run during the total six week period.

One June 14 sponsors will mail their signed cards with amounts due to the church office. Payments will be received at the June 17 worship service. Contact Marguerite Johnson at the church office between 9 a.m. and 2 p.m. for more information.

In final preparation for confirmation on June 10, the Nonagoners will be attending a retreat at Framingham Conference Center with Rev. Davis and others. They will be leaving the church at 3 p.m. June 1 and return home around 5:30 p.m. June 2.

At 5 p.m. on Sunday the Junior Highs will meet in the Tucker Room to put together their talent show for performance later the same evening at Mount Vernon House. Seventh graders Louise Friou and Laurie Easton have been visiting at Mount Vernon House for the past several Fridays and delivering copies of the church calendar to women of the home who listen to First Baptist services via special radio hook-up.

On June 10 the Junior Highs will be guests of the Hammonds at 5 Chesterford rd. East for a picnic and outing from 3-6 p.m.

Six From Winchester Are Northeast Grads

Winchester will graduate six students from Northeast Metropolitan Regional Vocational High School on June 10, among the 241 members of the senior class from the 12 community district served by the school.

This year's regional school graduating class is the 'first' totally Northeast educated, having begun at the sophomore level when the school opened in September, 1970, thereby receiving the full three-year vocational training program in a single trade area.

What do regional high school students think of their three-year experience? James F. Babin, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Babin of 23 Middlesex st., expressed his views regarding his high school experience and his future.

"I think I met more people and different types of people than I ever knew," he said, noting that his experience was a boon to his social life. On the other side, he found himself drifting away from old friends in Winchester because of different interests.

During his three years at Northeast, Jim trained in the carpentry department. About the middle of May he was released from school to begin a fulltime employment with a construction firm framing houses. The school's placement counselor assisted in obtaining his job. Jim hopes to continue his education, but has no definite plans at present.

Commenting on the teaching staff at Northeast, he considers his instructors "more down to earth" and people with whom he was able to establish a good rapport.

While satisfied with the skills he acquired, he feels he could have learned more if there had been more practical projects, such as the student house-building project planned for next fall.

His advice to future Northeast students is: "Get all you can from shop instruction."

Other Winchester students who will receive Northeast diplomas are William Farnam Jr. of 8 Myrtle st., carpentry; John Finch of 9 Hillside ave., electronics; Michael Hopkins of 230 Forest st., plumbing; William Raphael of 14 Oxford st., electronics; and Michael Sheehy of 21 Washington st., carpentry.

He was graduated from Southeast Missouri State College in 1956; received his law degree in 1960 from American University in Washington, D.C., and a master of arts degree in business administration from George Washington University in Washington in 1965.

A native of Missouri, he is a member of the Maryland Bar and received superior performance awards for service with the Navy, and the Office of Economic Opportunity.

Aardvack, Rhino, Warthog At Library

An aardvark, rhinoceros, warthog, several hyenas and jackals and the dik-dik have come to the junior library.

But you need not bring your whip and chair as you accompany your child, for these animals from Kenya are visiting the junior library on paper.

Mrs. Connor's fourth grade class from the Mystic School has prepared maps, animal posters and written reports on the plants and animals of Kenya.

Viewing a foreign country through a child's eyes is a delight for adults and informative for everyone.

Indian artifacts are also on display in the junior library as is a selection of paintings by Girl Scout Cadette Troop 510 of Lynch Junior High.

The Indian items include a real tomahaw, arrowheads, feather headdress and masks.

Eleven artists have contributed to the Cadette art exhibit which includes oils and watercolors in the storytelling room.

Art holds sway in the Adult library lobby where works by members of the Winchester Art Association are on display. The glass display case features wood carvings by Rick Mobbs and jewelry by Elizabeth Miller.

Just because children are out of school doesn't mean they stop reading. For those who wish to organize their summer reading and win a certificate, check the junior library bulletin board for details.
